

"There are times" said he as he pressed her tiny hand, "when I think that your heart is mine alone; but again there come dark moments when your conduct is surrounded by a vague uncertainty, like a fly's leg in a plate of hash."

Wheat & Ford are making the finest Photos ever made in this neck of prairie.

Prof. Collier entertained a number of visitors Monday by throwing prismatic colors promiscuously around the walls of the darkened room and exacting a tribute of young thunder and lightning from the Holtz machine.

One of the boys went to a place to work for his board; but he got his back up and left merely because the boss wanted him to work all Sunday forenoon while he (the boss) could be at home, and then sent him up into the stable loft to sleep.

Last week Lieut. Webster played truant and went duck hunting. He returned after a two days hunt with a full game bag, the game being ducks principally. Sergeant Parks drilled the cadets during the Lieutenant's absence.

A number of the athletically disposed young men of the University, have organized a gymnasium club. The officers are, Pres. W. B. Reynolds; Vice Pres. Frank Parks; Treasurer, Ed Fairfield; Ex. Com. Magoon and Hathaway.

The faculty have granted the club the use the room under the Palladian hall. Boxing gloves, indian clubs, foils and a horizontal bar have already been provided and the end is not yet. A surgeon will be engaged by the year, at the expense of the club. Look out for an exhibition at the end of the year.

Prof. Emerson posted on his door instructions for his German class, beginning to take five pages in addition for each day that he is absent, and now they begin to count up and see what it will amount to if he don't get well for a month or two.

Some depraved wretch, some abandoned villain, some base, some—but words fail us—stole the only croquet set from the Dormitory grounds the other night and it has not been recovered. The fair maidens and stalwart young men are disconsolate and refuse to be comforted.

Aspiring young orators both in and out of the University will have an opportunity to air their eloquence when the campaign opens. We notice among those ticketed the names of J. H. Worley, C. E. Magoon, F. M. Hall, J. C. F. McKesson, D. H. Mercer, A. C. Platt.

Lieut. Webster gives the Dormitory girls a regular drill. We understand they propose to challenge the cadets to a contest in a short time. The boys who know about such things, say that it is much easier to keep step with them since they have learned the twenty-eight inch step, than in the days of pinbacks and the delicate steps necessitated thereby.

Mr. Arnold's bicycle has been stolen. It disappeared the night after the Dormitory croquet set was stolen. If these things are done by a professional thief he should be hunted down and punished. If they were taken in a spirit of fun by some of the boys, a long enough time has elapsed for the fun to wear off and it is now in order to return them.

Some students seem to neglect their own interest when they do not keep up with the times by being acquainted with all of our leading business houses. Students or others, wanting any thing in the line of first class clothin' Hats, Caps, &c., should not fail to call on S. Sewab, who with his constantly arriving supply goods, has the best place in Lincoln to buy.
