I deal in Eastern Styles and Eastern Prices. If you want something New and Fashionable, fail not to call on J. B. Dowling, O St. bet. 10th & 11th.

The meteoric display was brilliant. We didn't set up ourselves, but some parties who were out with biscuit boards and dishpans over their heads to protect them from the falling missiles told us it was immense. About 10:30 P. M. some parties were seen to ascend to the top of the Capitol and send off a number of rockets. They disappeared soon after, and it is conjectured they were in the employ of Tice

Students wanting anything in the line of Hats, Caps, Gents Furnishing Goods, should not fail to call on S. Schawb. His stock of Goods is large and constantly increasing, and the cheapest and best to be found in town. All should be sure to call on him when in need of first class goods at the very lowest prices.

The Student's Lecture Ass. had a meeting on the 14th. An amendment to the constitution was adopted defining more clearly the duties of the officers. Also one providing that all monies accruing to the Ass. above twenty-five dollars, to be retained as a sinking fund, shall be divided between the two societies. This will undoubtedly result in an increase of interest in the Association, as the members of both societies will be anxious to have the Ass. succeed in a financial point of view. Mr. Mercer was elected Pres. and Mr. Lucius Church member of the Ex. Com. for the unexpired terms.

The HESPERIAN STUDENT Ass. met on the 7th to consider an amendment presented a week before. The amendment was one making all who might be subscribers, voters in the Ass., and none others. The meeting was decidedly lively. The amendment was championed by the Bus. Man. and Treasurer, and was evidently proposed for the sole purpose of improving the finances of the paper. But many of the members were fully persuaded they could see a political nigger in the wood-pile, and after a sharp debate the amendment was lost.

"A Mastodonsaurus Jaegeri went out foraging one morning during the Triassic period. After whetting his teeth on a Rhamphoryneus Bucklan, and tickling his stomach with a few Podozamites Lanceolati he drove his incisors into an innocent Myrimecobius fasciatus, and then returned to the arms of Morpheus on a bed of Coniophtherus Murryanna

"Well what further does the author say?"

Two students of an eastern college were walking together the other day when a whirlwind seized one, carried him to a height of several hundred feet and mangled his body in a frightful manner by dashing him against a distillery chimney, while the other escaped unharmed. On investigation it was discovered that the latter was a subscriber to his college paper, while the other was not.

The Cadets had a big time at the Grant reception. They had a special car provided for them and went in state. They were taken in charge by Company H upon their arrival at Omaha, and were shown every attention during their stay. They were assigned the place of honor as escort to General Grant and had the satisfaction of sticking their bayonets into horses, and laying the cold steel against the faces of unsuspecting parties who happened in the way. Col. Chase gave them a supper in the evening. It was generally admitted that the Cadets performed their evolutions more skilfully than any of the militia companies that participated in the reception.

On the evening of Nov. 10th a party of young people, including the members of the Senior Class, made a descent upon Mr. H. K. Wolfe who was guilty of attain
