

that the question is defunct, but the ladies assure them that it will prove an unquiet corpse.

Go to the Book Store of Fox & Struve for your Christmas Goods.

It will pay you to see the display of goods at the Little Store on 11th St. Novelties in fresh stylish goods at unusually low prices are the low prices

"I don't care much since he isn't badly hurt, for he thought it was so careless of me when I did it." Was it an idle fancy or did we hear something of the kind the morning the Chancellor drove his wagon against the gate-post and got spilled out.

Beautiful snow! as soft and pure
As the white of the maiden's cheek secure
Mid the damask some body else!

He didn't mean originally to end the line that way, but the old man came in with a shovel and wanted him to clear a walk out to the gate.

The Chancellor was thrown from his wagon several days ago by striking a post while entering the University yard. He struck upon his face, bruising it somewhat and severely wrenching his neck. The cold weather conspired with the injury to cause him considerable inconvenience for a few days.

The Union will be officered next term by the following individuals; B. C. Arnold presides; his election was unanimous. Miss Holbrook is Vice. Pres.; Miss Slater, Critic; Kate G. Hall, Secretary; Miss Holmes, Treasury; Historian, C. E. Stratton Cor. Sec., B. F. Lorange; Sergeant-at-arms, N. Z. Snell.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing term in the Palladian Society. Miss Mattie Treeman was elected Pres. by acclamation. Mr. Keim and Mr. McKesson tied on first vote for Vice. Pres. and McKesson was then elected by acclamation. I. M. Snell was elected Critic; J. H. Silvernail keeps the minutes, and Clyde Barnard holds the cash next term.

Miss Lillian White was elected Corresponding Secretary. According to custom the outgoing Pres. H. K. Wolfe was elected Usher.

On the evening of the 16th there was a reunion of all who have boarded at the Dormitory during the past term. The guests gathered at 6 o'clock and partook of an excellent supper. They then adjourned to the parlors and passed the evening with conversation, music, charades, readings and other amusements, after which they adjourned in high good humor.

The Palladians have introduced a new feature into their programme in the form of a class debate. The question was debated on the evening of the 5th by the Juniors on the one side, led by Miss Fairfield and Mr. Unangst, and on the other side by the Sophmores led by Mr. Davis, and the Freshmen headed by Mr. Chase. The debate was exceedingly lively and long.

"The Royal Path of Life" would be a nice present to a friend.

The Holidays are coming on, and the students before going from the city will want to find the best assortment of warm and neat Gloves, fine Neckware, and all kinds of Fancy Goods, suitable for Christmas presents. Such a supply can be found at the popular Store of S. Schwab. His latest supplies have been bought with a view to keeping up his usual standard of first class Goods at bottom prices.

Prof. McMillan has procured for his room three fine busts, representing Demosthenes, Sophocles and Socrates. That of Demosthenes is especially fine. It is a fac simile of the one in the Vatican, supposed to have been executed from the subject himself, and hence to accurately represent the appearance of the great orator. Prof. Church's room is embellished by a bust of Virgil. Cicero was sent for but for some reason failed to put in appearance.