We print below the appointments in the military department for the coming year. The officers of the cadet battalion are of a younger age than usual this year, but are all well up in the manual and will, perhaps, make up in zeal what they lack in experience. Two extra lieutenants have been commissioned, to act as adjutant and ordinance officer, a departure from the old roster. The membership of the two companies is large and it is expected that they will, when completely uniformed, make a gratifying appearance.

Professor Woodberry took a trip to Leadville, was sick but recuperated in Boston, last summer. Prof. McMillen and family visited in Rochester, N. Y. Prof. Aughey cracked rocks near Denver and is still missing. Prof. Emerson and family spent the summer in Omaha. Chancellor Fairfield traveled over Ohio and Michigan. Prof. Hitchcock was a his old place of residence Galesburg. Lieut. Webster skimmed along the shore of the Atlantic. Professors Church, Howard, Little, Collin, Culbertson, and Miss Smith alone remained at the seat of war.

"Hip, hip!"

Up the parade and back again.

A very fine looking body of men.

The Tower Door.

Freshies exploring everywhere,
And Juniors seeking purer air,
And Sophs who would "astronomize,"
And Seniors, too, with mild surprise,
When first they found the tower door nailed
Swore it a shame, but always failed,
Despite blank keys and awful swears,
To find an outlet up those stairs.
Now, as a brook whose course is turned,
These youths but other haunts have learned.
The Freshman seeks the dewy campus,
(Though Juniors know it is as damp as
Our Chapel prayers), still sometimes they,
Attracted by the—moonlight, stray
Along its paths, if fair our guess is,
In company with Junioressees.
The Senior, waiting until Friday,
Escorts his dulce to society,
And after, with her approbation,
Explains the rules of osculation.
But Sophos, wisest of them all,
Finds some dark window in the hall,
And seated by the bell-rope, late,
Enjoys his happy tete-a-tete.

Personalia.

D. L. Clark is employed in the telephone exchange.

Miss O'Pelt is in Noble's Photographic studio.

Will Gregg is in hardware house at St Paul, Minn.

Prof. Collin has brought his family to Lincoln from Iowa.

C. V. Cole is City editor of the Lincoln DAILY GLOBE.

Miss Lillian White will not be in school this semester.

John Silvernail, 81, is a trusted Union Pacific civil engineer.

Lawrence Fossler '81, is studying in the south of Germany.

Miss Lena Marshall summered at Twin Lakes, Wisconsin.

Miss Cleve Lamb had her vacation visit in Boston and the east.

Fred Stadleman is at Fairbault, Minn. in Shattuck academy.

Miss Luna Dundy visited Lake Minnetonka one month of the summer.

Charley Hathaway is, we are pained to say, still very ill at home.

Bradley L. Burr, '83, was with a B. & M. surveying party during the summer.

Lawrence Bruner is in the employ of the Smithsonian, at a handsome salary.

Miss Belle Kimball was nearly all summer at a resort near New Bedford, Msas.

Miss Lula Edwards has left for California, where her parents will in the future reside.

Misses Flora Frest, Ada Huff, Kate Jones, and Maude Mullon are once more with us.

Miss Mary Fairfield is once again in blooming health, after a complicated and lingering illness.

Professor B. B. Davis has been assigned the Physical Geography: it's the biggest book in school.

Sherman Canfield is running an eating house out on the U. P. road. Sherm knows all about eating houses.

Miss Effa Chase spent the summer delightfully, visiting in Vermont, New York, and the seaside.

Prof. Emerson has rented his cottage and taken rooms preparatory to solitary existence the coming winter.

Miss Richardson's class in painting and drawing are larger than ever this year. Her studio is quite an art gallery.

J. C. F. McKesson has sold his DAILY TIMES, and sought once more the classic shades. He expects to graduate next spring.

John Hartman, '83, is topographer in a U. P. surveying party at the upper waters of the Missouri. He will be there all winter.

A. J. Calvert was an extensive traveler in Texas, Arkansas, Missouri, and the southern states. He's in school now, though.

Prof. Culbertson was on a stock committee at the State Fair and then went down to Kansas for a week. Prof. Thompson heard his classes.

Clark and Marsh kept a refreshment stand at the G. A. R. reunion and just swept in the nickles. They carry bank books now and draw their checks on the First National.

Mrs. Harrington Emerson will soon leave with her son for several months stay in Munich, Bavaria, where Prof. Emerson's father resides. She will be accompanied by her brother-in-law.

Miss Maude Mullon has been elected Vice-President of of the Palladian society to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Miss Nellie West. The president and vice-president will alternate admirably.

Semester Statistics.

There are 66 students in the college proper this semester, of which there are 5 Seniors, 10 Juniors, 18 Sophomores, 16 Freshmen, and 17 Special. This is a large increase on any previous year.

Here's an item. Of the college students Prof. Howard has 39 in his classes, Hitchcock has 32, Emerson and Aughey 29 each, Woodberry 27, Collin 27, the Chancellor 20, Church and McMillan each 16. This seems to show that history,
