

Exchange Bic-a-Brac.

The Crescent is the best high school ex.

Our Roman Catholic exchange tells of raffling off a watch for the benefit of the library at St. Vincent's College. Its surely a saintly scheme for getting money.

The Occident contains too much talk about wine, dancing, sprees, etc. Its review of the forthcoming annual is an appetizing production.

The K. M. I. News is the cheapest college paper we know of, being "free to all to whom it is sent." It is, however, too good a publication to be printed on such poor paper and in newspaper form.

The Tabor Echo, our semi-monthly exchange from just across the Missouri publishes a contest oration on Lady Macbeth that is much above the average of such productions. The Echo's nine brand new editors seem inclined to push things and we hope they will succeed.

The Morrin College Review for March was freighted with a couple of contributions on the subject of higher education for women. This is well, for though the question is old it must be discussed till it is settled right—that is till it is settled as the western colleges have already settled it.

The Carthaginian seems to be a very thriving magazine but we learn from its editorials that the college from which it comes is hardly able to exist because of the lack of funds. We hope that they will "make the raffle" and be able for a long time to print their motto "Carthago non delenda est" with the non in the biggest capitals that space allows.

The Alabama University Monthly has an article entitled "Must the Classics Go?" another, "Does Geology Ignore a Creator?" and then caps the climax by trying to explain the hidden meaning of Poe's Raven. Verily the students of that University tremble before no subject, however knotty. The Monthly is in its eleventh volume and gives forty pages each month of very interesting matter.

It may be noticed that our ex. man is not as rabidly critical as he used to be and not so much so as many of his contemporaries. In fact the exchange column has almost run into a column of college notes. This has been done with malice of forethought, and simply indicates that we have tired of being so profoundly wise. If any one objects to our going out of the mops and taffy business—they can object.

The Rockford seminary is a completely feminine affair except a masculine teacher of painting and another of music. Further than this the teachers are all Misses so the institution must be a practical paradise. The Magazine published by the Puritan Union of that seminary is above the average of our exchanges though the locals sound like those that are usually written by ladies attending a one-sex close-communion institution.

The Badger of May 1st contains a synopsis of what seems to have been a very lively debate between two of the ladies societies in the Wisconsin University. We hope our ladies debating club will go and do likewise. But we do not hope that one of our literary societies will present a programme for a single evening's performance consisting of fourteen declamations and orations.

The old Barnes row on Eleventh street has gathered itself together and is now ambling off to the outskirts of the city to spend the remainder of its days in peace and quiet. The new hotel will be extended to the ally, filling up the left space vacant by the departed architectural eccentricity.

The excavation for the new Presbyterian church is well under way. It is located on the corner of M and thirteenth streets, about 150 feet from the Cathedral and not 40 feet from the new Congregational church. The Methodists are also erecting a $35,000 house of worship on one block from this corner. It looks to an outsider as though the religious portion of the city had become frightened and is huddling together for mutual protection.
