

Miss Levi enjoyed the pleasure of a visit from her parents last week.

Edward Leighton and L. D. Baylor have changed from the Academic to the Medical college this term.

Messrs. Guy Livingston and F. F. Almy were among those who enjoyed Saturday and Sunday at home.

Miss Edith Russel, '89, has returned to her home in Indiana and may not be with us again this year—for which we are sincerely sorry.

The Seniors are growing thin and haggard—it requires so much skill and attention to keep posted about the hour for political economy.

As an excuse for the poor appearance of the local page in the last issue we would say that the managing editor wrote most of it. (Joke.)

The Junior girl who left her gum sticking on the bottom of one of the chairs in Prof Sherman's room can have the same by calling at this office.

One of those perplexing and unsolvable questions has come up again, viz: How can an association with only seven members send ten delegates.

Fulmer's beard which was to preside over the Talmage school has now been put to better use, and will engineer the class of '87 the rest of the year.

Ernest A. Newton, a student of two years ago, and now the editor of a local paper in the southwestern part of the state, was here a short time ago.

Miss Hearne is at last permitted, after the death of one and the convalescence of another of her sick sisters, to assume charge of her school near Newton.

The irrepressible conflict has been squelched. The political economy class has been divided, and as Shakespeare would say, "All is quiet on the Salt."

There are rumors of a State College Base Ball Association. The idea is a good one and we would like to see it carried out. Step up, you interested, and show yourselves.

Religious meetings were held in the society halls Sunday afternoon, the Palladian being occupied by the delegates of the Y. W. C. A., the Union by those of the Y. M. C. A.

Miss Anna Keys, of Roca, visited her friends here last week. Miss Keys and Miss Kuhlman, also from Roca, were attending the meeting of the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A., held in this city.

Boys, the election is soon to be here! Be careful how you vote. Come down and let us give you a few pointers about the candidates. It is a very important thing and we feel that we can help you out.

Corner of Thirteenth and S.—Electric light, foot ball, Saturday night, debating club, chastisement, race, wrestling, boxing, awakened citizens, angry mothers, storming fathers, visit to city marshal, sequel!

Miss Edna Bullock who has been teaching a few miles from the city will soon close her work in that line. She expects to return to her work here, and has been keeping up some studies for which she hopes to get credit this term.

A great many students lose valuable time stopping and trying to find out what the sewerage people are trying to do all over town. We would suggest that Fritz be given an opportunity to lecture on "Our Sewerage System."

This paper is the champion of truth, whether it be pleasant or not. And so we wish to state to the trusting world that there are more students here now who use tobacco than at any time in the previous four years. Sad but nevertheless true.

It is said that a certain Mademoiselle, connected with certain well-known restaurant of this city makes some startling assertions about a certain University dignitary whom we should hardly believe would flirt. But then, we should not judge by appearances.

Scene—Doane College—recitation room. It was immediately after recitation. Our Ch— was visiting. The professor in charge had just finished hearing the class and approaching his visitor exclaimed, "By the way, you are a teacher too, are you not. Let me see; where do you teach?"

A student of one of our neighboring colleges at Hastings recently met with a sad accident while attempting to jump from a moving train, upon which he had lingered too long in bidding adieu to a friend; he missed his foothold and was thrown violently to the ground, gashing his face and head terribly.

They say that—

Never since the world began
Was ever seen by any man,
Not even by our friend Kathan,
Such insubordination.

A friend of ours who is very much inclined to make a confidant of us (how foolish!) remarked not long since that he had proved to his dissatisfaction that it makes little difference to some girls whether you tell them "what you think of them" or "how much you really think of them." Now we can scarcely withhold our sympathies from that mistreated fellow.

The Scientific students have at last taken a step in the right direction. In the organization of a scientific association among the two higher classes they will have a valuable aid to laboratory and field work. Discussing problems which are brought forward in class and by the leading scientists of the country, they can better keep abreast of the rapid progress of scientific investigation.

There has been no little stir occasioned by the announcement that John Green has a huge joke on someone, which he is saving against a rainy day. The farm boys, just like every one else we have seen lately, think the joke is on them. Well maybe it is, but John says that considering everything, their unsophisticated state, and the fact that he never had a joke on them anyhow, it wouldn't be best to risk a good tough one on hem just yet.

The Y. M. C. A. convention has come and gone. It is to be hoped that some good may result from it in our institution. This was a meeting for students and college men to show how the work ought to be done in colleges. What we want now is to go to work and act on the suggestions given us. There ought to be at least one hundred members of our association, and we can get them if we choose to seek for them. We know how now and let us do something!

At a meeting of the members of the Junior and Senior classes in the scientific course held in the chemical library Saturday, Nov. 6, a constitution and By-laws were adopted, forming the Scientific Club of the University of Nebraska, after which the following officers were elected: President, Elton Fulmer; Vice-Pres., Miss Flora Baker; Secretary, Miss Helen Aughey; Custodian, Anson H. Bigelow; Treasurer, F. W. Kramer. The president-elect then appointed as executive committee, J. R. Schofield, Miss Fannie Baker and C. W. Bigelow. Adjourned to meet Saturday, Nov. 20th at 3 p. m.

Guernsey Jones, son of Rev. J. A. Jones of this city is now a member of the Freshman class just beginning a course at the State University at Berkeley. The young man is a graduate of the Valejo High School, and the course followed
