

Charles A. Beach, formerly of the class of '89, is business manager of the Lincoln bureau of the Omaha Republican.

In the laboratory Marsland was overheard to say to a lady, "Can't you set a definite day?" What did he mean?

The workers in THE HESPERIAN office were overjoyed by receiving a most excellent cake from the Syracuse schoolma'ams.

Manu summa lacrimantia luminae tergit. Translation given by Harry Lord: He wiped his streaming eyes with his elbow.

Upwards of 100 volumes of works in modern languages and Sanscrit have recently been placed in the library by Professor Edgren.

A. G. Warner lectured before the local chatauqua circle at the Y. M. C. A. rooms, Wednesday evening, March 19, on "City Taxes."

Professor G. E. Barber will lecture at the Y. M. C. A. rooms Wednesday evening, April 2, on "Our Neighbors Across the Atlantic."

On the evening of the 20th several students visited the literary society at Roberts' school house in South Lincoln. They had a merry time.

Farmer says that the reason why he does not get up with the sun is because the Bible says "Woe unto them that rise up early in the morning."

The cadet band accompanied the ancient order of Hibernians to the B. M. depot while on their way to Tecumseh to celebrate St. Patrick's day.

'89.—Orien W. Fifer has resigned his position on the State Journal to take a position in the office of I. S. P. Weeks, chief engineer of the B. & M. R. R.

The faculty has voted to leave the register out of the forthcoming catalogue. It will come out, however, in another catalogue to be issued next fall.

All base ball players, or would be players, are requested to hand their names without delay to the committee, F. H. Woods, H. A. Reese, and C. B. Goodell.

Recently Professor Caldwell visited the high school at Ashland. He found the school in fair condition, and probably it will be accredited in the major course.

"O that mine enemy would write a book!" If the ancient individual who uttered this were living now, his refrain would be, "O that mine enemy were taking Dutch!"

A letter has been received from Kansas state university saying that they will be prepared to play the university baseball and tennis at the coming collegiate contest.

Professor Bessey said in chapel that Nebraska schools desire teachers of good timber. It has been suggested that probably he meant teachers who are better than sticks.

For some time Brooks, '92, has been the warm supporter of the Henry George policy, but he has recently declared himself to be in favor of the private ownership of Land.

Owing to the illness of his father Emory C. Hardy, '92, is compelled to leave school temporarily to look after his father's business. We hope and expect to see him back next fall.

The officers of the Palladian society for the spring term are as follows: Frank C. Taylor, president; Miss Beeson, vice-president; Charles M. Skiles, recording secretary; Harry Barber, corresponding secretary; Miss Jessie Goodell, music secretary; Miss Minnie DePue, critic; Ernest M. Pollard, historian, Edwin F. rmer, sergeant-at-arms.

Miss Nellie Fulmer of Gibbon, Neb., has been visiting for several days with her brother, Professor Elton Fulmer.

"Field Experiments for 1889" is the title of bulletin No. 12 of the agricultural experiment station. Jared G. Smith is the author.

Miss Kirker gave a card party on the evening of the 20th. The excitement of Nebraska's high five, and afterwards the keeping time to the delightful waltz made the hours pass rapidly and pleasantly.

P. J. Coleman, an old time member of '89, was in the city on the 16 ult. Joe took his degree of B. Ph. from the university of South Dakota last year and is at present studying law in Omaha.

Dr. F. S. Stein, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church has accepted the invitation to deliver the baccalaureate address next June. He was selected by a joint committee from the faculty and the senior class.

McCrosky and Rockhold chased all over town last Wednesday hunting up their friends from Neb. City while the "light of the senior class" was busily engaged showing them the city from the dome of the capitol.

"Well, sir! that girl in blue has just been following me all this afternoon," remarked a very prominent senior to a group of anxious looking students one day during the "schoolma'ams' convention."

The faculty has granted students the privilege of taking elective mathematics in the sophomore year, in place of some prescribed study to be made up afterwards on condition that the faculty passes on each case.

A Wesleyan professor recently overheard two prospective preachers discussing a recent examination in Bible study. One was lamenting his fate of flunking while the other was jubilant over his rapid pony ride.

We understand that the winning orator in the state contest, by chance, makes the same handkerchief gesture in the same part of his "Conservatism and Radicalism in Society," every time he delivers the oration.

Miss Green has been distributing among the students copies of the Gymnasium, a paper edited by a lady, and the only one of the kind published in the United States. Every student should read this excellent paper.

"Won't you stay to dinner, Mr. Rockhold?" "No, thank you," responded Mr. R. to a bewitching young schoolma'm from Neb. City. "Well, you will, won't you, Mr. Sayer?" Sayer complied. Rockhold has been kicking himself ever since.

The class of '93 have elected the following officers for the spring term: Miss Belta Cross, president; C. B. Goodell, vice president; Ralph E. Johnson, secretary; W. H. Sawyer, treasurer; Miss Jessie Goodell, historian; Paul Pizey, sergeant-at arms.

E. M. Pollard of the HESPERIAN editorial force hastened home before the close of school to attend a wedding. What part Earnest expected to take in the affair he would not say, but he told the boys before leaving that he was "going to kiss the bride."

Notwithstanding the inclement weather, Lieutenant Griffith says that he never saw the companies execute a better manual than at the last dress parade. He is also well pleased with the band, which is in excellent condition after its several changes last fall. The battalion commences with the spring term under most promising circumstances, and will doubtless do able work during the term.