IN AMUSEMENT LINES

Just imagine Corbett getting sick sometime and being unable to appear in "Gentleman Jack," Vincent's and Brady's "successful" comedy drama!

For Corbett in the play. From the rise of the curtain on the first act until time is called at the end of the fifth, it is Corbett—Corbett as a hero in white flannels, Corbett as a gentleman, Corbett as a gallant, Corbett as a banker, Corbett as a tremendous moral hero, and finally Corbett as Corbett.

If you are going to be a hero on the stage you might just as well do it up brown. That's the way Corbett does—and he makes $10,000 a year. Who breathes tender sentiment? Corbett. Who appears just in time to save Joe Blake from the bully, George Halliday? Corbett. Who declares like George Washington, "I did it" to save his old father who is accused of theft? Corbett? Who slaps the face of the "champion boxer of England"? Corbett? Who is loved by everybody on the stage except George? Corbett. And finally who wins the championship of the world in the last act by lifting his hand and knocking down Charles Twitchell? Corbett.

Corbett has a corner on heroism and virtue. He fairly wallows in them.

Perhaps there are some people in Lincoln who are interested in high art and who did not see "Gentleman Jack."

You've seen plays where every once in a while somebody exclaims, "Oh, my God!" where there is a villain with a dark complexion who eventually appears in a dress suit and a silk tie, and calmly smokes a cigarette while the orchestra plays slow music; where there is some beautiful sentiment about a mother's love one minute and some kind of a break down the next; where there is a most magnificently thrilling climax at the end of every act—when the hero shows up in time to say "I do" with a majestic wave of the hand, or where he saves somebody from the denunciation now grows just before the curtain falls on the awful scene. Well, that the kind of a play "Gentleman Jack" is, and in its own particular line it is, to use a technical phrase, "a screamer."

By the way, why do people always say "Oh, my God," in plays of this sort? You see this in some French novels on every other page, but you never hear it in real life oftener than once in a thousand years. And why are villains always dark? Why doesn't somebody give us a blond villain? There was one terrible omission in "Gentleman Jack." Everybody noticed it and disappointment rolled down the cheeks of the people in the auditorium in great regretful chunks.

The poor woman in a long, gray cloak which she clutches nervously, and who rushes to the center of the stage and plants herself under a small private snow storm, and finally sinks to the floor with a d—l—s—g—t—d. It was a great mistake not to have brought her out—she was certainly there—that's where she lives. Corbett could have stopped the snowstorm and placed his arm around the gray cloak and waved his hand with most telling effect. Everybody would have applauded.

But the play is a long way ahead of "Honest Hearts and Willing Hands" and other concoctions introduced to the public by the Honorable J. Lawrence Sullivan. Corbett as an actor is a very Sullivan's superior as he is as a fighter. He is a good looking young man; he is not awkward, and he shows some signs of intelligence. There are a good many worse actors than the champion. There are two or three clever people in the company. Joe Blake is well done, Mr. French as Marcy Splash and later as a specialist pleased the crowd. Mr. Murray's Mr. Halliday was good. Miss Dagmar was much admired. Her warbling was one of the best features of the entertainment.

Corbett in the scene showing the training quarters, punched the bag until the gallery yelled with delight. The fight in the last act was a little tame. The champion dodged Donaldson's blows and the latter gracefully submitted to a couple of knock-downs. But for a warm night it was a pretty fair exhibition. It was very brief.

The Calhoun Opera Co. presented "Said Pasha" at the Lansing Monday night to a fair sized house. This company has an excellent chorus and some clever people among the principals. Some of the latter make a very good appearance but can't sing, while others sing very well but can't act. The entire company was characterized by a lack of animation at Monday night's performance. But judged by the seven-fifty cent standard, the entertainment was a decided success. The comedians were a little weak. Alexander Thompson did some good work as "Said Pasha" and Martin Pache, "Tenard," sang exceptionally well. Miss Millard and Miss Godfrey as "Serena" and "Ahl" were attractive.

Lincoln people are beginning to look to the annual Chautauqua assembly at Crete. The management has been very fortunate this year in securing Mr. Lorado Taft as lecturer upon the "Art of the World's Columbian Exposition." Mr. Taft, who is the most popular lecturer upon art subjects in Chicago—in the west—is the instructor in modeling and lecturer on the history of sculpture in the Chicago Art Institute and University Extension lectures for the University of Chicago. He is the sculptor of the horticultural building and is not only eminently qualified to present the subject before an audience in a masterly way, but more than that, he is a pleasing speaker. His engagement at Crete will be for two evenings only, and both lectures will be superbly illustrated by stereopticon views. The first which will be upon the architecture of the white city will touch upon architectural styles as suggested by exposition buildings, upon world's fairs in general and upon the new problems in exposition building, and will dwell in particular upon the general arrangement of the exposition and the individual buildings with their adaptation to special requirements. The second lecture, illustrated by over 100 stereopticon views will deal with the decorations of the building and the work of American sculptors. Mr. Taft is a graduate of the Illinois State University, and of the Ecole des Beaux-Arts of Paris. As a lecturer upon art subjects he has been unusually successful, having probably three times as many appointments during the past year as any other lecturer. His views and interpretations give one the best possible comprehension of the exposition.

The Grand Rapids (Mich.) Leader has this to say regarding the performance of Sells & Renfrow's circus which came to Lincoln June 28. "It was a very large crowd that attended the circus performance given by Messrs. Sells & Renfrow last evening. Fully 3,500 people occupied the seats and filled every portion of the main tent and departed at the close of the entertainment well satisfied with the exhibition they had witnessed. The character of the entire show from beginning to end, in every department, is pleasing and above reproach. Mr. Renfrow, who is a citizen of Grand Rapids and well known here, and his associate, Wm. Sells, the renowned rider and showman, are both gentlemen of pleasing personality and honorable business methods, and they have surrounded themselves with a corps of employees who by their courteous treatment of visitors and general excellent deportment, are a credit to the establishment and add materially to its popularity. Of the performance itself nothing but words of praise can be uttered. It is from start to finish far beyond the ordinary circus and in quality is the peer of any in the land."

The bathing season at Burlington Beach commenced Friday, and notwithstanding the fact that the weather was slightly cool, a large number of people availed themselves of the splendid bathing privileges of the beach. Yesterday was hot and the beach was thronged and a tremendous rush is expected today. The bathing beach is in fine condition and there is every possible convenience for bathers. There are bathing suits for everybody. Sailing and rowing are becoming more popular every day. The boats are trim and the lake is all that can be desired. The big steamer makes regular trips, and in the afternoon and evenings there is an abundance of first-class music. If you want to get cool and enjoy yourself go to Burlington Beach.

Today at Cushman park there will be a Platte de la Cee Under picnic. Arrangements have been made with the railroad companies for excursions from a number of near by points and a big crowd is expected. Trains leave the Burlington depot every few minutes during the afternoon and early evening. The park can also be reached by street car via the Western Normal line and Cushman. There is always a breeze at Cushman and the facilities for enjoyment are unsurpassed. It is one of the prettiest parks in the state. The general public will be cordially welcomed at the big picnic today. Music afternoon and evening.

The old settlers picnic at Lincoln park Thursday, was a most successful and enjoyable affair. Friday evening the Lincoln light infantry company gave a grand ball in the theatre. Special arrangements have been made for today at Lincoln park. Manager Hickey has succeeded in securing the wonderful Mexican ladder balancer for two performances, commencing at 3 and 5 o'clock p. m. These exhibitions will be really remarkable and are well worth a visit to the park. There will be music as usual, afternoon and evening, and everybody is assured a pleasant time. There is everything for comfort at Lincoln park. It is just the place to spend a hot day or night, and it is very easy of access. Last night there was a largely attended dance given by Seidel. Next Wednesday there will be a picnic and dancing party, given by a company of young people. Thursday the Red Men will give a big picnic, and Friday the Lansing theatre orchestra will give a dance. Next Saturday will be devoted to the Y. M. C. A. tournament, and there will be an attractive program; all the receipts being turned over to the association.

"Bohemian Girl" and "Fatiniza" were also given pleasing presentations. The company had to contend with the extreme heat, but it played to fair business notwithstanding.

Lindsey's New Billiard Parlor. Within the borders of this fair city we have today one of the finest billiard parlors in the entire great west and for this elegant resort the people of Lincoln are indebted to L. L. Lindsey who up to a few weeks ago has been one of Lincoln's most popular restaurateurs. Last week his beautiful cafe next to the Windsor hotel was transformed into what will be termed a most delightful pleasure resort. Five magnificent new billiard tables, together with all the accessories needed to fulfill the requirements of a first-class place. The entire outfit, which consists of three billiard and two pool tables, is of the celebrated Brunswick-Balke-Coller company's make, which in itself insures superior qualifications and popularity. Each table is made of antique oak, of the very latest design, the carving being particularly beautiful and effective.

Mr. Fred Bowland of Boston, late with the Capital billiard rooms, has been placed in charge and under his efficient management the new place will gain favor and patronage from the start. Mr. Bowland is an expert player and is now figuring on giving various exhibitions this fall, among them being a lively tournament which will doubtless attract the attention of all lovers of the cue. In fact, this resort is destined to be state headquarters for billiard players, and certainly no better or more luxurious place could be secured or ask for.

A Cure That Attracts Outsiders.

Few people realize what a curative resort Lincoln is getting to be and it is generally when we hear of what outsiders tell us of our scientific practitioners in the mysterious medical profession that we realize the extent of the good that is being accomplished right here at home. In conversation with Dr. T. O'Connor yesterday, that gentleman informed a COURIER representative that his practice both here and abroad was necessary to such proportions that it kept him busy day and night satisfying the demands of patients. The doctor makes a specialty of cancers and there is perhaps no other physician in the west that can point with more pride to his accomplishments in the past. "Why, right now," says the doctor, "beside my home work, I am treating a dozen or more patients from over this and adjoining states, who are afflicted with cancer in various forms." Being asked who some of the visitors are, the doctor gave the reporter the names of a few of them. Rev. Warren Standard of Geneva who is suffering from a cancer on the face is receiving treatment and within another week the divine will be sufficiently relieved to be able to go home. He is accompanied by his son, Rev. J. D. Standard.

Mrs. Margaret McNeal of Bloomington, Ill., mother of Hon. James McNeal treasurer of Seward county, Nebraska, is also being relieved of a severe cancer located on the breast. Mrs. McNeal was seen and had only the best of results to report. Mr. G. C. Havens, a former resident in the doctor's old home at Bushnell, Ill., but now a well-to-do business man of Friend, Neb., came to see Dr. O'Connor about three months ago to remedy a cancer on the lip. Mr. Havens was in the city this week enroute to the World's fair and stopped over long enough to see his physician. His cancer has entirely disappeared. Rev. J. C. Hammond of Keokuk is also here with a cancer which seriously affects his neck, and Mr. Joseph Redden, a wealthy farmer near Vesta, Neb., troubled with cancer is another seeker of relief. There are several more cancer patients that Dr. O'Connor is treating and if any one has any doubts as to his efficient manner of treating these and other diseases, they need but call and see hundreds of letters from cured patients to be satisfied of the good work that has been accomplished. Dr. O'Connor's office is at 124 G O street where he will be pleased to have all interested persons call at any time.

THE WORLD'S FAIR RUSH.

What the Railroads Are Doing to Transport the Crowds to Chicago.

Travel to and from the World's fair from Lincoln has been heavier this week than ever, and from now on the multitude will move in masses to see the "white city" and the "greatest show on earth." The railroads, since making the desired reduction in rates, have had about all they could handle, yet they have generally taken good care of all applicants for transportation. Speaking of the World's fair traffic yesterday, Mr. Ziemer said, "The Burlington has never been so well equipped for a rush as a present. We have taken due precaution and now we're right in it and hauling fully 80 per cent of the Chicago business. We have several advantages over all competition here in the matter of equipment. You see Lincoln is a division station on our line and we always keep a surplus of coaches here. In case of a rush its an easy matter to add one or a dozen extras to any train and it sends our passengers out in comfortable style. Then too, our trains leave most conveniently. Take, for instance, the flyer; it leaves here at 2:25 p. m., after crossing the river the diner is put on and the next morning you're in Chicago for breakfast. Then we have another fine train leaving here at 10:15 p. m. on which you get a fine breakfast near Burlington and eat dinner on the World's fair grounds, if you choose. If either of these trains don't catch the crowds we've got several more that leave at other hours to suit all tastes and desires. The fact is, if the people know a good thing when they see it, they'll all go via the Burlington, and you can tell this to the thousands of readers of your new SUNDAY MORNING COURIER." Mr. Ziemer generally knows about what he speaks so we give it as it was given us.
