MANY YEARS AGO.

Files of The Journal, July 15, 1874.

The U. S. land commissioner has recently decided that a double house built on the dividing line between homesteads, is a residence within the meaning of the homestead law.

Countless millions of grasshoppers are doing up their work in the northwestern counties of Iowa, and farmers hereabouts say that the grasshoppers are working on the corn crop in this county.

Hon. A. J. Arnold has become quite enthusiastic over his experiment in stocking a certain pond hereabouts with black bass, and now believes if he can place himself in the right pecuniary shape to make a fish pond on his own land, he will stock it, and raise his own salmon, bass and trout. Won't that be nice? Second the motion.

The present season, until the hot and dry weather set in about three weeks since, never presented a fairer prospect in Nebraska for crops, but the past three weeks of unexampled extreme hot weather is telling on all crops not fully matured. A great deal of the early sown wheat in Platte county, we have reason to believe, will not suffer materially from the drought, and will yield nearly an average crop.

Walker

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Swanson, Sunday morning, July 5th, a son.

Mr. and Mrs. John Swanson and family visited at Alfred Olson's Sunday.

Eimer Nelson, who went to Oakdale to spend the 4th with friends, got his foot hurt in some way on the train. He was taken to Oakdale and had part of his foot amputated.

You Columbus fellows that want any potatoes picked up this fall better come up here to Walker township and we will learn you how to pick up potatoes, being that Oliver Swanson, son of ex-supervisor John Swanson, took first prize in the potato race at Columbus the 4th.

The glorious 4th of July was spent here at home without any serious accidents. Perhaps the largest crowd of young people were gathered at John Christensen's grove, five miles southwest of Lindsay. On the program was a ball game between the L. G. and H. L. The game stood 7 to 9 in favor of the Looking Glass. The tug of war between the Seeds and Dains was a tie.

E. A. Gerrard, F. A. Read and L. Franklin of Monroe were in the city Wednesday interest of the petition for a new township, which was up before the county board.

ELLIOTT, SPIEGE AND GO.

For the second time within a year the massive dam which was being constructed by C. A. Stitzer at Ericson was destroyed last week. Last summer, while the dam was nearing completion, it gave way before a rush of water occasioned by a cloudburst which came in the night and did its destructive work before the flood-gates could be opened. Undismayed, Mr. Stitzer resolved to try again. He was assured by expert engineers that the plan was feasible and that a dam could be built that would be impregnable to any flood by a special adjustment of flood-gates. Money for the enterprise was raised by selling lots for summer cottages on the shores of the lake, and it seemed that his plan for making Ericson a popular fishing and hunting resort would bear fruit. It was certain that sportsmen from all over the state would be attracted and it seemed that Nebraska would have one good live summer resort. But the flood which swept down the valley last week annihilated Mr. Stitzer's plans and hopes, the destruction being as complete as in the former case.

Paul, the 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Louke, living on the Nichols place, three miles east of town, was drowned Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the small lake on the Babcock place. There was a party of young people at the latter place and Paul started to wade down into the pond, which was about fifty feet long and twenty feet wide, and fourteen feet deep in the center. He had gone but a little ways when he slipped and went in over his head. The other members of the crowd attempted to rescue him, and his brother finally managed to get hold of him, but was unable to retain his grip and Miss Elsie Jaeggi, who had hold of the brother's hand, pulled him out after he had gone under. The funeral was held Wednesday at 10 a. m. from the house, and from the German Lutheran church on Shell Creek at 12 o'clock. Rev. Grauanhorst conducting the service and burial was in the church cemetery.

Col. Frank Simms tells a graphic story of his experience with a mad bull while out fishing one day last week, just south of the city. It seems that the animal considered the Colonel as a trespasser on his domain, and proceeded to inform him with hair-raising bellowing, pawing up the earth, and other "scrappy" signs, that he had better move on. The Colonel made a bluff at calling the argument with what fighting implements were handy, but when the animal charged down the bank with blood in his eye, the Colonel gave an exhibition of a quick get-away that astonished the whole herd of cattle.

Mrs. Theresa Stovick received a message Tuesday morning announcing the sudden death of her niece, Mrs. Fred Smith of Clarkson, Arkansas. The company completed their line into Denver the first of July and it was opened for business the sixth. As the result of the convention was a foregone conclusion, the bulletins were not in great demand, but the wires were in operation and regular bulletins transmitted.

The Sells-Floto circus did a very nice business here Friday, notwithstanding the fact that harvest is in full swing. Their performance was very satisfactory, and the show is a clean one throughout. The horses and other animals with the show came in for much praise, which they certainly deserved, being the finest string of show stock seen in this city in recent years.

The county board is in session this week and one of the important questions they have up before them is the proposition to establish a new precinct of the portions of Monroe and Last Creek townships which were added to them on account of being on the north side of the Loup river, which includes everything south of town Seventeen in those precincts. The petition which is signed by 135 of the tax payers in the district affected, asks that two polling places be established in the newly created township. Supervisor Pollard is presenting the matter to the board and is favorable toward it. It is proposed to name the new precinct O. o. noe, as the county clerk has been requested to by resolution, to ascertain from the state auditor whether there is another township by that name in the state; and it will probably be added to district 4, as the larger number of the present residents of the proposed township now live in that district.

Flour Mill at Genoa Burned.

Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock the Fonda flouring mill at Genoa was burned to the ground and head miller, S. T. Christie, was burned to death. The fire is supposed to have started from the explosion of a gasoline torch which Christie was using to light some boxes in the basement with. The night miller, Tolman, thought he heard a cry for help, and started for the basement, but by the time he reached it the smoke was coming up so fast that he could not go down, and he then tried to get to the telephone and summon assistance, but the fire again cut him off.
