W. W. JACOBS Twin Spirits

The "Terrace," consisting of eight gaunt houses, faced the sea, while the back rooms commanded a view of the ancient little town some half-mile distant. The beach, a waste of shingle, was desolate and bare except for a ruined bathing machine and a few pieces of linen drying in the winter sunshine. In the offing tiny steamers left a trail of smoke, while sailingcraft, their canvas glistening in the sun, slowly melted from the sight.

From the front windows of the third story of No. 1 Mrs. Cox. gazing out to sea, sighed softly. The season had been a bad one, and Mr. Cox had been even more troublesome than usual owing to tightness in the money market and the avowed preference of local publicans for cash transactions to assets in chalk and slate.

He had in his earlier days attempted to do a little work.

Mrs. Cox's meditations were disturbed by a knock at the front door. "Glad to see you, my dear," said the visitor, kissing her loudly.

"I've got my Uncle Joseph from London staying with us," continued the visitor, following her into the hall, "so I just got into the train and brought him down for a blow at the

A question on Mrs. Cox's lips died away as a very small man who had been hidden by his niece came into sight. "My Uncle Joseph," said Mrs. Berry: "Mr. Joseph Piper." she added. Mr. Piper shook hands, and after a performance on the door-mat, protracted by reason of a festoon of hemp. followed his hostess into the faded drawing-room.

"And Mr. Cox?" inquired Mrs. Berry, in a cold voice. Mrs. Cox shook her head. "He's been away this last three days," she said, flushing slightly. "Looking for work?" suggested the visitor.

Mrs. Cox nodded, and, placing the tips of her fingers together, fidgeted "Why, where's your marble clock?"

"I never pawned a clock," Piper said, stroking his little gray head. "I'll go on like this, my dear, till you're ruined," said the sympathetic Mrs. Berry, turning to her friend again: "what'll you do then?"

"Yes, I know," said Mrs. Cox. "I've had a bad season, too, and I'm so anxions about him in spite of it all. I can't sleep at nights for fearing that he's in some trouble. I'm sare I laid awake half last night crying."

"I might have known it was non-"Can't you get him to take the pledge,

"I couldn't insult him like that." said Mrs. Cox, with a shiver.

"What Cox wants is a shock," said Mrs. Berry; "you've dropped some crumbs on the carpet, uncle." Mr. Piper apologized and said he had got his eye on them, and would pick them up when he had finished and pick up his niece's at the same time to prevent her stooping.

'My Uncle Joseph," Said Mrs. Berry Mr. Joseph Piper," She Said.

"If I were you," said Mrs. Berry, emphatically, "I'd get behind with the rent or something and have the brokers in. He'd look rather astonished if he came home and saw a broker's man sitting in a chair-

"He'd look more astonished if he saw him sitting in a flower-pot," suggested the caustic Mr. Piper.

"i couldn't do that," said Mrs. Cox. "I coulda't stand the disgrace, even though I knew I could pay him out. As it is, Cox is always setting his fam-Apriety on Mrs. Cox's face was exaggerated on that of Mr. Piper.

man in for the rent," continued the tore his collar from the stud, over- there are two of us to look after

Peculiar Classifications

A Florida judge ruled that mullet were not fish, but birds, because they had gizzards. The customs officials in New York ruled that frogs were Tenn., has a thermometer fixed upon church prayer-meeting is a sure indifish and must pay duty as such. A its wall, whose highest point numbers cation of the spiritual condition of the game warden in Maine gained populits entire church membership, and church. larity by declaring oysters were game | whose mercury is set at the number in and so acquired jurisdiction. And attendance on the church prayernow comes a decision from the cus- meeting. There must be something tom-house that bagpipes are toys and startling about this to look at in black can not be classed as musical instru- and white if the church prayer-meet- up a quarrel. Well, that's the way ments for purposes of taxation.-Flori- ing is attended in proportion to its international peace is made and preda Times-Union.

I?" said Mr. Piper, in a voice more tiently as he could for the return of than tinged with sarcasm. "Yes," said his niece, "that's what put it into my head." "It's very kind of you, dear, and very kind of Mr. Piper," said Mrs. Cox, "but I couldn't think of it, I really couldn't." "Uncle would be delighted," said Mrs. Berry.

Mr. Piper sniffed even as she spoke "And I'll come for him the day after to-morrow," said Mrs. Berry. It was the old story of the stronge will: Mrs. Cox after a feeble stand gave way altogether.

but not at the sea.

Several days after the quiet of the house was broken by the return of its master, whose annoyance, when he found the drawing-room clock stolen and a man in possesion, was alarming in its vehemence. He lectured his wife severely on her mismanagement, and after some hesitation announced his intention of going through her books. Mrs. Cox gave them to him, and, armed with pen and ink and four square inches of pink blotting-paper, he performed feats of balancing which made him a very Blondin of finance. "I can't help it," said Mrs. Cox, wiping her eyes. "I'm sure I've done all I could to keep a home together. can't even raise money on anything." Mr. Cox. who had been glancing round the room again, looked up sharply.

"Why not?" he inquired. "The broker's man," said Mrs. Cox, nervously; "he's made an inventory of everything, and he holds us respon-

Mr. Piper, who was already very tired of his imprisonment, looked up curiously as he heard the door pushed open, and discovered an elderly gen tleman with an appearance of great stateliness staring at him. In the ordinary way he was one of the meekest of men, but the insolence of this stare was outrageous. Mr. Piper, opening his mild blue eyes wide, stared back. Whereupon Mr. Cox. fumbling in his vest pocket, found a pair of sense," retorted Mrs. Berry, hotly. folders, and putting them astride his nose, gazed at the pseudo-broker's man with crushing effect.

"Where is your warrant or order, or whatever you call it?" demanded

"I've complied with the law by showing it once," said Mr. Piper, bluffing, "and I'm not going to show it again ' "Vulture!" Cox cried, in a terrible

"Yes, sir," said the trembling Mr. Mr. Cox waved his hand towards the window. "Fly," he said, briefly. Mr. Piper tried to form his white lips into a smile, and his knees trembled beneath him. "Did you hear what I said?" demanded Mr. Cox. "What are you waiting for? If you don't fly cut of he window I'll throw you out."

"Don't touch me," screamed Mr Piper, retreating behind a table, "it's all a mistake. All a joke. I'm not a broker's man. Ha! ha!" "Eh?" said the other: "not broker's man? What are you, then?" In eager, trembling tones Mr. Piper told him, and, gathering confidence as he proceeded, related the conversation which had led up to his imposture. Mr. Cox listened in a dazed fashion, and as he concluded threw himself into a chair, and gave way to a terrible outburst of grief.

"The way I've worked for that woman," he said, brokenly, "to think it should come to this! The deceit of the thing; the wickedness of it. My heart is broken; I shall never be the same man again—never!

"I might frighten my wife," mused the amiable Mr. Cox; "it would be a lesson to her not to be deceitful again. And, by Jove. I'll get some money from her to escape with; I know she's got some, and if she hasn't she will have in a day or two. There's a little pub at Newstead, eight miles from here. where we could be as happy as fighting cocks with a fiver or two. And while we're there enjoying ourselves my wife'll be half out of her mind trying to account for your disappearance to Mrs. Berry." He patted the hesitating Mr. Piper on the back, and letting him out turned a couple of chairs and a small! things. Eh? What did you say?"

his wife.

He waited about 20 minutes, and then he heard a key turn in the door below and his wife's footsteps slowly mounting the stairs. By the time she reached the drawing-room his tableau was complete, and she fell back with a faint shrick at the frenzied figure which met her eyes.

"Hush," said the tragedian, putting his finger to his lips. "Henry, what is it?" cried Mrs. Cox.

"What is the matter?" "The broker's man," said her husband, in a thrilling whisper. "We had words-he-struck me. In a fit of fury I-I-choked him."

"Much?" inquired the bewildered "Much?" repeated Mr. Cox. frantically. "I've killed him and hidden the body. Now I must escape and fly the country."

The bewilderment on Mrs. Cox's face increased; she was trying to reconcile her husband's statement with a vision of a trim little figure which she had seen ten minutes before with its head tilted backwards studying the sign-post, and which she was now quite certain was Mr. Piper.

"I haven't got anything," asseverated Mrs. Cox. "It's no good looking like that, Henry, I can't make money." Mr. Cox's reply was interrupted by a loud knock at the hall door, which he was pleased to associate with the police. It gave him a fine opportunity for melodrama, in the midst of which his wife, rightly guessing that Mrs. Berry had returned according to arrangement, went to the door to admit

She followed her friend into the drawing-room, and having shaken hands with Mr. Cox, drew her handkerchief from her pocket and applied it to her eyes.

"She's told me all about it," she said, nodding at Mrs. Cox, "and it's worse than you think, much worse. It isn't a broker's man-it's my poor uncle, Joseph Piper."

"Your uncle!" repeated Mr. Cox, reeling back; "the broker's man your uncle?"

"See what your joking has led to." Cox said, at last. "I have got to be a wanderer over the face of the earth, all on account of your lokes."

"You get away," said Mrs. Berry, with a warning glance at her friend, and nodding to emphasize her words; "leave us some address to write to. and we must try and scrape £20 or £30 to send you."

"Thirty?" said Mr. Cox, hardly able to believe his ears. "Where are we to send the money?"

Mr. Cox affected to consider. "The White Horse, Newstead," he said at length, in a whisper; "better write it down."

For the first two days Messrs. Cox and Piper waited with exemplary patience for the remittance, the demands of the landlord, a man of coarse fiber, being met in the meantime by the latter gentleman from his own slender resources. They were both reasonable men, and knew from experience the difficulty of raising money at short notice; but on the fourth day, their funds being nearly exhausted an urgent telegram was dispatched to Mrs. Cox.

"Eh?" said Mr. Piper, in amaze, as he read the reply slow: "'No-need -send-money-Uncle-Joseph - has -come-back.-Berry.' What does it mean? Is she mad?"

Finally Mr. Cox, seized with a bright idea that the telegram had got altered in transmission, went off to the post office and dispatched another, which went straight to the heart of things: "Don't-understand--is - Uncle-Joseph-alive?"

The reply was: "Yes-smoking-in -drawing-room. "I'll go home and ask to see you," Cox said, fiercely; "that'll bring things to a head, I should think." "And she'll say I've gone back to London, perhaps," said Mr. Piper, gifted with sudden clearness of vision. 'You can't show her up unless you take me with you, and that'll show us up. That's her artfulness; that's Susan all over."

A reply came the following evening from Mrs. Berry herself. It was a long letter, and not only long, but badly written and crossed. It began with the weather, asked after Mr. Cox's health, and referred to the writer's; described with much minuteness a strange headache which had attacked Mrs. Cox, together with a long list of the remedies prescribed and the effects of each, and wound up in an out-of-the-way corner, in a vein of cherry optimism which reduced both readers to the verge of madness.

"Dear Uncle Joseph has quite recovered, and, in spite of a little nervousness-he was always rather timid-at meeting you again, has consented to go to the White Horse to satisfy you that he is alive. I dare say he will be with you as soon as this letter-perhaps help you to read it."

Mr. Piper held up his hand with a startled gesture for silence. The words dled away on his friend's lips as a familiar voice was heard in the passage, and the next moment Mrs. Berry entered the room and stood regarding them.

"I ran down by the same train to make sure you came, uncle," she remarked. "How long have you been

Mr. Piper moistened his lips and gazed wildly at Mr. Cox for guidance. "'Bout-bout five minutes," he stammered. Mrs. Berry smiled again.

"Ah, I've got another little surprise for you," she said, briskly. "Mrs. Cox was so upset at the idea of being alone while you were a wanderer over the through the garden, indicated the road. | face of the earth, that she and I have Then he returned to the drawing- gone into partnership. We have had Let uncle pretend to be a broker's room, and carefully rumpling his hair, a proper deed drawn up, so that now "I look like a broker's man, don't table, and sat down to wait as pa- "I was just thinking," said Mr. Cox.

> Church Prayer-Meeting A large church in Chattanooga, Christian churches. It is said that the Preserving the Peace. At the muzzle of a gun a Milwaukee man tried to force his wife to make membership as it is in many of our served.—Cleveland Leader.

Marks This Year's Fashionable Fan

A triangle of glitter and sparkle is what my lady beautiful will carry for young women in the fashion plates a fan this year. For on this, the have come to resemble the youthful daintiest accessory for her evening and dejected 'Arriets that Phil May toilet, the spangle is as sovereign as used to draw, the girl built on the elsewhere. fly that poises in her coffure to the ed jackets, the drooping plumes on the sparkle of her slipper, is almost the broad hats-all these are not of a nafans this year.

Of course, a white gauge fan orna- 5 feet 1 in her silk stockings. mented with a few spangles has been in the possession of every debutante and sweet girl graduate for the fan, instead of being strewn with spangles, is encrusted, frosted, overlaid with a thousand bits of gold or silver sparkle to match the sparkle on the aigrette and gown. Nor is it only the white gauze fan that is thus treated, but the black fan, the blue fan, the hand-painted fan, the little ivory cabinet toy fan for the collector, and the fan made of ail lace. Feather fans are being marked close onto half price, as they are hardly to be used at all. In one showcase among the fragile bits of ivory and spangle, aloof like a sulky peacock among little darting humming birds, reposes a huge plume fan with sticks of carven amber, marked from $50 to

Although the plume fans are rather out of date, Japanese feather fans are quite modish. One model which is shown at a Japanese shop has a pretty tea cup scene painted on a background of white feathers and the top fringed with peacock feathers.

In size, the fan has not changed much. It should be, if anything, a little larger than those shown last year. As to expense, you may have what you will from the fan of steel tailor-made compromises with the spangled gauze within the reach of mode are intended only for stout girls. any purse, to the creation of lace and I allow no stiff, hard finish cloths to mother-of-pearl, or the product of the artist's daintiest brush.

special case a model which is rapidly size. treasure trove of teak and ivory, ebony kind of feather ornament. and sandlewood, gathered from a hundred far-off shores. And as the indrawn demurely low, a tea rose thrust hand a sandalewood fan.

Gold or Silver Sparkle Touches That Make Prevailing Styles Suitable to the Stout

Now that the most modish of the short, square plan of the country farm-This perticipation in the fad for house feels that there is little chance glittering ornamentation which dom- for her to look her best in the gowns inates the style of the fine lady's cos- of the day. The sweeping, long lines tume, from the silver winged butter- of the empire dresses, the short-waistonly distinctively new thing about ture to show off the best points of the girl who weighs 162 and stands only

"I've taken on a man tailor," said dressmaker in a side street who has risen to the possession of her present last 20 years, but the newness is in fine establishment through her ability the omnipresence and the abundant to prescribe for her customers as well use of this ornament. This year the as to make smart gowns for them, "because there are so many women who have been driven by the styles of the winter to take up the tailor-made dresses. I have already advised many of my customers to do that."

Then she went on to explain how she had accomplished wonders with women who would have been little else' than ridiculous in the modes of the

"You know," she began, "I would not attempt to try to persuade any fat woman into the belief that she looked well in a short-waisted empire gown with a broad-brimmed hat. As those are indispensable features of the new syles of this year, how can a young girl be smart and yet ignore them? I'll tell you. She can become tailormade and have a distinction of appearance and a chic which all the empire clothes in town would not give her."

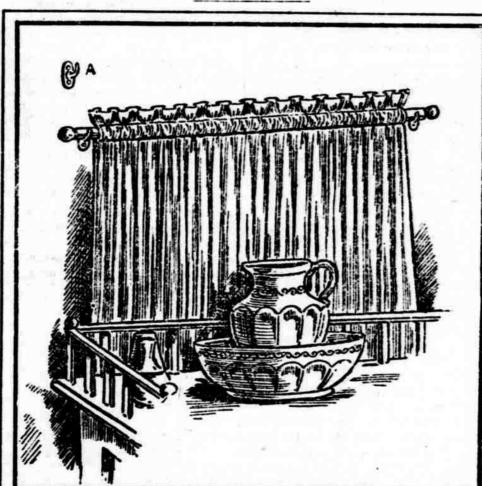

Among the dainty articles for the ailor-made woman are exquisite sheer linen shirtwaists, not much embroidered, but plaited and tucked finely. To these there are attached attractive collars and rich ties.

"The utmost sacrifice to chiffon that allow is a black satin belt. As these be used. Nor must anything with a very rough surface be employed, since Or the salesman may bring from a it tends to give also the impression of gaining in popularity—the sandal- "I insist on the tailor-made idea wood fan. And if you like mignonette even to the hats. Nothing is prettier better than tulips, you will find it as to go with such a suit than one of the attractive as the more elaborate pro- silk beaver alpines that the men are ductions of mother pearl, lace and now wearing in the country. They spangles. From the exquisite odor come from Vienna, have a long nap that rises to you, perhaps you will be and are made in green, black and able to call up a faint recollection of brown. They are not worn plain by some old sea captain's cabinet with its women, but with a wing or another

"So the fat girl need not worry about being out of the style. If she cense-like fragrance grows even more will consent to become tailor-made potent in its spell, perhaps it will in- rather than take to the present fashvoke for you a vision of grandmother lons, she can have the satisfaction of attired for the ball, hoopskirted, hair looking more distinguished in her own way than half the women who slavish in her bodice and fluttering in her ly copy what makes them look their worst."-Boston Herald.

Wash-Stand Drapery

OFR sketch illustrates a pretty and effective wash-stand drapery, and one that is inexpensively and easily made. To suggest dimensions would be useless, as the size and shape will, of course, depend upon the wash-stand it is intended for, but a few words describing the way in which it is constructed should be of service.

Thin bamboo can be bought very cheaply and in almost any length that may be required, and, in this instance the bamboo should be a little longer than the width of the wash-stand, and should be plugged at both ends with wood and then finished off by having two small brass balls screwed in, in the same manner that an ordinary bamboo curtain pole is treated. Two little brass hooks (illustrated by A) are nailed on to the wall to support either end of the cane. The drapery can then be arranged in the simple way shown in the sketch, with the cane passed through the upper part of it, or it can be arranged more elaborately if desired, in festoons, and decorated at intervals with small bows of ribbon. The color of the drapery should be carefully chosen to harmonize or contrast with the wali paper, and when this is well done it will help a great deal to make the decoration a success.

Ottoman silk is a favorite in mil-Skirts are narrow and trains positively skimpy. There will be an unusual demand for satin this year. The rage for things Oriental is quite as virulent as ever. The modern muff consists of star ing eyes and wagging tails.

School girls will wear immense flat hats of plush or beaver. Paris will make use of skunk as trimming and in small furs. Plum and prune color is a favorite in elaborate street suits. The one-eyelet pump will be worn in the house all this winter. Peacock tints, beautifully blended are the success of the hour. Most buttons now have a protecting rim of metal, bone or hora.

loyed than for years and years. Large-headed hairpins and barrettes will almost cover the head. The two-toned striped stockings are

Buttons of all sizes are more em-he most fashionable hosiery. French lingerie, brought over for brides, shows much less elaboration. Laces showing an intermingling of metal thread are very fashionable.

Blue Taking the Lead.

Blue is proclaimed in many quarters as likely to take the lead in color schemes. We are to be provided with all manner of fresh aspects of Japan. Nattier, gentian, moonlight, etc., together with a host of more ordinary, serviceable tones, not even excepting our old friend, navy, which is aiready scaring steadily ahead in a coarse. ribbed serge. An evening combination that has by no means exhausted itself as yet is blue and black, a rather deep shade of moonlight blue for preference, frequently thrown up over a foundation of silver tissue. With this it is possible to introduce the most delightfully barbaric touches of embroideries.

PROVED BY TIME.

No Fear of Any Further Trouble.

I could walk without a cane, and as I continued my health gradually returned. I was so grateful I made a public statement of my case, and now seven years have passed. I am still perfectly well." Sold by all dealers. 50c a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. WHAT WOULD HE HAVE SAID?

"Get up, Jack. You mustn't cry like a baby! You're quite a man now. You know if I fell down I shouldn't ery, I should merely say-" "Yes, I know, pa; but then-I go to

TORTURED SIX MONTHS

Sunday school-and you don't."

By Terrible Itching Eczema-Baby's Suffering Was Terrible - Soon Entirely Cured by Cuticura.

"Eczema appeared on my son's face. We went to a doctor who treated him for three months. Then he was so bad that his face and head were nothing but one sore and his ears looked as if they were going to fall off, so we tried another doctor for four months, the haby never getting any better. His hand and legs had big sores on them and the poor little fellow suffered so terribly that he could not sleep. After he had suffered six months we tried a set of the Cuticura Remedies and the first treatment let him sleep and rest well; in one week the sores were gone and in two months he had a clear face. Now he is two years and has never had eczema again. Mrs. Louis Leck, R. F. D. 3, San Antonio, Tex., any two of the other state papers. The Apr. 15, 1907."

THE TIE THAT BINDS (SOME). Affecting Reconciliation Between Two

Realiy Loving Hearts, There is a certain couple who decided to separate awhile ago. It seemed that they were not affinities, after all, and life together was unendurable, so the wife packed up her belongings and was preparing for a trip home. At the time of parting she picked up their little pet dog and tucked him under her arm, while her other managed the suit case.

"Why, you're not going to take Trixy!" exclaimed the husband. "Of course I am," she announced. couldn't live without him."

"Well, I can't let the little fellow go," he insisted. "And I simply won't leave him." she declared. So they argued for half an hour, at the end of which she decided to stay, and unpacked to cook dinner, at which Trixy was the guest of honor.

Why He Remembered. By some shuffling of the social cards the clergyman and the dog fancier were at the same afterdoon tea. The wandering talk unexpectedly resolved itself into the question. Who were the 12 sons of Jacob? Even the cleric with the reversed collar had forgotten, but the doggy man reeled off the names without error, from Reuben down to Benjamin. The clergyman looked surprised. "Oh, I'm not great shakes on Scripsome chap gave to a dozen pupples capture.

I'm willing to sell." Kicks.

Harry Payne Whitney the day his own and other noted horsemen's racers were shipped from London on the Minnehaha, said of the death of racing in New York:

a very sad tale of misfortune. I listened sympathetically." "'Ah, Joe,' said I, 'when a man is of mind. down, few hands are extended to him.

"A good many jockeys have been "The jockey as he chewed a straw, smiled bitterly. "'Few hands-yes-that's right,' he said, 'but think of the feet.' "

CAUSE AND EFFECT Good Digestion Follows Right Food.

Indigestion and the attendant discomforts of mind and body are certain to follow continued use of improper food. Those who are still young and heavy, greasy, rich food, finally cause loss of appetite and indigestion. Fortunately many are thoughtful enough to study themselves and note the principle of Cause and Effect in their daily food. A N. Y. young wom-robust are likely to overlook the fact that, as dropping water will wear a an writes her experience thus: "Sometime ago I had a lot of trouble from indigestion, caused by too rich food. I got so I was unable to digest scarcely anything, and medicines seemed useless. "A friend advised me to try Grape-Nuts food, praising it highly, and as a last resort I tried it. I am thankful to say that Grape-Nuts not only relieved me of my trouble, but built me up and strengthened my digestive organs so that I can now eat anything I desire. But I stick to Grape-Nuts."

"There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human East Indian Woman Writes Book. Miss Cornella Sorabii. a Parsee who was educated and took her deg at Oxford, has just published a book. She is legal adviser to the government was in the last stage of kidney trouble of India in cases in which the semana -lame, weak, run and the rights of women are concerned, and most of the material for sheleton. My back her book was collected in this way. She calls the book "Between the Twilights: Studies of Indian women

> The man who fails seldom gets any sympathy from the man who never has inaugurated an anti-gratuity policy for at least the current season. The management makes official statement thus: "The servants of the house receive full and satisfactory compensation for their services from the owners, and are neither permitted to accept nor do they expect to receives fes of any kind from guests."

Tipping Barred. A well known New York hostelry

The reason some people stay out of debt is that no one will let them get in.

A Novel Bottle.

In furnishing information concerning Calcutta's supply of the various "soft" drinks, Consul General William H. Michael refers as follows to an improved bottle in use:

This bottle is so blown as to contain in the neck a round glass stopper, which is forced upward by the gas in the bottle and holds the gas perfectly. An expert can remove half the contents of one of these bottles, and by a shake force the ball up into the neck, and thus preserve the remaining half for future use. It is an ingenious device, and every way superior to the old-style corks. In opening a bottle a wooden, cup-shaped device, which fits in the hollow of the hand and contains a short nipple, is placed over and against the glass ball stopper and pressed downward. This causes the ball to drop down into the neck of the bottle, prevents too rapid escape of gas and foam, and, if only part of the contents is required, the ball may be forced back into the position as stopper.

Nebraska's Meeting Place.

That's what people are now calling the city of Lincoln. Nearly all societies of every sort meet sometime during the year in Lincoln, and this gives The State Journal a peculiar interest to state readers, as it devotes more space to such meetings than recent teachers' association called together nearly 5,000 of the state teachers and every home that has a school child was interested in the reports of their doings. Especially was every member of a school board interested. Soon will come the great agricultural meetings and columns of facts will be printed in The Lincoln Journal that affect the earning power of every farmer. Then of course the legislature will be here for three months and surely you will be interested in what it will do in regard to regulating the liquer traffic and guaranteeing bank deposits. The Journal spends more money for and devotes more space to its legislative reports than any other paper. It's a Journal specialty. The Journal is not a city paper, it's a state paper, and its energies are pushed in the direction of dealing with state affairs. Whatever interests you as a taxpayer, interests The Journal and you will find the impartial, disinterested facts in its columns.

Putting It Up to the Querist.

The next letter the information edtor opened contained this question: "What is the correct pronunciation of 'irrefragable?'" "Consult your unabridged," he wrote, and savagely impaled both the query and answer on the copy book. For somebody has carried away the office dictionary. It was about midnight that the detectives arrived with their prisoner, and a Mr. Collins, the principal depositor in the bank, and, therefore, the ture," said the man with the fox ter- principal loser, was awakened at his riers, "but those are the names which home and informed by telephone of the

> He expressed his gratification and went back to bed. Shortly afterward he was aroused to receive another telephone message to the same effect, from a different This sort of thing continued to such an extent that Collins grew very hard hit. A jockey told me last week | wrathy; so that, when he answered the 'phone bell for the last time, he was in anything but an amiable frame

"Hello, Collins," came over the wire,

"Yes. What do you want?" "Collins, this is Deputy Sheriff Myers. We've caught that runaway receiver. Is there anything you'd like to have me do, personally, in the mat-

"Yes!" roared Collins, "hang up the receiver!"-Illustrated Sunday Maga-

The Jolly Fat Man.

When you meet a bow-legged man in the street, do you stop him and ask how it feels to walk that way? stone away at last, so will the use of |On being introduced to a man with a face like an inverted comic supplement, do you condole with him on being so homely? Do you recommend to the sallow man sitting next you In a car a tonic for his liver? At uncheon do yuo hint to the puffy-eyed. er-nosed stranger opposite you that ne ougt to get on the water wagon? Of course you don't! You would not be so impolite. You might hart their feelings.

But when you meet a fat man, it's lifferent. Everybody recognizes him as legitimate prey. He is a buttt for jokes, a subject for condolence, an object for advice. Even the man so thin that he does not know whether it is his back or hi sstomach that hurts him, takes it for granted that he is the fat man's ideal, and insists on giving him advice on how to reduce. Everyone imagines that the fat man must be unnappy because he weighs more than the average person. -Exchange.