NOT RE-ELECTED.

The Problem of Reorganization Already Causes Anxiety Among Leaders.

Washington.-With the convening of a new congress scarcely more than a month distant, the selection of the standing committees of the next house and particularly the award of chairmanship, has become the subject of keen speculation and a source of some anxiety.

The understanding among members generally is that the rule of the seniority will be followed in selecting chairmen, but there may be some exceptions. In cases in which the chairmen are re-elected, it is expected that they will be retained in their present places with the possible exception of been overwhelmed by a tidal wave and Mr. Fowler of New Jersey, chairman of the committee on banking and currency. There are, however, some important committees whose chairmen will not be members of the next house, and the selection of their successors is causing no little specula-

> Among these committees are those on the judiciary, where Mr. Jenkins of Wisconsin is chairman; interstate and foreign commerce, Colonel Hepburn, Iowa, as chairman; rivers and harbors, Senator-elect Burton, chair man, and postoffices and post roads, Mr. Overstreet of Indiana, chairman. These are four of the most important committees of the house and the chairmanship of each is highly prized.

The name of Representative De Alava S. Alexander of Buffalo, N. Y., is strongly mentioned in connection with two of these committees. He will be the ranking member of the committee on rivers and harbors after Chairman Burton of Ohio takes his seat in the senate. With the renewed agitation in the middle west for waterways improvement there has sprung up a keen desire to keep the chairmanship of the rivers and harbors committee in that territory. For this reason Mr. Alexander's appointment as chairman does not appeal to the western representation.

The interstate and foreign commerce and postoffice and post roads committees are being paired. Unless Colonel Hepburn of Iowa lesires to contest for his seat in the house, and the chairmanship of the committee on interstates and foreign commerce is left vacant on that account, there will be a big problem to be solved in that committee. The ranking member below Mr. Hepburn is James Sherman, vice presidentelect. Next comes Messrs. Wanger of Pennsylvania and Mann of Illinois. of the State Capital. Mill Levy to Be Definite.

Case of Frontier, chairman of the committee on universities and normal schools, introduced a bill embodying the ideas suggested by State Treasurer Brian in his annual report. The bill provides that instead of levying the one mill tax for universities as is now done without any reference to the amount involved, the state treasurer and state auditor shall place 95 per cent of the cash amount of the levy to the account of the university fund and that the school may not thereafter draw more than is in the treasury in its fund. One clause of the bill reads substantially as follows: "When the grand assessment roll of the state is made up each year the state auditor and the state treasurer shall place to the credit of the university fund 95 per cent of the face of the returns on the levy. They shall also place to the credit of the university fund $30,000 as the amount to be used from the delinquent taxes collected under the levies prior to the year 1909. Warrants not exceeding the amount of credits specified in this section shall be drawn by the auditor on certificates presented by the board of regents and the warrants shall be paid by the state treasurer." This change is suggested by the state treasurer and is endorsed by ex-

State Treasurer Mortensen to avoid a situation now full of trouble to the treasurer. As the law now stands the auditor is forced to draw warrants whenever the claim is presented by the board of regents no matter whether the collections on the university levy are behind the expenditures or not. The selection of Oldham was announced after Governor Shallenberger had summoned him to Lin coln and conferred with him upon the matter of a proceeding to determine whether the appointees of ex-Governor Sheldon or those of the present executive are entitled to seats upon the high bench. The appointment of Oldham is made for the term ending in January, 1910. It is his intention to institute a quo warranto suit in the supreme court attacking the official tenure of Judge J. R. Dean, whom Sheldon appointed for the same term and who is now acting as a member of the court. This will furnish the test case desired by Senator Ransom, the moving spirit in the legislative recanvass, Governor Shallenberger and other party leaders.

To Uncover Credits. Neils Johnson of Burt county has introduced a bill which is calculated to uncover credits that now escape taxation, such as mortgages and notes. He provides in his bill that all such credits dated before April 1 of each year must bear the stamp of the precinct assessor where the holder lives. All such credits which are not so stamped shall be non-collectible after June 30, unless the holder goes to the county assessor, pays the tax on the notes, plus 20 per cent penalty, and then secures the stamp of the assessor. Mr. Johnson has submitted his plan to various state officials and has their endorsement. State Treasurer Brian says it is essential to maintain equality of assessment, and aids in uncovering hidden credit. Attorney General Thompson says, "It will materially assist in securing the listing of all credits for taxation." W. H. Cowgill, railway commissioner, gives the bill his approval, and W. J. Bryan says of it: "I approve of the principle embodied in the measure."

If the farmers were to be protected from grasshoppers at last gave up thinking there was a and similar insect pests he pleaded that the game must be preserved. As a matter of fact, however, neither Judge Oldham nor Judge Sullivan will make any attempt to assert their rights until the court has made a decision in the proposed quo warranto proceedings.

Proposed Joint Guaranty Bill. The joint committee on banks and currency which is at work on a bill to guaranty bank deposits is said to have outlined its plans for a new bill which will be introduced as a joint committee bill.
