In spite of the annual and sometimes * more frequent occurrence "circus day." the majority of the people of this city are always ready to welcome the white tents and red wagons. Now that the date fixed for the appearance of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Combined Shows is almost here, the interest is becoming acute and thousands of people are planning to visit the shows. There are people who really object to the coming of a circus, especially one of the magnitude of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows, because of the tendency of the average citizen and countryman to make it a holiday. Such people, however, are born pessimists and undesirable citizens and should be suppressed. They forget that, while they may be able to attend and enjoy the lors. theater every week, most of those who attend a circus are only able to do so about once or twice a year. The latter is the amendment of all classes of people, because it is a bargain counter of amendments. Nowhere else can so much be seen for the same price and street jeweler. nowhere else can it be enjoyed with the same enthusiasm as in the circus throngs. This city is not immune from the circus fever, and especially is this true when the attraction has the magnetic drawing qualities of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows. They are without question in a class by themselves; no other tented enterprise can offer such a varied and interesting programme of novelties or display such a collection of trained wild animals as will be seen here under the tents of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Combined shows.
