MANY YEARS AGO.

Files of the Journal, October 25, 1876.

We had again on Thursday night one of those quiet, steady, soaking rains that have been so common this season. The depths of dust on Thursday evening were mud holes by Friday morning. "The great American desert" has certainly not been without moisture this season.

Three families of immigrants in covered wagons passed our office Monday. One of these wagons was a regular little house built on ladders—a chicken coop under the wagon. As they had a herd of stock with them, we suppose that they understand their business. Although unknown to us, we welcome them to the fertile lands and salubrious climate of Nebraska.

Prairie fires are in full view of this city night after night, during the dry weather, and they present a beautiful sight, but in their consequence sometimes thousands upon thousands of dollars worth of property and even life itself is swept away in the course of a few hours. Even the existence of severe state laws, and all the admonitions of the public press of the state, seem to have no effect in checking the setting out of those most dangerous fires. What next remains to be done to check it we know not, unless our legislature should declare it a crime punishable by a term of years confinement in the state prison.

Low Weinberger came near losing his life Wednesday afternoon while on a hunting trip west of town along the river. He, in company with Charles Brock and Deed Thorp, were hunting near Gardner. At the time the accident occurred, they were driving along the road shooting birds off the fence posts, and the butt of the gun, which was resting on the foot board of the wagon, probably jarred off and in some manner the trigger was struck, discharging the gun. The charge entered Weinberger's right breast, raging upward toward the shoulder. His vest pocket contained a note book, led pencils and cigars, and these, together with portions of his clothing, were forced into the wound. As soon as possible an automobile was telephoned for, but before it arrived a party came along in a machine and the wounded man was hurried to the hospital, where he was given surgical attention. At first it was thought his condition was critical, but present indications are that he will recover from his injury, although it will be some time.

At the adjourned meeting of the city council last Wednesday evening the specifications for the work of paving district No. 1 were submitted and the resolution embodying this adopted by the council. City Engineer Rosmer submitted an estimate for $2.05 per square yard for the paving, which will be cement. The council adjourned until Wednesday evening, October 27, at which time two important matters will be considered—one being the water extension bond ordinance which calls for $10,000 bonds, and the other will be to provide funds for the new city jail, a lot on which to locate it having been purchased a short time ago. In the water works matter, the ordinance, which will be placed on its second reading, will probably have the date of the election selected and inserted. There will also have to be a bond issued for the building of the city jail, as funds for that purpose are not available, and the proposition in connection with this will be submitted at the same time the water extension bonds are voted upon.

The presentation of "Lena Rivers," by Mary J. Holmes, which is underlined to be made here shortly and which is being awaited with considerable interest, will be notable for several reasons. In the first place, the presentation will make known what is absolutely the most successful dramatization of a popular book that the stage has known in many years. Proof of this is furnished in part by the fact that the book is now in its fiftieth year, having outlived thousands of works which have been given to the public at the time it was printed, and by the fact that its popularity seems to increase rather than diminish with time. A particularly strong and well balanced company will be seen in the play, which contains all the things which made "Lena Rivers" as a novel, so entertaining. North Theater Thursday, October 28.

This being headquarters for the democratic state committee, and the new law passed by the democratic legislature last winter requiring the filing of a statement of monies expended by the various committees, John C. Byrnes, chairman and acting treasurer of the democratic central committee, filed the following statement with County Clerk Graf Tuesday of last week, which was as follows: W. J. Bryan, $300; Eli A. Barns, $50; J. R. Deas, $100; J. G. Sullivan, $100; B. F. Good, $100; G. M. Hitchcock, $75; M. W. Baxter, $50; Jesse Gidley, $50; A. V. Johnson, $50; N. C. Abbott, $35; W. J. Furse, $35; S. L. Mains, $35; R. E. Stewart, $140; B. F. Johnson, $100; D. S. Woodward, $50; T. W. Smith, $50. P. J. Jackson, $30; collected by volunteers and turned over by C. M. Gruenther, $1,036, making a total of $2,372.75.

It would seem as if everyone who has read Mrs. Mary J. Holmes' delightful sketch of men, women and manners in the South, called "Lena Rivers" would want to see the work in dramatic shape. In dramatic shape it has been placed and its success has verged upon the extraordinary. This is not at all wonderful, for the story was exceedingly popular and the dramatization made of it is extremely clever and satisfying. Burton Nixon will present the play at North Theatre, Thursday, Oct. 28, giving it with a carefully selected cast and with a production that is all that could be desired. All of the characters of the book are in the play and so are the best of many good lines and odd sayings which caused the readers so much enjoyment.

Two incendiary fires were discovered in time Monday night, either one of which would have resulted in a bad blaze. The first one, in the wash house at the Henry residence, was discovered by C. C. Gray, who was passing in an auto, and upon investigation a number of old carpets were on fire and the blaze was bright enough to be seen through the windows of the building. The second one occurred an hour later, and it was in the stable owned by G. E. Frieb. Here coal oil had been used, but in some way the fire smothered itself. The barn contained two horses and considerable hay and would have made a very bad fire.

They were bound over to the November term of the district court and their bonds fixed at $1,000 each, which they were unable to furnish, and were again confined to the county jail to await trial.

The second case of polio myelitis in this city was placed under quarantine by City Physician Morrow last Wednesday. John Dibble, the six year old son of Rev. and Mrs. W. L. Dibble, is the patient, but his is reported to be a mild attack of the malady. Mr. Dibble was in Lincoln when the case was quarantined, and since his return has not been living at home.

"Little Johnny Jones" which comes to the North Theatre Saturday, Nov. 13, will introduce to local theatre goers many of the old favorites who have helped to make this musical melodrama, from the pen of Geo. M. Cohan, one of the big successes of the past two years. The advance sale of seats, which has been in progress for the past few days, presages the fact that things are going to be lively around the North Theatre during "Little Johnny Jones" visit.

After November first Phil Echols will become identified with the present firm of W. F. Schram & Co., having purchased an interest in the business. The deal was closed some time ago, but it was not known until this week. The advent of Mr. Echols into the firm will make a change in the name and it will probably be known as Schram & Echols.

Until a short time ago Phil was employed by the Columbus Mercantile Co. as book keeper, but resigned his position to engage in business for himself.

"Lena Rivers" has proved one of the season's successes, and apart from the dramatic excellence, the company interpreting it has had much to do with the hit it has made everywhere. The cast calls for more than ordinary skill and intelligence on the part of the artists, and the management has supplied a company meeting every requirement. "Lena Rivers" will be one of the early offerings at the North Theatre the date of its appearance in this city being Thursday Oct. 28.

Emil Komarek, of this city, who is a brakeman on the Burlington between this city and Lincoln, met with a very painful accident at Bellwood, Monday evening of this week. While switching in the yard at that place he stepped on a nail, which penetrated the bottom of his foot an inch. He made the round trip with the crew, however, but is now nursing a very sore foot and using a pair of crutches.

Rev. E. J. Ulmer, formerly pastor of the Baptist church of this city, but now located at Alexandria, Nebraska, arrived in the city Monday to attend the annual German Baptist conference, which is being held at the Shell Creek Baptist church, north of this city. Rev. Ulmer has been located at Alexandria for about two years—in fact, ever since he left Columbus.

E. A. Harms, editor of the Biene, moved into town this week, occupying the Wm. Speice property at Ninth and Lewis streets, which he has purchased.

Next Friday afternoon a novel entertainment has been arranged to take place at the race track. It will be an exhibition of military and high school riding and cattle driving contest for prizes. The riding exhibition will be given by August Volkman, an ex-officer of the German army, and it will be very interesting to all. There will be three cattle driving events, and the contestants will be local people, and liberal prizes have been hung up. These novel performances should attract a good crowd and the admission, which is 25 cents, being only nominal. The performance begins promptly at 3 o'clock.

Seventy-six dollars and fifty cents was the highest price paid for land at the referee sale of the Schmidt farm, just west of the Loup river railroad bridge, and H. A. Clarke was the purchaser of the first tract which consisted of eighty acres. The home place, consisting of 150 acres, was bought by Julius Ernst, and he paid $72.50 per acre. William Bucher bought the other eighty for $41 an acre, and the accretions—twenty-three acres, at $5.10 per acre. This land is located near the city, and those who are posted on such matters say that the price was very reasonable.

One of the most important cases ever before the federal court in Omaha is on trial this week—it being the case against the men who held up the Overland limited just out of Omaha a few months ago. A former Columbus man, Engineer Meiklejohn, who was engineer of the train that night, is one of the principal witnesses. He positively identified two of the suspects when placed on the stand during the first day of the trial. Mr. Meiklejohn was a resident of this city some years ago, when he was running an engine on the Union Pacific branches out of this city.

Last Saturday the second case of polio myelitis developed in the family of M. S. Fish, this time his seven year old son Chalmer being stricken. His case is much more severe than that of his younger brother, as he is helpless with the exception of his hands and arms, which he is able to move. Mr. Fish had expected to return home the first of this week, as the doctors expected to raise the quarantine at that time, but the second case, which is more serious than the first, will compel him to remain away much longer than he anticipated.

Thursday or Friday of this week County Clerk Graf will begin delivering the official and sample ballots to the various polling places in the county. In former years this required the services of two employees of the county clerk's office and four and one-half days' time to make the rounds. But last year an automobile was brought into service, and the result was so satisfactory that it will be used again this year and the time required will be two days, and it will only require one man to do the work.

Tuesday afternoon Police Judge O'Brien listened to the evidence in the case of May Flynn, a minor, who was up on a complaint filed by County Attorney Hensley, asking that she be sent to the industrial school for girls at Geneva, as she is in want of proper paternal care. After hearing the evidence the case was transferred to County Judge Ratterman's court for Wednesday afternoon, and it is quite probable, in view of the evidence submitted, that he will order her sent to the Geneva institution.

After November first Phil Echols will become identified with the present firm of W. F. Schram & Co., having purchased an interest in the business. The deal was closed some time ago, but it was not known until this week. The advent of Mr. Echols into the firm will make a change in the name and it will probably be known as Schram & Echols.

Some of the business to be taken up is the organization of the Bible classes; the appointment of the boys' cabinet; the appointment of the committeemen, and some arrangements for the state convention. Each boy should bring 10 cents to pay for his supper.

Evelyn Bargelt and her company of entertainers will appear Thursday evening Oct. 28th., as the first number of the Y. M. C. A. entertainment course. This will undoubtedly be an excellent entertainment. One good way of judging it is to find out what others say about it. A prominent publication of Ohio says about her: "Miss Evelyn Bargelt, reader and crayon artist, was perhaps the greatest hit of the evening; her clever crayon work and story telling at once placing her in the foremost ranks of artists in her line." Again the "State Center Enterprise" of Iowa says: "Miss Evelyn Bargelt, reader and cartoonist, was unsurpassed and her drawing was an evening's entertainment in itself. Her reading, 'The Heart of Old Hickory' was excellent and she was called to the platform for many encores." If you miss seeing the Bargelt entertainment, October 28th, you miss something good. Course tickets for the five entertainments are on sale at $1.00 to members and $1.50 to others.

The Cymos Club, a men's literary club of recent organization, is preparing to give a Halloween party Friday night, Oct. 29th, to young men and their ladies. Twenty-five cents and a lady friend will admit you to this party. Buy your ticket and make your date now for "Procrastination is the secret of failure." There will be plenty of entertainment and refreshments. Mr. Kienzel will give up his Friday evening gymnasium class and a committee will decorate the gymnasium in up-to-date Halloween style. The party will begin at 8:00 o'clock and stop at 12:00 o'clock. If you live in the city come to the Cymos Halloween party; if you live in the country, come; and they say that people who have been dead a long time often appear on Halloween, so if you are a "dead one," come. Have we left any out? If you don't live in the city nor in the country and if you are neither dead nor alive, come anyway for we don't want to slight any one. It costs you only twenty-five cents and the possible embarrassment of being gently "turned down" by some young lady who has already promised to come with some other fellow. But that's good for you for it teaches you to be spry.
