

THE CRETE ASSEMBLY.

An actor of mediocre ability can take the emotional roles if he has a good voice and a trick or two of the eyes. But it takes a man with leisure intellect and a peculiar temperament to be a comedian. Mr. Chas. Underhill, who will impersonate comic characters at the Crete chautauqua in July has devoted himself entirely to the sympathetic study of the delicate, classic comedy of Shakespeare, and the homely human comedy of Charles Dickens. He is without a rival as an impersonator of the roles of Falstaff, Malvolio, Picwick and Pecksniff. The sense of comedy is not a small thing, and it needs to be cultivated. It is a matter of regret that so little is known of Shakespeare's comedies. Even Shakesperian scholars neglect them. The greater part of the cultured world has yet to discover the sunnier side of the master's genius. There will be nothing more attractive at the Chautauqua assembly than Mr. Underhill's delightful impersonations.

A Bright Lad,

Ten years of age, but who declines to give his name to the public, makes this authorized, confidential statement to us:

"When I was one year old, my mamma died of consumption. The doctor said that I, too, would soon die, and all our neighbors thought that even if I did not die, I would never be able to walk, because I was so weak and puny. A gathering formed and broke under my arm. I hurt my finger and it gathered and threw out pieces of bone. If I hurt myself so as to break the skin, it was sure to become a running sore. I had to take lots of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It has made me well and strong."—T. D. M., Norcatur, Kans.
