Judge Dundy, Mrs. Dundy, Mrs. Scipio Dundy and several other members of the large and cheerful family connection have gone in a special car to Wyoming. They have hunted in the Big Horn mountains before and many is the bear skin that proves their bravery. Mrs. Dundy jr., can shoot a rifle and hit a deer with her eyes open. And everybody knows how Judge Dundy can throw a bear and cut his throat.

Many Lincoln people, the younger members of society in particular, have enjoyed driving out to the Baldwin farm, known as "Meadow Brook," five miles south of the city. The Baldwins have dispensed a generous hospitality at this beautiful farm, and "Meadow Brook" has been a popular objective point for picnic and outing parties. To better entertain his friends at the farm Mattson Baldwin has erected a club house, which was completed only this week, and which it is proposed to dedicate this afternoon, when a party of young people will drive out. The building is finely located about a third of a mile from the road. In front is a smooth expanse of greensward, and behind and on either side is a large grove. Close by are swiftly running natural springs, and the peaceful Salt Creek. The house itself and the surroundings are all that one could ask. The former is picturesque. A slanting shingle roof covers the building proper and extends over a large porch, supported by rustic columns. Exclusive of the porch there is a floor space of 22x30 feet. Inside things are most inviting. There is a large reception room ceiled with hard pine, with hard wood oiled floor. In one corner is a luxurious low divan, with a tempting assortment of pillows. There are all sorts of rustic easy chairs, and many facilities on all sides for lounging. On tables are to be found current pictorial literature, and pipes and other insignia of bachelordom decorate the walls. There are pictures from Life and Truth and photographs and what not gracefully arranged with decorative ribbons. Beyond is the dining room, the entrance to which is hung with rope portieres, designed by Mrs. Baldwin. This room is also ceiled, and contains a long table and benches suggestive of merry banquets. There is a convenient kitchen, with a proper outfit, and upstairs are two sleeping rooms. The first story is so arranged that nearly the entire space is available for a dancing floor. Lincoln, or the country adjacent is particularly barren of hospitable oases of this sort, and Mr. Baldwin's enterprise is bound to be gratefully appreciated by his friends.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Beeson gave a little party on Wednesday evening. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lippincott, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Buckstaff, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Ogden, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Townley, Dr. and Mrs. Ladd, Mr. J. B. Wright, Mr. Walter Hargreaves, Mr. R. J. Greene.

Mr. and Mrs. Beeson's guests are always happy. A pleasant and exhilarating lunch was served. The entertainment was conversation. Emerson says that all there is of this world is "a little conversation." Whether it is worth while or not depends upon the kind. Mrs. Beeson's "salon" has the characteristics of a French woman's, the light thrust and parry, touch and go, and delicate allusion of Recamier.

Frederick Anderson and Miss Julia Anderson, his sister, of St. Louis, spent a few days in this city, the guests of the family of L. C. Burr. They arrived Saturday and left Tuesday. Monday evening a delightful sailing and dancing party was given in their honor at Burlington Beach. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Lew Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Burr, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Burr, Earl Bridgeman, W. E. Johnson, Miss Maud Oakley, Miss Mame Carson, Miss Helen Burr, Owen Oakley, R. M. Joyce, W. F. Meyer, Howell of Omaha.

A recent letter from Mrs. Canfield contains interesting news of her Columbus home and surroundings. She says the president's house is an old one in the corner of an older orchard. It is being altered to suit the needs of the new occupants. The old kitchen, closets, pantries and a bed room are being taken out to make one long studio 34x15 feet, with a big window. All who knew the large studio Mrs. Canfield occupied in her first home here, with its divans, rugs and draperies can picture her in her new studio.

Mr. Canfield junior, affectionally known as Jimmie, is in business in Columbus and will remain there through the winter. He likes Columbus very well, though his heart is with his old comrades in Nebraska whom he never wished to leave.

Miss Canfield has just returned from Vermont where she has been spending the summer.

The Sunday school workers are preparing for an enthusiastic meeting on the Fourth of September. Nothing of the kind has ever been held west of St. Louis. The parade will take place at noon, and be a representation of the Tribes of Israel. The tabernacle which will be set up in Lincoln park will be an exact copy of the building the tribes used on the march. The court of the tabernacle was surrounded by a fence made of posts and connected by sheeting 7 feet wide. When the tabernacle was set up each post was carried to its place and set up by one man. It will take sixty-six men to carry the posts, twenty men to carry the brazen altar and twelve to carry the golden candlesticks. The other pieces of furniture will be
