

NOTES AND QUERIES

Some of the papers in discussing the late incident which gave a certain army officer, a certain social club and a certain young business man such wide-spread notoriety, said that strictly speaking the club referred to only has one gentleman member. Who is this gentleman? ANXIOUS SUBSCRIBER.

He would be a particularly clever person who could tell what the writers for the Lincoln newspapers mean when they write. I have never been furnished a key, and I am forced, like the rest of the public, to stand by and wonder. The most that can be done in the matter is to guess, and I find on consulting with members of the club that there is a popular understanding that Guy Hurlbut is the person to whom belongs the distinction of being the gentleman par excellence. Mr. Hurlbut wears his chrysanthemum with the same graceful abandon as of yore, and seems in no wise disturbed by the accusation that he is a gentleman. It may be that some other person was meant, but Mr. Hurlbut is my guess.

Is there a new work by Anthony Hope in press? ZENDA.

Mr. Hawkins is at work on a new serial which, it is said, will be called "Phrozo." The scene of the story is a Greek island. Phrozo is a Greek deity.

Some time ago mention was made in THE COURIER of a new Doone book by Blackmore. Has this book been published. R. T. B.

According to an announcement in the Bookman, Dodd, Mead & Co., New York, will publish November 10, "Slain by the Doones." The same authority says this new book is not a sequel to "Lorna Doone," but it has to do with the same place and period, and some of its characters are identical with those of Blackmore's greatest work. The renowned John Ridd appears at a critical stage of the story.

ADAGIO.

The coming night has wrapped the weary world

In a robe of solemn ashen gray,
And, as the light dies out across the sky,
Take down your violin and play.

But do not strike a major chord I pray,
But play a mystic, minor strain,
That fills my soul with pleasures vague and sweet
A pleasure nigh akin to pain.

Let no strong passion mar the gentle strain,
But weave a melody of dreams,
As soft as silence, as sweet as sleep,
As tender as the moon's pale beams.

And bring to me again the dear dead days,
The days deep buried in my heart,
And cause from out the misty land of dreams
The faces of my dead to start—
