The Pleasant Hour Club at a business meeting held Monday afternoon made appropriate recognition of the annual charity concert to be held in December, by appropriating $60 for the purchase of tickets, the intention being to attend in a body. The ladies who have charge of the concert are anxious to secure the patronage and co-operation of the leading social organizations of the city and it is hoped that the example set by the Pleasant Hour Club will be followed by the other clubs.

I think a more fashionable gathering never assembled in Omaha than the one invited to Miss Jess Dickinson's debut into society, at the Milford hotel on the evening of the 21st. A dinner was given in honor of the ten other debutants of the season, who assisted at the reception from 8:30 to 9:30. A covered entrance was constructed from the street to the hotel entrance, where liveried porters escorted the guests to the dressing rooms on the third floor. On descending the stairs to the parlor

The Courier's Omaha correspondent sends the following:

Miss Gertrude Chambers, who was on Wednesday married to Mr. Guy Parke, of Decatur, Ill., was one of the fairest brides seen in Omaha in many a day. Miss Chambers was a very popular girl, and her friends constituted a large and fashionable assembly at Trinity Cathedral Wednesday noon. The ceremony was performed by Dean Gardner. The bridal procession was led by Mr. Curtis Turner, of this city, and Mr. W. Morton Smith, of Lincoln. Then came Mr. Ennis, of Decatur, Ill., Mr. Charles George, two little bridesmaids, Carolyn Dickey and Marion Johnson, Miss Louie Johnson, of Chicago, and Miss Rawles, of Washington, Miss Alice Chambers and then the bride on the arm of her could be seen the young ladies grouped in a semi circle, handsome in elegant gowns. The parlors were gorgeously decorated with American beauties and the choicest chrysanthemums. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dickinson stood at the head of the line. Passing along you were unconsciously ushered into a room where "Nectar fit for Gods," was lavishly dispensed. Between two immense cakes of ice, in which flowers of most beautiful designs, had been frozen, sat a huge punch bowl which received a never failing supply from an invisible source through an icy trough. Then came the dancing hall, brilliantly illuminated and decorated in smilax and chrysanthemums. Perhaps the most interesting place was the ordinary, where a large table was laden down with game, fruits and other delicacies, which were served during the evening in the smaller adjoining rooms. The most striking of the many delicacies were two large salmon constructed of salads, elevated at either end of the table around which were arranged game, meats, etc.

Aside from these departments, the editorial and contributed features of the REVIEW OF REVIEWS are themselves equal in extent to a magazine. The Editor's "Progress of the World" is an invaluable chronicle of the happenings of the thirty days just past, with pictures on every page of the men and women who have made the history of the month.

The Literary World says: "We are deeply impressed from month to month with the value of the 'REVIEW OF REVIEWS,' which is a sort of Eiffel Tower for the survey of the whole field of periodical literature. And yet it has a mind and voice of its own, and speaks out with decision and sense on all public topics of the hour. It is a singular combination of the monthly magazine and the daily newspaper. It is daily in its freshness; it is monthly in its method. It is the world under a field glass."
