

All theatres are asked to give a per cent of the receipts on the night of Tuesday, December 1. If the travelling men of Lincoln will take this matter up the Funke will give a very liberal per cent of the receipts, and the larger the receipts the larger the per cent. That the attraction is first class this notice will attest. "Mr. McManus had the good luck to secure a first class play, with an old favorite, to open his house. Deacon Brodie is interesting from the first entrance to the going down of the curtain. It is a strong play, with strong parts and impressive situations. The story of a man bad in spite of himself—something on the Jekyll and Hyde order, without the physical changes. The hero, a reputable man in the eyes of all the world, with surroundings, associations and family ties the most honorable, becomes a criminal—a house-breaker, a companion of thieves and outlaws. These two extremities of moral character warring in one man produce the dramatic material. Mr. Henley, with all his well remembered fire and fervor, and the grace and ease of movement that are so familiar to his admirers, gave a strong presentation of the leading characters.

The famous Bros. Byrne will produce their successful spectacular production, the new "Eight Bells" at the Lansing Theatre Thanksgiving day November 26. The trick and scenic effects invented by the talented John F. Byrne are very clever and startling. The piece is virtually new, and comes as fresh and crisp as a new bank note.

The most important attraction ever offered here is probably Chas. H. Yale's "The Twelve Temptations", which is to claim attention at the Lansing Theatre on Friday November 27. This is reputed to be the greatest spectacle on the face of the earth, having cost the sum of $25,000 to put on the stage. It is entirely new, while the hosts of splendid costumes afford a feast of harmonious color. The piece, besides being a fairy spectacle with stirring adventures at the North Pole, is crowded with fun of the most boisterous kind, and pantomimic tricks which will raise laughter long and loud.

There are hosts of beautiful ballets and some very grotesque and comical ones, calling for the services of the largest and most efficient ballet troupe in the United States, led by the great Italian premieres, Signoritas Ferrero, Belloni and Vieshie.

The Rosaires in acrobatic flights, John Harty in juggling, the Brothers Elliot in a hot boxing bout, Sisson and Bruno in a "Chanson Characteristique" and Rose Keenor as the "Giddy Old Maid," present specialties which will delight everybody.

With the whole stage set representing the Brooklyn side of the East River, the Fulton Ferry and moving craft on the stream, the endless march of odd personages across the bridge from New York at night will be aptly described in a great song by Mr. Yale, called "Over the Bridge". "All in a Row" and Battery Park" are also quaint descriptive songs from Mr. Yale's fertile pen, which will go with a rush.

Guendoline North, Lida Dexter, Josie Sisson, Lila Hutton, Gus Bruno, Jr., Chas. H. Henry and other excellent people are in the cast.

The attraction at the Lansing Theatre on November 28 for one night only will be Sidney Grundy's new famous play, "Sowing the Wind," produced under the direction of Julius Cahn. The immense success of this piece in London a couple of seasons ago and its instant triumph when subsequently produced in the leading cities of this country are matters of familiar history. The play deals with the social relations of the sexes, and its treatment of the theme is so frank and fearless that the public was at first startled by its seeming audacity, but it stood the tests of every criticism that prudery could invent and has received the strongest endorsements from intelligent and thoughtful reformers elsewhere. The purity of its moral tone is now acknowledged on all hands. The plot is one of deep human interest, the action is rapid and the situations are intensely dramatic. The climacteric interview between the unhappy girl Rosamond and the old man Brabazon, whose shadow darkened her life at its very threshold, and now lies between her and the one she loves, is as thrilling a scene as one cares to witness. The company selected for this season's production of "Sowing the Wind" is a high class organization throughout. The setting of the play and the equipment of the company as to costumes and auxiliaries are fully up to the requirements of the piece.
