Social and Personal

The tempest in a tea pot which has been bubbling and steaming for a week, was caused by a misapprehension on the part of Mr. and Mrs. Lansing as to the ownership of the few trinkets presented by Harry Lansing to Miss Grace Oakley. The gifts were given to Miss Oakley on her birthdays and at Christmas time. For an unknown reason, some of them passed out of her possession in a time when her relations with Mr. Lansing were of a friendly nature. When she became engaged to another man and wanted to return them, it was out of her power, for they were no longer in her possession. Whereupon Harry Lansing wrote to his father and mother asking them to procure from Miss Oakley whatever he had given her. Consequently on a stormy night the parents appeared at the young lady's home and demanded the "jools." Not succeeding, the next day they sent a lawyer, who has abundant leisure, to frighten the household with hints of the mysterious vengeance of the law which says that gifts, once bestowed, can only be recovered if it can be established to the satisfaction of the court that the donor, at the time of bestowal was non compos mentis or that the gifts were causa mortis i. e. in expectation of imminent death, subsequently averted. The lawyer only succeeded in arousing a retaliatory spirit. After all, the society of a charming girl, whose influence has set Harry to work and kept him at work is worth the baubles that have made so much pother. Further discussion will embarrass both families and lead to recriminations that will disgust a public not yet accustomed to reading the door yard quarrels printed by The New York Journal. Though it would not be at all suprising if one of the New York papers had already secured a picture of each of the parties concerned, their residences the "jools" in dispute and an interview with every body concerned. Such trivialities fill the pages of the "pink paretis" newspapers. Anybody's picture will do and any jewelry store can furnish the models for the jewelry. In last week's Journal there was a picture of the two Nebraska City girls who got out of town by clinging to the stanchions on a cow-catcher. With their hair wild—blowing about their faces they made just the kind of pictures desired by The New York Journal. But their story was lacking pre-sensational features. This one has all the elements which "sells" The Journal and unless the families on both sides decide to let by-gones be by-gones their notoriety will not be bounded by the state.

The following committees were appointed by President Harwood of the Haydon Art club, at a meeting which was held at Mrs. F. M. Hall's on Tuesday evening, July 12. A splendid exhibition of pictures is contemplated for holiday week. Four or five interesting programs will be given during the winter. The club will do something for the public schools and altogether the committees will keep the membership of this strong organization in working order so that at the next meeting of the legislature its claims will neither be ignored nor misapprehended. Finance Committee—Messrs. Wm. Stull, F. M. Hall, Oliver Rodgers, T. E. Calvert, I. S. P. Weeks, Geo. Woods. Membership Committee—Mesdames

F. M. Hall, John B. Wright, Paul Holm, J. H. McMurtry. School Committee—Chancellor Geo. E. MacLean, Miss Sarah B. Harris, Prof. E. H. Barbour. Program Committee—Mesdames L. C. Richards, C. E. Bessey, I. S. P. Weeks. Exhibition Committee—Hon. C. H. Gere, Mr. H. E. Lewis, Dr. R. E. Giffen, Prof. E. H. Barbour, R. B. Owens. The beautiful new Burlington depot which the company will erect at Omaha is shown in this issue of THE COURIER. The cool deep porches of the entrance supported by columns, roofed by architrave and pediment suggest the Parthenon, the most beautiful, the most perfect building ever built. Everybody is exclaiming over the beauty and elegance of the design. It is as old as the Parthenon. Yet Walker and Kimball—the architect have shown originality and taste in so perfectly adapting a Grecian temple to a modern railway station. In the days of the exposition this audacious success will be part of the triumph of Messrs. Walker and Kimball, the latter of whom, by the way, once attended the university and afterwards the Polytechnic institute in Boston. The stairway, which is also printed in this week's issue is of remarkable elegance. The spirality and individuality given to each staircase by facing one towards the tracks and the other away from it is a stroke of genius. The news that Mrs. David A. Campbell has sung to a London audience and that she was received with delight is very pleasing to her Nebraska friends. The members of the Christian Endeavor society of the Presbyterian church gave a lawn social Tuesday evening on Mrs. Polk's grounds, at Sixteenth and L streets. Mr. and Mrs. Ross Curtice have gone to Spirit Lake for a few weeks. Mrs. A. S. Raymond, Arthur, Miss Ruth and Dorothy, have returned from their European trip in good health and spirits. They are great favorites in Lincoln and their friends are glad to welcome them back. Low Marshall left Monday for Spirit Lake, Ia., where he will join Mrs. Marshall in a camping party. Brad Slaughter returned Monday from Spirit Lake, where he saw his family safely ensconced in a cottage and enjoying themselves greatly. Ex Governor Nance, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Helen, have left for an extended European tour. They left Montreal July 10 by the steamer Laurentian, of the Allan line, which takes the northern route on the St. Lawrence river and straits of Belle Isle. Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Sanderson, Mrs. D. W. C. Huntington and daughter, and Misses Julia and Mary Watson, left Monday for the Epworth meeting at Toronto. Large varieties of latest models can be found in the late numbers of McDowell's Fashion Journals (published at 4 West 15th street, New York). "La Mode de Paris" is $3.50 a year, 35 cents a single copy. "French Dressmaker" is $3.00 a year and 30 cents a single copy. Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Moore are spending the hot weather in Toronto, Canada.
