There are two celebrated Italian premieres, Signoritas Ferrero and Basseggio, together with hosts of secundas and coryphees, making up a large and most efficient corps de ballet. The premieres will be seen in splendid roles and among the grand ballets may be instanced "The Four Seasons," "The Coming Women," "National Trio Issues," and many others of equal importance and novelty.

The Chicago Record says: "Clay Clement met with a fine reception at the Lyceum last evening. The audience was a large one and was thoroughly delighted with the star, the play and the company. Clay Clement came here with no flourish of trumpets, but in three performances he has taken the first place among Chicago's favorites. He was recalled after every act and after every important scene. It was a discriminating and very intelligent audience, too, for none of the delicate points and subtle passages were missed.

To see Mr. Clement's Baron von Hohenstauffen a second time is simply to be more completely captivated by it. A more perfect piece of character work has never been placed before an American public. Not only does the manner in which Clement plays it entirely satisfy the artistic sense, but the character itself is one that appeals to the noblest and highest sentiments.

The company is a superb one. Mr. Aiken, Mr. Williams, Mr. Macey, Mr. O'Malley, Mrs. Craig, Miss Kenwyn, Miss McEwan and Miss O'Malley are all true artists.

Mr. Clements and his excellent company will appear at the Funke opera house for two performances, Saturday, October 9, presenting "The Southern Gentleman" at night, and "The New Dominion" at the matinee at 2:30. Prices, $1, 75c, 50c and 25c. Seats on sale Thursday, 10 a. m.

That there is no limit to the possibilities of stage realism is evinced in the lavish revival of "Ole Olson," which is announced for presentation here at an early date, in which a genuine bicycle race is introduced and contested by expert wheelmen in full view of the audience.
