THE COURIER has received the following note from Miss Julia Haskell, of Wakefield, Neb. It exonerates Miss Gray from the charge of mutilating the records, and a retraction of the charges made in this paper is due her. It is cheerfully made. The charge would never have been made in the first place if Miss Gray had preserved the impartiality becoming a secretary in other things pertaining to the Woman's Weekly. Nevertheless the editor of THE COURIER regrets having made the charges and is very glad of the opportunity to retract them. The conviction that an officer of the federation was capable of such conduct was very painful and proof that such an opinion was too hastily formed, is welcome, even at the price of a little discomfiture: SARAH B. HARRIS.

I wish to state positively that I, and not Miss Vesta Gray, am responsible for any omission or error in the secretary's report of third annual meeting of Nebraska Federation of Women's Clubs. I should have made this statement sooner, but I've only recently learned of the grave charges brought against our thoroughly conscientious and efficient secretary of the past year. JULIA HASKELL.

The Matinee Musicale gave a program of "Variations, Etudes and Serenades," at the meeting on Monday, preceded by an interesting talk from Mrs. A. S. Raymond on her musical recollections of Dresden and Bayreuth, illustrated by photographs of the opera houses and of famous singers. Many German programs were also distributed to be examined by those interested.

The time of meeting for the Matinee Musicale has been altered to suit many busy members; and for the future the programs will begin promptly at 4 o'clock, but "active members" are expected to be present at half past three o'clock for a short business session.

The Department of Civics met on Wednesday afternoon at the room in the Sallsbury block. A paper upon the "Development of Constitutional Liberty in the English Colonies" was read by Mrs. John A. Ames, followed by a general discussion led by Mrs. Rudolph Reblaender.

The city improvement society met at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the Capitol building in the reception room of the Supt. of public instruction and a company of interested women discussed plans for the welfare of the city.

Mrs. Nellie M. Richardson who had been appointed to examine the city ordinances to see if there was an ordinance prohibiting the pasting of objectionable advertising and theatre pictures reported no law covering this. On motion of Mrs. McConnell, Mrs. Richardson was asked to prepare an ordinance in conjunction with the city attorney to present to the city Council prohibiting the pasting of indecent pictures upon bill boards and other public places.

A general movement toward this end is being carried on in state legislatures and municipalities by the women's clubs especially the department of child study, civic societies and they have very generally the hearty co-operation of teachers and school boards.
