James O'Neill in the "Dead Heart," has made a hit this season that has been heard from the Atlantic to the Pacific. He has repeated Henry Irving's triumphs, and duplicated his own of seven years ago, when he first played Robert Landry, the hero of the "Dead Heart" at Hooley's in Chicago.

The piece portrays in a wonderfully comprehensive manner, the life of that period in French history when Republicanism showed what it could do when robbed of the heaven of common sense. There is a prologue dated 1771, filled with rumors of uprisings and with a final monstrous intrigue by which Robert Landry, the hero of the play is cast into the Bastille "for one week only, you say,"—a week which does not end for eighteen years, when in 1789, the first act of the play proper opens, with the storming of the Bastille and the release of "Robert Landry."

With a disguise that his warmest friends cannot penetrate—long black man comedian, Dan Mason, contributes a character bit which is said to be one of the funniest Dutch comedy parts ever seen. Louise Allen will be the Mrs. Fitzhugh, the part which she created, and is said to be decidedly clever in; and the other characters are in the hands of the following well known people: Violet Rand, Carrie Elberts, Katherine Mulkine, Geo. W. Parsons, P. H. Ryley, N. L. Heckert, Frank Crane and Harry Parker.

At the Oliver, one night only, Friday, February 25. Prices $1.00, 75, 50 and 25 cents; seats on sale Wednesday 10 a. m. Secure them early.

Wm. Jerome's Herald Square Comedians will present at the Funke, Wednesday and Thursday nights, February, 23-24, the funny comedy, "A Jay in New York," and it is without doubt the funniest show on the road this season. It fairly teems with bright dialogue and catchy music, and it is enacted by a company of unusual merit. The play deals with the unfortunate complications of Jay Smith curing his first visit to the Metropolis. Mr. Blondell, who plays the "Jay," is one of the cleverest Yankee comedians, and the press have gone so far as to compare him to Denman

EARTH-BOUND.

Though from the body I am past,
To the Earth I am bound fast;
Immortal voices call me low
I may not go;
But like a bird out of the night
Beat ever in on this warm light.
I heard an angel say
"Come away!"
I answered "Let me hide
"Where I have died;
"Near to the blowing grass and Sun,
"Where I have run."
And then I said,
"Tis dreary to be dead,
"And watch the budding lane,
"And hear the rain;
"To pine about the green,
"And haunt the sheen.
"O rare, rare,
"Are human faces, human hair!"
Spirit am I, but cannot yet
Go from these ancient pastures wet;
Though from the body I am past,
To the Earth I am bound fast.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR.

The enmity which an old maid has for men in a married woman is generally directed against the moths.

Women may point the finger of scorn at a man, but when its a woman they go up close and poke her with it.

When a girl wears a cheap dress, she always lets on to the other girls that she spends a lot on what they don't see.

When a woman really loves a man she can never admit to herself that she is disappointed in him.

The average girl never gets more than one chance to get married, because she's always so afraid she won't get any more.
—New York Press.

A woman never objects to a man talking in his sleep if she can understand what he says.

JAMES O'NEILL IN THE "DEAD HEART."

beard, ragged clothes, utter obscurity of the handsome features, the blank eyes, trembling lips, the drooping jaw of the paralytic, the lean fingers for the desire of revenge, the tottering limbs of weakness, the whole aspect of a broken man—all these are portrayed with such rare skill that it is not to be wondered that the audience calls the actor before the curtain and bestows upon him such a round of applause as is seldom heard in any theatre.

Mr. O'Neill and his splendid company comes to the Oliver for one night only, Wednesday, February 23. Prices $1.00, 75, 50 and 25 cents. Seats on sale Monday 10 a. m.

The favorite young comedian, Willie Collier, will present for the first time here, his highly successful comedy, "The Man from Mexico." This new farce was adapted from the French by H. A. Du Souchet, who first commanded attention by writing "My Friend from India." Everyone has met that officious man who cajoles you and reassuringly tells you not to worry when you are in trouble, as he will fix it. This same obnoxious person in "The Man from Mexico," in his all-wise way, fixes things so well that he lands his friends on Blackwells Island for thirty days. The action of the play begins in New York City, where all the characters reside.

In Mr. Collier's support will be found numerous players who have gained first class reputations for themselves. Maclyn Arbockle will be seen in the role of Majors; Chas Hason in that of Love All, the foppish Warden. The clever Ger-

Thompson. Miss Maude Nugent, the author of "Sweet Rosie O'Grady," plays the part of Daisy, and plays it with all her chic and vivacity. Wm. Jerome has made the hit of his life in the character of Dusty Streets, a man with a beer income and a wine appetite. Hays and Bandy, the dancing wonders, The Har-racks, T. E. Sedgwick, Libbie Blondell, the Maynard sisters, May Davis, Lulu Lealie, Lenora Wilson and Carrie Mas-sonney two of the best operatic vocalists and dancers before the public. Harry Taft the phenomenal whistler. The entertainment to conclude with the latest New York craze the animated music sheet Prices 15, 25, 35 and 50 cents. Wednesday night two ladies or one lady and gentleman admitted on one 50 cent ticket if bought before 7 p. m. Seats on sale Tuesday 10 a. m.
