Eloquence at Bay.

It was a preacher who had that "fatal fluency" for whom an acquaintance laid a trap. He had a way of promising to preach, and on beginning would say something like "I have been too busy to prepare a sermon, but if some one will kindly give me a text, I'll preach from it." One determined to cure him. He therefore asked him to preach. The invitation was accepted. The time came, and the visitor began his usual introduction: "Brethren, I have been so pushed for time today as to have been quite unable to prepare a sermon. But if some of you will give me a text, I'll preach from it. Perhaps my brother here," turning to the plotter near him, "will suggest a text." "Yes, brother," came the ready response; "your text is the last part of the ninth verse of the first chapter of Ezra, and its words are 'nine-and-twenty knives.'" There was a pause, an ominous pause, as the preacher found his text. He read it out, "Nine and-twenty knives," and began at once. "Notice the number of these knives—just exactly nine and twenty; not thirty, nor eight-and-twenty. There were no more and no less than nine-and-twenty knives." A pause—a long pause. Then, slowly and emphatically, "Nine and-twenty knives." A longer pause. Then, meditatively, "Nine-and-twenty knives." Again he rested. "Nine-and-twenty knives." A dead stop. "Nine-and-twenty knives—and if there were nine hundred and twenty knives I could not say another word."—From the "Editor's Drawer," in Harper's Magazine for April.
