MAIDEN RESOLUTIONS.

The beautiful maiden sat down before her white and gold desk. Her heart was heavy for she had just been looking into the glass. Two things shocked her. One was a grey-tinted hair, which she instantly plucked from her mass of wavy tresses, and the other was a wrinkle, which she began to iron out with her hand with desperate vigor. Taking her pearl-handled pen in hand she wrote as follows:

"Harrowed by the realization of a futile winter campaign, and finding myself at this stage of the game without even a count or a clubman to the good, be it resolved forthwith:

1. That I drop the reputation of being the most extravagant dresser at Newport this summer and go in for plain colors and charity, which conceals a multitude of sins.
2. That I cut dead all my former summer fiances, beginning with an entirely new booking—not the brilliant, poetic and golfish quite so much as those with a business dash about their love making. The latter don't know how to do it so well, but they are apt to have some end in view.
3. That I shall cease dividing one hour between seven men, but give the one man the seven hours—if he happens to be the right one.
4. That I encourage my younger brothers to take a biking tour through Europe this summer. No calamities from that source.
5. That I cut poets, artists and kodakers. No more posing away valuable time. I see my finish if I do.
6. That I get a pony trained to run away with me at the proper time and a yacht that shall capsize at the right moment. Men insist on marrying the girls they rescue, you know.
7. That I drop gossip and go in for such themes as home (with a gulp of pathos) and love (with a 100-yard sigh.)
8. That I drop the fad of being learned and go in for hugging all the babies in sight. (That's a drawing card always.)
9. That I reserve the right to modify any or all of these resolutions in favor of the right man when he turns up—if he ever does, heaven bless him! That's all. Good-bye!"

And she went down town to look up the latest authorities on facial massage and hair dye.—Town Topics.

"It strikes me, Mr. Brief," said Mr. Dogway, "that your charge of $750 for this opinion is pretty steep."
"No doubt," said Mr. Brief. "But you see, Dogway, when you come and asked me for an opinion which vioiates all my convictions, you've got to pay not only for your law, but for my conscience."—Harper's Bazar.
