

was accompanied to Omaha by Misses Helen Woods and May McMenemy, the latter will visit with Miss Miner during the summer.

The marriage of Miss Julia Catherine Brooks to Mr. Harry Furnham Evans occurred Thursday evening at the First Congregational church. Rev. Manes performed the ceremony and Mrs. Raymond presided at the organ, and played during the ceremony. The front of the church was filled with palms and large bunches of carnations. When the march from Lohengrin began, the ushers, Messrs John Stewart of Fremont, Elmer Merrill, Frank Cowdry and Phil Easterday came down the aisle. At the same time the minister entered from the study on one side and little Alice Brooks the flower girl, and Howard Wilson the page, entered from the opposite side. Following the little people came Misses May Colson and Bessie Smith, the maids, then the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, and Mr. Evans and his best man, Mr. Homer Honeywell from the opposite side. The bride wore a handsome gown of white satin, with a long veil, and a large bunch of white roses. After the ceremony a reception for the relatives and most of the intimate friends was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Brooks. The presents were unusually numerous and beautiful. Refreshments were served down stairs and punch in an upper room. At 10:45 the happy couple left for a trip through the east. Mr. and Mrs. Evans are two of the most popular of Lincoln's society people, and many friends extend them hearty congratulations.

Mrs. Cleveland and Her Little Girls.

A close friend of Mrs. Cleveland's tells this story of her in an anecdotal biography of the former mistress of the White House in the June Ladies' Home Journal: "Mrs. Cleveland used to be somewhat sensitive over the general regret so freely expressed before the birth of the last child that there was no boy in the family. It seemed to her to imply a lack of appreciation of her three little girls. A friend, who is married and has a son, visited the White House one day, and when the children were brought in she exclaimed, 'What a pity they are all girls!'

"Quick as a flash Mrs. Cleveland knelt, put her arms around the children and retorted: 'That shows that you do not know how nice little girls are.'"
