A barbarian reception which seemed to be a veritable influx of all the peoples of the north and of the south, occurred Tuesday evening in the Grand hotel. The three literary societies of the university, the Union, Palladian and Delian, joined forces and made the ante-holiday reception a joint one. The office and dining rooms and even the upstairs parlors were thronged with members and friends of the societies. Chancellor and Mrs. MacLean attended, as did Professors Fossler, Caldwell, H. H. Wilson and their wives. The dining room was charmingly decorated with bunting in colors of the societies and university. One corner of the dining room was draped in society colors and here dainty representatives of the societies refreshed all comers with pineapple ice. The chandelier was festooned with mistletoe and from it to each corner of the room were immense ribbons of bunting in university colors. Sprigs of the mistletoe were bravely picked by some of the adventurous ones. Hagenow's orchestra started the evening with appropriate music. The guests arrived early and soon the young ladies were asked to select partners for a conversational march. When couples were formed Professor Fossler led off and an immense following was soon in line. While walking subjects for conversation were given. The gentlemen would all advance one pace and with a new partner begin a new subject. When the march was done the crowd diffused itself throughout the hotel and began playing with the various games provided. But little dancing was indulged in. At a late hour the young people left, after experiencing one of the best university functions given so far this year, a thing which reflects much credit on the powers behind the triple alliance throne.

Friday evening Dec. 16, the Pershing Rifles enjoyed their fifth annual hop at the Lincoln hotel. It was a brilliant affair, the military uniforms and accouterments, blended with the lovely gowns of the ladies making a scene rarely beheld in Lincoln. Arms were stacked in the ordinary and the clank and rattle of swords in the dance was a pleasing sound. Miss Willoughby's orchestra furnished the music for the occasion. Those who enjoyed the dance under the chaperonage of Prof. and Mrs. Richards were: Messrs Weeks, Ricketts, Schick, Teeters, Selden, Bartlett, Davidson, Harmon, Pancoast, Van Vafin, Franch, Mudge, Hastie, Kissler, Swartz, Humphrey, Henry, Orlo Brown, Sam Brown, Brackett, Whipple, Kind, Atwood, Matson, Clements, Irwin, Dales, Tukey, C. B. McCreary, Sumner, Mansfelde, Lau, Sherman, Abbott, Libeman, Morrison, Rehlaender, Louis and Fritz Korsmeyer, Clark, Reed, Richards, Hayes, Garoutte, Lehmer, Shedd, Raymond, Turpin, Cleland, Crandal, Adams, J. Sumner, Stebbins; Misses Hammond, Vancil, Tukey, Richards, Riesser, Ward, Parks, Chilcott, Cleveland, Henry, Macomber, Stratton, Ricketts, Douglas, Schwartz, Andrew, Hargreaves, Wilson, Cole, Lasch, Lau, Weich, Outcalt, Tukey, Guile, Hayes, Woodward, Jaynes, Jackson, Garten, Prentiss, Thomas, Ellen and Frances Gere, Watkins, Holbrook, Winger, Cunningham, Woods, Harper, Douglas, Jessie and Jane Macfarland, Cochran. The invited guests were Chancellor and Mrs.

MacLean, Professor and Mrs. Barbour, Professor and Mrs. Taylor, Professor and Mrs. Richards.

Tuesday evening the ladies of the Pythian sisterhood entertained their friends royally at the Pythian hall. The time was occupied with cards in progressive high five. Long and valiantly did Knight and dame do battle over the engaging tables. When the end of the friendly pasteboard tourney was announced, scores were counted and the royal prizes were awarded amid considerable shivering on the part of those who thought perhaps they had not been too successful in the gathering in of scores. Mrs. Will Lawlor was awarded the ladies' royal prize, while the corresponding prize for the gentlemen went to Dr. Grimes. The ladies' booby prize fell to the ownership of Mrs. W. Hamilton and the gentleman's booby was given to J. C. Johnson. Consolation for all those present was found in light refreshments after the hilarity and wit concerning the prizes had sufficiently subsided.

The annual banquet of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity was held last Saturday evening at the chapter house 2525 N street. Willard Clapp was toast master and sat at head of tables beautifully decorated and bountifully supplied with good things to eat. In a few words he called upon some of the members for responses to toasts and the banquet was made a joyous occasion. The toasts were: "Our Law Alumni," Meilenz; "My Last Speech," Guy Cowgill; "Our Alumni," Edmiston; "Did I Miss Old S. A. E.?" Green; "How it feels to be a Senior," Bartlett; "Needs of Lambda Pi," Selden; "How can a Freshman Walk Straight?" Killian; "How I Became a Wizard," Holben; "S. A. E. Girls," Davidson; "The Emblem of S. A. E.," Harmon; "The Worst Boy in the Frat," Dunroy. Besides the active members of the frat Haney and Morrill of Omaha were present.

Mr. Edward Maggi left on Thursday noon for Albion, Nebr., where on next Wednesday he will be united in marriage to Miss Winnie Gates of that town. Miss Gates is well known in Lincoln, having studied here in the music schools for several years. Her family is one of the wealthiest in the neighborhood of Albion. Mr. Maggi came to Lincoln but a brief year ago from Boston, but during that time his dramatic ability as instructor in the Nebraska college of oratory has won him a host of friends whose best wishes follow him as he goes to win his bride. The occasion will be a gay affair as evidenced by the number and recipients of the invitations.

Boys of the Kappa Sigma classicism gave up their charming rooms to their friends Tuesday night and treated them to a dancing party. The Kappas have just fitted up their rooms in a most weird and original style. There are mystical green and unnamable colored lights hung high in comfortable alcoves, where rest from the dance follows occupancy. The affair was attended with the best things dear to youthful hearts. Mrs. Manning chaperoned the young people who broke with the Kappas the social bread. Prominent among those present were: Misses Holbrook, Clara
