Good Qualities, Good Styles and Prices that makes Every Purchase a RARE BARGAIN.

Omaha, Miss Hand of Scranton, Pa. Miss Rinehart of Indianapolis, and Mrs. Horton of Cincinnati has been the occasion for several delightful gatherings. The present week has been rather quiet but there are good things coming and after king grip is deposed, there promises to be a gay awakening.

Mrs. J. G. Morrison, regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, entertained Wednesday afternoon, those ladies who have been members of the two advisory boards of the Lincoln organization. The invitations were for a luncheon and it was given in compliment to Mrs. I. H. Odell, who is about to leave for Evansville, Ind., to make her home in the future. The guests were greeted upon entrance by national tri-color and many flags. The second parlor and dining room were decorated with blue and white, the color of the order, and violets and white hyacinths added beauty and fragrance. Round tables daintily decorated, were placed for the luncheon. Each guest was given a floral rhyme in which was concealed a conundrum. Mrs. Dorris won the first prize in this contest. The invited guests were: Mesdames Odell, Haggard, Van Brunt, Pound, Stevens, Coggeshall, Allen, Harpham, Winchester, Everett, Dorris, Manning, Henry, Hall, Welch, Upton, Rankin; Misses Stevens, Dennis.

Leonard H. Robbins, who is now employed on the Philadelphia Press in the capacity of reporter, has made a sensation in the city of quietness by his brisk and breezy western style. The first thing he did was to pounce upon the secret of the Keely motor that has been puzzling scientists for the past decade, and he ran down one of the biggest sensations that has been unearthed in the east for some time. He went to work on a clue, and while digging around under the laboratories that were formerly occupied by the inventor, he found evidences of secret machinery that would without a doubt explain the workings of the motor. The Philadelphia Press scooped the whole east with the story and later all the papers came out with big illustrated articles about the sensation. Mr. Robbins has been receiving the congratulations of the newspaper men of his office and of the city. This is another evidence of the fact that a western man can stir things up when he gets started. The many friends of Mr. Robbins will be glad to hear of his phenomenal success.

The North Side circle of St. Paul's church met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. C. L. Harpham. About forty-two ladies were present, and the afternoon was most pleasantly spent with an impromptu program. Mrs. Harpham gave some music, and Mrs. Hindman told the story of Ruth in the bible, in a delightful style. A short business session occupied the attention of the ladies for awhile. The ladies decided to entertain their husbands with a banquet some time in February at the home of Mrs. L. C. Richards. A committee of seven, with Mrs. C. C. Calkins, chairman, was appointed to fix the date and make arrangements. Dr. Wharton was present for a part of the afternoon. Refreshments were served.

There was a quiet wedding at Holy Trinity church Wednesday afternoon. Miss Minnie Ketchum, daughter of Dr. Ketchum of Lincoln, was wedded to Mr. Oliver Mapes of Mexico. Rev. Furner, rector of St. Luke's performed the ceremony. The bride wore white brocade and carried bride roses. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Bess Ketchum of Montreal, Canada, who wore organdie over pink. Only about twenty of the bride's most intimate girl friends were present at the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Mapes will reside in Lincoln.

J. Laurie Wallace, the well known artist of Omaha, is in the city quartered at the Lincoln. He is engaged in painting portraits which will make him a resident of Lincoln for a short while at least. Mr. Wallace has had a studio in Omaha for some years, which has been the rendezvous for the artists, musicians and literary people of the city. His efforts have been devoted especially to portrait painting and in this line he has been quite successful. The Chicago papers have given him extended praise and his work has not been slighted by the critics.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Woods entertained in honor of Mrs. Horton of Cincinnati, and Miss Rinehart of Indianapolis, last Saturday evening at progressive euchre. The evening was one full of enjoyment to the guests. Those who took part in the game were: Messrs and Mesdames Hargreaves, Marshall, Burnham, Houtz, Burr, Howe, Woods, Rector, Buckstaff, Thompson, Fitzgerald, Beeson, Brock; Mesdames Griffith, Horton; Misses Putnam, Hand, Harrison, Burr, Woods, Marshall, Burnham, Rinehart; Messrs Dorgan, Smith, Hurlbut, Baldwin, Zehring, Gittins, Haecker, Shedd, Lansing.

A very enjoyable party was given last night in honor of Miss Edith Erford by a number of her friends. It was promulgated as a surprise, but she obtained knowledge of the fact that it was to be given so the surprise part of it was abandoned. It was a very gay party and a good time was had by all the young people with games and music. Ice cream and cake were served at the close. The invited guests were Misses Erford, Edith Erford, Mabel Erford, Helen Howland, Mabel Doyle, Hattie Shaffer, Lila Watson, Clara Leese, Messrs. Ad. Crawford, Charles Dunbaugh, Tucker, Claud Wilson, Smith, Hawley and Ramedell.

The concert given on Thursday evening at the First Congregational church under the auspices of the women's society of the church by Miss Effie Douglas Putnam filled the church comfortably. Miss Putnam is a harpist of rare ability, feeling and culture. The harp is as sensitive as the human voice and it has the liquid full tones of a cello with something else that makes one think of the metre and meaning of the Psalms. Miss Putnam is a slight young woman with the spirituelle face of an artist. Her supple and muscular fingers strike the chords with strength and certainty. She was assisted by Mrs. Holyoke and Mr. Kettering. Mrs. Holyoke sang three songs with great tenderness. Her shading is delicate and true and her voice is increasing in power. Mr. Kettering sang three charming selections. He sang with unusual passion the three love songs. Mrs. Raymond accompanied the singers with that invariable sympathy and unobtrusive helpfulness that makes her the most desired of all accompanists. Miss Putnam read a paper on the history of the harp which was very interesting, but I would rather hear her play. She was a pupil of Gabriel Verdalle and of Godefroy and for a long time a member of the American Colony in Paris. The program is appended:

- Legende.....Zadel

Mount, Miss Pauline Maude Oakley entertained a party of friends at a nine o'clock dinner last Sunday night. Roses lent a fragrance to the air and brightened the rooms and table. After dinner Miss Oakley entertained her guests with some delightful music. All the guests were delighted with the hostess' sweet voice and charming manner. Guests of the evening were: Misses Hand of Scranton, Pa., Mount and Putnam; Mrs. Griffith; Messrs Honeywell, White, Oakley, H. and G. Shedd.

The members of the Lincoln club enjoyed a masque ball Tuesday night at L. L. I. hall. Only the members of the club were present. Walt's orchestra furnished the music, which was very good. Four prizes were offered for the best costumes. The prizes went to Miss Stella Douglas, as a sun flower, and Miss Hattie Lawlor, as an old maid, to Will Clifton, as a cavalier, and Dan Tobey as a clown. A dancing program of the right length was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

The following, clipped from the New York World, is an amusing account of how a society woman got revenge for not getting an invitation she had asked for:

"Albany society is gossiping over an incident connected with the Fort Orange reception recently given for Governor and Mrs. Roosevelt. A prominent society woman, Mrs. John V. L. Pruyn, asked for an invitation to the reception, but was told that invitations would only be sent to gentlemen and their families and that none would be extended to individual ladies. Mrs. Pruyn is a widow. Indignant at the refusal, she sent forth invitations for a large dinner party to take place on the same evening of the Fort Orange reception. The Governor and Mrs. Roosevelt accepted Mrs. Pruyn's invitation and were early arrivals at dinner. In the meanwhile the patronesses and others assembled at the Fort Orange club and awaited the distinguished guests. An hour passed and a member of the house committee telephoned that 200 ladies and gentlemen were waiting for the governor. The answer came sweetly over the telephone that 'Governor Roosevelt is enjoying himself with his after-dinner cigar and cannot be disturbed.'

The Fort Orange assembly had been waiting about two hours when the Roosevelts came, and while the reception was polite it was scarcely enthusiastic. The club subscribed $1,500 for the affair and the members were naturally indignant over Mrs. Pruyn's coup. They declare it was the last time they would ever give such a func-
