Social and Personal

Married on Wednesday March 22nd, at the Virginia in Chicago, at eight o'clock in the evening, Miss Bertha Laura Clark to Mr. Thomas Lyttleton Lyon of the agricultural college of the State university, Dr. Edward H. Curtis officiating.

The wedding ceremony was pronounced in the rooms at the Virginia, which were decorated with American beauty roses in tall glass vases, roses with such long stems that they might have reached the bride's shoulder. After the beautiful ceremony pronounced very solemnly and tenderly by Dr. Curtis, the doors into the banquetting hall were opened and the wedding party of fifteen sat down around a large round table illuminated by American beauty roses and candelabra. The elaborate dinner consisting of the usual courses of shell fish, soup, fish, game, punch, lamb and the salad and desert courses, served skillfully and attractively was a model of the caterer's art and nothing occurred to mar the wedding feast. Though as at every wedding when a beloved daughter leaves home, tears are near the surface and it is only unusually happy arrangements and a habit of self control in the head of the family that keeps the company gay.

The bride and groom were preceded by the drawing room by the bride's sister Margaret, dressed in an extremely becoming gown of pink net over pink silk. Miss Charlotte Clark played the Lohengrin wedding march then and through the service. The bride's gown was of white liberty satin, made with a very long train and trimmed in duchesse lace. She wore a handsome diamond ornament in her hair, the wedding gift of her mother. Mrs. Clark was gowned in black net over silk with a long train. She wore diamonds and an American beauty rose. Around the dinner table sat Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lyttleton Lyon, Mr. C. A. Hanna, Mr. George Lyon and Miss Lyon, brother and sister of the groom, from Pittsburg. Mrs. John R. Clark, Mr. George Lyon and Miss Lyon of Chicago, cousins of the groom, Dr. and Mrs. Curtis, Miss Margaret Clark, Miss Charlotte Clark of Lincoln, cousin of the bride, Mrs. W. B. Ogden, Miss Dorrance Harwood and Miss Harris of Lincoln. The presents were numerous and costly. Mr. and Mrs. Lyon left for New York and Pittsburg to visit the groom's father and sister. They are expected in Lincoln today or the first part of next week.

A joyful occasion was the banquet given last Saturday evening at the Lincoln hotel. The alumni members of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity from over the state gathered to the number of about fifty and spent the evening around the festal board with toasts, reminiscences, stories and songs. The meeting was one long to be remembered as it brought to mind the former school days of men now in busy life. Besides the members of the local chapter, alumni from all over the state were present to exchange ideas and enjoy the enthusiasm of the younger members of the fraternity. The alumni present were: Messrs. N. S. Harwood, W. C. Wilson, D. L. Love, M. I. Aitken, J. L. Teeters, E. C. Strode, W. S. Summers, H. G. Whitmore, F. L. Summers, C. C. Marlay, J. F. Saylor, W. T. Stevens, of Lincoln; E. J. Cornish, J. L. Pierce, H. A. Meyers, R. H. Olmstead, of Omaha; J. E. Cobbe of Beatrice; O. S. Miller Fairmont; C. H. Sloan of Geneva, G. H. Thomas of Harvard; W. W. Wilson of Nebraska City; J. B. Barnes, jr. of Norfolk; G. F. Kenower of Wisner; A. J. Weaver and J. C. Graham of Falls City; W. T. Thompson of Central City; R. H. Manley of Fremont; L. A. Wilson of Seward. The active members present were: Messrs. A. K. Barnes and G. C. Barnes, J. L. Kind, W. A. Christenson, R. A. Drain, O. G. Whipple, W. W. Burt, B. A. Yoder, J. P. Cleland, F. H. Woodland, B. K. King, E. J. Bauman, V. A. Henderson, L. M. Weaver, A. L. Brown, C. W. Weeks, D. H. Atwood, A. Watkins, jr. and A. E. Parmelee.

The members of the Wednesday afternoon club gave a banquet last evening in the Brace building, in compliment to their husbands. This is a delightful little club composed of thirteen ladies. It was organized a short time before the holidays and meets fortnightly at the homes of the members. The ladies assure their husbands and friends that the afternoons spent together are perfectly delightful, but refuse to reveal any secrets concerning them. The members of the club are: Mesdames Beeson, Brown, Buckstaff, Coffroth, Green, Hargreaves, Irvine, Leonard, Funke, Tilton, Wright, Wilson and Thompson. At the banquet last night covers were laid for twenty-four. The table was gorgeously decorated with meteor roses and lighted with red candles under flame colored shades. The dinner was a sumptuous one served in ten courses. At the conclusion of the meal cards and dancing were enjoyed.

The Woman's club rooms on Twelfth and M streets were the scene of a largely attended and brilliant reception on Tuesday afternoon, given in honor of the wives of the Nebraska legislators and of the state officers. The hostesses were the members of the Parliamentary department, Mrs. Nellie M. Richardson leader, assisted by the officers, leaders of the departments and members of the club. The guests were graciously received by Mrs. Richardson and Mrs. A. W. Field, president of the club. The rooms were profusely decorated with palms and flowers conspicuous among the latter being those of violet hue, the club color. Cozy corners and pleasant resting places were arranged here and there, tempting the callers to linger and listen to the music of an orchestra, stationed behind the palms, or to visit over the ices which were daintily served by Mesdames O'Connell, Orcutt, Chapman, Henry, Castor and Miss Young. It was a pretty thought, this reception and the guests of honor responded almost unanimously among those present being Mrs. Poynter, wife of the Governor and Mrs. Gilbert, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor.

Mrs. J. J. Pyle gave a complimentary banquet last Saturday evening in the dining hall at the university conservatory of music to the members of Delta Upsilon fraternity. The decorations were palms and crimson carnations. Covers were laid for sixteen and the banquet was served faultlessly. The menu cards were dainty creations in
