Died on Wednesday March 29th in Topeka, Kans., Mr. E. J. Carlidge, who for several years was employed in the B & M office of this city, and since his removal in 1892 has been with the Santa Fe office at Topeka. During his residence in Lincoln he was a faithful and valued member of the First Congregational church, where he and his family are affectionately remembered. In his last days his entire family were with him, his two sons, Edward C. and Harold, being residents of Topeka. His eldest daughter, Mrs. W. W. Peet, was summoned by cable from Constantinople last autumn and has since remained with her father and mother. Mrs. W. N. Hawley of Herrington, Kans., and Mrs. W. Weymouth of New Mexico were also present.

News has been received of the death of Mr. J. C. Gregory at his home in New York. Mr. Gregory owned considerable property in Lincoln, was known by many Lincoln citizens and has relatives here.

Mr. C. B. Gregory has gone to New York to attend his uncle's funeral.

LADY JONQUIL.

Lady Jonquil, tell me pray Where you got your fine array, Surely, surely, you never found That handsome dress in the ugly ground? I think some fairy wove for you With woad of sunshine, warp of dew, The yellow robe you wear With such a queenly air. There you stand all hedged about With many a growing tender sprout Like some well guarded queen of old Gowned in royal robes of gold— Haughty Jonquil, tell me pray Where you got your fine array The yellow robe you wear With such a queenly air.

TO KATHERINE.

Melting and soft, and yet underneath, Like a sword flashed from a velvet sheath, Thy glance shines out in bewildering fire, To fill my soul with a mad desire.

Like a fluttering moth my fancy flies Round the candle flame of thy burning eyes; And though it be death to linger near, The glamour hath robbed my soul of fear. —William Reed Dunroy.

"What your husband needs madam is rest. He ought to go the mountains for a month or two."

"But he won't go Doctor."

"H'm. Then suppose you go."
