Awfully sad about chappie.
What?
He tries to be horsey and is simply asinine.

What would people say if I were to appear in tights, John?
They would probably say I married
you for your money.

Bighead—Dr. Briggs cannot swallow
the story of Jonah and the whale.
Giglamps—Well, there are lots of people that can't swallow Briggs.

Tinker—I wonder why Carnegie de-

Tucker—I guess the iron must have entered his soul.

Social and Personal

A very pretty wedding which united the destinies of Miss Lou Diana Peebles and Mr. Otis Herbert Barr, occurred Wednesday at 5 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Mary Peebles. The ceremony was performed beneath a large bell of pink roses in a bay window, banked with palms. Rev. R. T. Chipperfield, brother-in-law of the bride officiated, and was assisted by Rev. L. T. Guild and Rev. G. W. Isham, the service of the Methodist Episcopal church being used. The bride was sweet and pretty in a gown of white organdie. The floral decorations throughout the large house were pink and white and were unusually profuse. In the reception hall were great masses of pink and white carnations. The drawing room was resplendent with American beauties, the setting room had bride roses and the dining room bridesmaid roses, while the fragrant pink and white blossoms were scattered with prodigality through other rooms, and the wide doorways, of which there are a number, were curtained with ropes of smilax. After the marriage a supper was served on round tables by the four brothers of the bride to the following: Mr. and Mrs. Barr, Rev. and Mrs. Chipperfield, Rev. and Mrs. Isham, Rev. Guild, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Hughes of David City, Mrs. N. J. Ronin, sister of Mrs. Peebles, of Aurora, Mr. White, Mr. Lane, Miss Gertrude Barr, Mr. Browne Barr, all of Hastings, Misses Wycoff, Folts, Beecher; Mrs. A. I. Hadley, of Beaver City, Misses Isnam, Hughes; Masters Chipperfield and Isham. From 8 until 10 a wedding reception was given, about 500 persons calling to greet the bride and groom. The guests were received by Mrs. Peebles, Mr. and Mrs. Barr, Rev. and Mrs. Chipperfield, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Hughes, of David City. Refreshments were served by Miss Pearl Wycoff assisted by Misses Moore, Folts, Mc'all and Anderson. The bride has spent all of her "grown up" life in Lincoln, and the esteem in which she is held was attested by the many lovely gifts she received. The groom is a prominent young business man of Hastings, being manager of the Howard Lumber Company. After a short sojourn in the Rocky Mountains, Mr. and Mrs. Barr will begin housekeeping in Hastings.

Mrs. A. S. Raymond, the newly elected president of the Matinee Musicale, was at home to the members of the club on Monday afternoon that they might hear the reports of the delegates to the St. Louis convention. Mrs. Raymond spoke in a general way of the Biennial, of the thoughtful and complete arrangements made for the pleasure and comfort of the visitors, of the beautiful homes which were thrown open, the receptions and concerts given for the delectation of the club women and of the lavish hospitality manifested in every possible way. Mrs. P. V. M. Raymond told of the beautiful choral work which they heard, and emphasized the fact that the best solo voices were in the chorus, reminding the club that this should be the case here. Mrs. E. Lewis Baker gave the humorous side of the convention, for there is a humorous side to even the meetings of dignified club women. Mrs. J. W. Winger, the retiring president, spoke of the five year's work of the Matinee Musicale saying that its aims had been high although its ideals had not always been reached. After the reports punch and small cakes were served from a lilac decked table by Mrs. E. H. Barbour, assisted by Misses Ruth Raymond, Gladys Hargreaves, Elsie Fawell, Helen Wilson, and Louise Burnham.

Since the war upon hats has been carried into nearly all of the theatres of the country and some of the churches, ladies have come to realize the advantage to those sitting behind them and the majority of women, at concerts and plays, remove their chapeaux during the performance. The same should be done at musicales in private homes of which so many are now given. There is even greater need of it in the houses, than in the opera houses, because of the fact that the floors are level making it impossible for those in the rear to see through a labyrinth of plumes or maze of brilliant flowers. Fashion demands also that hats should be removed at evening receptions. These latter are functions demanding the most elegant dressing. Decollete or at least handsomely made light gowns should be worn, while afternoon receptions demand street gowns and bonnets. At afternoon card parties it is also considered in better taste to remove the bonnet although greater latitude is available here.

The window of curios arranged by Mr. Ed Franklin who has just returned from the Philippines is very interesting. The rain coat made of loosely woven cocoanut fibre hangs in the centre of one window. Below are the uncomfortable looking shoes worn by Filipino ladies divided into two parts, one for the big toe and the other for the four of lesser rank, and with the sole set up two inches from the ground on two pieces of wood; the small silver and bone tobacco pipes, carved sword and sheaths, beautiful swords, sabres and scimitars, carved boxes and embroidered banners. In the other window are guns, Filipino uniforms, hand woven banners, scarfs and more swords. The collector, Mr. Ed Franklin, was a member of the famous and gallant First Nebraska and the collection is evidence of rare taste and discrimination. Mr. Franklin says that while he was engaged in fighting many of the rarest treasures of the collection were stolen.

The members of Kappa Kappa Gamma celebrated the birthday of the local chapter by a sumptuous banquet given last evening at 7 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Whedon. The table was decorated with American beauties. Many gifts of flowers and confectionery were received from other fraternities. The active members present were Misses Richards, Hargreaves, Hammond, Whiting, Holbrook, Outcalt, LaSelle, Broady, Wetzel, Hayes, Raymond, Houtz, and Mrs. H. H. Wilson; Alumnae Mesdames Miller, Abbott, Hardy, Hall; Misses Lindley, Collins of Wahoo, Kirker, Cropsy, of Fairbury, Ellen Gere, Frances Gere, Grigge, Gere, Whiting, Risser, Lau, Whedon, Margaret Whedon and Helena Lau.
