

A BALLAD OF COIFFURES.

Oh, I remember passing well
The curly bang she used to wear,
That rippling to her eyebrows fell
And gave to her a roguish air,—
My Nellie of the nut-brown hair—
But Nellie's gone for evermore,
To call her that I'd never dare
Since she's attained a Pompadour.

I mind me of a saintly Nell
Who wore, Priscilla-like, her hair
All primly parted, showing well
A marble forehead smooth and fair;
One height were we, but now, I swear,
She tops me half a foot or more
In the new aspect she doth wear
Since she's attained a Pompadour.

I wish I had made haste to tell
My passion's story, I declare,
Either to Nellie or to Nell,—
No solace find I anywhere,
For nowadays I never dare
To call her naught but Eleanore,
So high and mighty is her air
Since she's attained a Pompadour.

Envoi.

Goddess, whose mandate rules the fair,
Revoke thine edict, I implore,
For I'm beginning to despair
Since she's attained a Pompadour.
—Harper's Bazar.

"Are you sure no one was looking when you kissed her?"
"Positive, she was not even looking herself."

"Are you fond of kissing babies?"
"Well, I like them better than crying one."

THE COURIER AND THE NEW YORK WORLD,
Thrice-a-week Edition,
Practically a Daily at the price of a Weekly.

The striking and important events of the last year have established the overwhelming value of THE THURSDAY WORLD to every reader. For an almost nominal sum it has kept its subscribers informed of the progress of all our wars and, moreover, has reported them as promptly and fully as if it were a daily. With our interests still extending throughout the world, with our troops operating in the Philippines, and the great Presidential campaign, too, at hand, its value is further increased. The motto of THE THURSDAY WORLD is improvement. It strives each year to be better than it was the year before, and public confidence in it is shown by the fact that it now circulates more than twice as many papers every week as any other newspaper, not a daily, published in America. We offer this unequalled newspaper and the COURIER together one year for $1.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.00
