

THEATRICAL.

THE OLIVER.

The first appearance here of Jefferson De Angelis as a star, will take place at the Oliver on Monday evening. The comedian will make his bow in a comic opera written for him by Stanislaus Stange and Julian Edwards, entitled "The Jolly Musketeers." These same collaborators wrote "The Wedding Day," in which De Angelis appeared with Lillian Russell and Della Fox in the successful triple starring arrangement. Mr. DeAngelie, when last seen here, was the principal support of Della Fox in "The Little Trooper," and many remember him as a little jocund man, a good singer of comic ditties and a very lively pair of legs. Manager Zehrung avers that he has secured in the Jefferson De Angelis Opera Company an attraction to suit the tastes of the most fastidious, venport, the northern railroad man, the hero of the drama, admirably. Prices $1.00 to 25 cents.

THE FUNKE.

Managers Crawford & Zehrung of the Funke opera house will present to their patrons next Monday evening George R. Edeson's new farce comedy, "Two Married Men." The cast is composed of S. S. Simpson, Ray Southard, Donald J. Clark, Jack Elliott, Joe Harkins, Alex. Henry, Walter Messinger, Lila Linden, Kittie Ridgeway, Healy Sisters, Anna Houck, Janet Cleveland, May Towns, Edith Lysle and Hattie Wescott. During the progress of the play numerous songs and specialties are introduced, which, together with the many laughable situations of the two married men, go to make up one of the most enjoyable entertainments. Seats now on sale. Prices 15, 25, 35 and 50 cents.

and that the opera will present a spectacular treatment on a scale seldom attempted outside of New York City. Mr. John P. Slocum has managerial end of Jefferson D. Angelis in hand. Seats now on sale at advanced prices.

In speaking of "Alabama," which will appear at the Oliver Wednesday, Nov. 22, the Denver Republican says: "John T. Nicholson's clever company presented 'Alabama' last night to a packed house. 'Alabama' has been given by several organizations in Denver, but none ever presented it as naturally and evenly as this one. Possessing its own beautiful and elaborate scenery, no detail for appropriate sittings is omitted. In the third act the magnolia grove is perfumed so highly that the scent reaches throughout the house. Mr. Nicholson portrays Captain Da-

"Vanity Fair," Hill's newer burlesque and vaudeville, is a bright and wholesome entertainment illustrated by a carefully selected company who are "en rapport" with the strongest elements in song, dance and farce. The stars are C. W. Williams, mimic; the Harbecke, European sensational act; John Leonard, character comedian; Jennie Fulton, the celebrated opera queen; Williams and Allion in the latest coon songs; Hawthorne and Parsons, noted vocal artists; Carlin and Brown, German comedians; Edna Melrose, Gussie Hill and a large chorus of pretty girls. The above cast will present the two latest travesties, "A Jay in New York" and "Hotel Girly Girly." Most of the above artists make their first appearance at the Funke opera house. Three nights, commencing November 21. Prices 15, 25, 35 and 50 cents.
