

Mrs. E. A. Risser, of Council Bluffs, Mesdames Talbot, Foster, Falkner, Rudge, Baker, Seacrest, O'Neal, Hoover. Misses Laura Houtz and Eleanor Raymond served ices and coffee in the dining room, where glowing meteors and red candles enhanced the dainty effect of white water lilies and ferns used in the parlors. Misses Richards, Hargreaves and Woolsey, of Nebraska City, assisted in the dining room. Red pink decorated the punch room, where Misses Nance, Hoover and Woolsey took turns at serving a delicious punch. A mandolin orchestra was stationed in the hall. Mrs. Risser wore a black glace silk, with white satin yoke and passementerie trimmings. Mrs. George Risser was in her wedding gown, a dainty white organdy, slightly en traine, having ruffles of white net and a wreath of violets about the skirt and bodice. Miss Risser wore a handsome brocaded cream satin.

A surprise party was planned by Mrs. O. J. Wilcox for her husband Tuesday night. For several days Mr. Wilcox was seemingly blind to the fact that his sideboard and table had suddenly been transformed into a small conservatory of lovely chrysanthemums, and only on the arrival of the guests did he manifest any surprise. Each guest was handed a card with the name of some animal written upon it, but written in such a manner that it was only with serious thought that the letters were placed in their proper positions. After discovering the names of the different animals, wonderful likenesses were portrayed and an immense bunch of chrysanthemums was offered as a prize for the best drawing. Hand painted name cards assisted the gentlemen in finding their partners for the dining room. The following were the invited guests: Messrs. and Mesdames Huntington, Whiting, Leonard, Miltonberger, Jerome, Coffin, States, Sanderson, Walters, Coffin, Beck, Cone, Sanderson, Leonard, Morton, Randall; Misses Watson, Bennett, Lister, Watson; Mr. Bennett.
