SOCIETY

The fete of Mi-Careme has been kept this week in the various Latin countries of the world. In Paris the queen and the other queens of the Blanchisseuses were chosen long ago and Monday they paraded, a gay, motley crowd of wash women, butchers and bakers. The art students have held carnivals with midnight luncheons. This custom has floated over to America, especially to New York. On Thursday of this week Mr. Howard Constable gave the ghost or phantom party in his studio in celebration of the Mi Careme festival. True, we have had no fete of the Mi-Careme, but nevertheless this week has had very little alloy for a very great number of people—for those who are small in body and small in years there has not been any terrible gong at quarter to nine, not any hurried breakfasts or luncheons, but, instead, a heart-full of thanks to the good Providence and the school board for the interim. Hence the children have feasted and played during the past allotted days. For those "grown-up," there has been music this week to soothe the nerves, cards, dinners for man's entertainment and the exercise of woman's ability, banqueting for pleasure and wit, and a wedding to hallow the day of St. Joseph, the beneficent.

At seven o'clock on Monday evening Miss Nellie Marie Lau, daughter of Mrs. Hans Peter Lau, was married to Mr. George Alfred Spielmann of Chicago, at the home of her mother. There is much space and dignity and a generous staircase in Mrs. Lau's home. These features always add character to a house, but especially did the stately surroundings add impressiveness to the ceremony on Monday evening. There were so many palms and ferns that the entire house seemed like a conservatory. In the parlors there were deep red roses and in the library rose carnations. At the seven o'clock hour Mesdames Giffen, Lew Marshall, Emory Hardy, and the Misses Whedon, Griggs, Whiting, Ellen Gere, Frances Gere, Hargreaves, Outcalt, Clara Hammond, Richards, Houtz, Ricketts, Lindley, Kirker and Colson began to sing the glorious jubilant, Lohengrin chorus. Just at the same moment, too, came four young girls, the Misses Funke, Jessie Outcalt, Junge and Giffen, in white organdy gowns bewitchingly trimmed in lace, insertion and pleating, and carrying white ribbons wound in smilax. They waited for the bride and groom at the drawing room entrance. After them came a small maiden, Sarah Outcalt, all in white from tip to toe, and in her hand a tall calla lily, in which rested the wedding ring. The bride and groom passed on, preceded by the ring-bearer to a bow window, quite hidden with palms and Easter lilies, and followed by the ribbon-bearers. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Eason of the Episcopal church. The bride was a lovely sight in a gown of white crepe de Chine trimmed in beautiful lace and a fluffy veil pinned with a pearl and diamond star, a gift from Mr. Spielmann. After the service, a dinner was served to the guests. Yellow ribbons were stretched from the chandelier in the dining room to the four corners of the table. In the center of the table, in a cut glass bowl, was a glorious bunch of yellow tulips. At this, the table of honor, were Mrs. Lau, Mr. and Mrs.

Spielmann and Dr. Giffen. Miss Cochran was the fortunate one in the guest of the bride's banquet. There were handsome gifts with greetings of joy for Mr. and Mrs. Spielmann, who left that evening for Chicago. Mr. Spielmann is an active business man in Chicago, being connected with the Red Star line. Those present besides the members of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority were Messrs. and Mesdames Lau, Junge, Giffen, Outcalt, Lau, Wittmann, Hardy, Marshall, Eisler, Anderson, Haggard, Underwood; the Misses Heaton, Haase, Cochran, Windmayer, Tichlofen, McLaughlin, Heppner and Messrs. Joyce, Hyde, Lau and Folsom.

On Saturday evening a number of friends of Mrs. W. C. Wilson came in most unexpectedly to her, in order to celebrate and to cheer her birthday. Cribbage and keno were played during the evening. Mrs. W. B. Wilson served an elaborate supper. Mesdames Yates, Tilton, Wright, Griffith, Thompson, Buckstaff, Irvine, Ladd and Miss Oakley presented Mrs. Wilson with a beautiful silver candelabra as a souvenir of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Harpham gave a card party to a number of friends on Tuesday evening. In the reception hall and dining room there were graceful vases of meteor roses and in the parlors pink carnations were used as a decorating flower. After a goodly number of games of six-handed euchre had been played, Mrs. Harpham served a two-course luncheon. The invited guests were Messrs. and Mesdames Seacrest, W. F. Folsom, Blish, Traphagen, C. I. Jones, Wilkinson, Rewick, Mart Aitken, M. H. Everett, George Clarke, Lucore, C. I. Chapin, C. F. Harpham, W. C. Mills, Gustin, Van Brunt, O. W. Webster, Gerhart, Rudge, Mrs. Canfield, Miss Weeks and Mr. Ralph Folsom.

On Friday evening, March 16th, Secretary of State Porter and Mrs. Porter entertained a number of people at crokinole. The evening was full of amusement and gaiety. Those present were Governor and Mrs. Poynter, Judge and Mrs. Holcomb, Dr. and Mrs. Dearing, Deputy Secretary and Mrs. Weesner, Secretary and Mrs. Jewell, Messrs. and Mesdames Beck, Foster, Malin, Porter and Gleason; Misses Rose Purcell, Kate Porter, Josephine Poynter, Dr. Minerva Nerebecker, Gertie O. Sullivan, Nellie Purcell; Messrs. L. E. Starrett, C. W. Stewart and Clovis Porter.

On Monday afternoon the Matinee Musicales invited their associated members and friends to a musical tea. Those receiving were Mrs. A. S. Raymond, president, Mrs. Sanderson and Miss Haywood. The Matinee Musical has been particularly happy this winter in its "open meetings," thus giving those active in musical ways and means of the club and those not a charming coming-together in a musical atmosphere. The program was a delightful one. The number by the quintette, "Allegro Brillante," was very enjoyable. Miss Eiche being ill, Mr. Charles Hagenow kindly took her place. Mrs. Sanderson and Miss Holmes sang very well together "Light of Thy Beauty," from Julius Cesare. Miss Oakley gave "Oh, for a Burst of Song," by Allisen. Miss Oakley sang charmingly, the music being unusually well adapted to her voice. Miss
