Phi Kappa Psi gave a cotillion in Walsh's hall on Thursday evening. It has come to seem as if the Phi Kappa Psi cotillion were one of the charming perquisites of spring. The method in its choosing at this time of year may be conscious or unconscious, but however that may be, the season is propitious, for think of all the fresh, new, dainty gowns that are forthcoming just at this time. There is not any more beautiful or more effective decoration in all the wide world than a number of young women in evening gowns. They certainly put, figuratively as well as literally, draperies, palms and ferns into the background. The fraternity colors of pink and lavender were draped from chandelier to chandelier, the length of the dancing hall, and the lights were covered with pink shades. There were a great number of palms at the end of the hall, behind which sat the orchestra. High above on the wall was a handsome Phi Kappa Psi shield. The cotillion was led by Mr. Shedd and Miss Hargreaves. There were twelve figures, among them was the always effective sword figure, a new skating figure, in which to the winners' side belonged the dance, and a placard figure, where the young ladies placed placards with humorous observations written upon them on the shoulders of the young men. The cotillion closed with what may be called the Phi Kappa Psi flower figure, pink roses tied with lavender ribbon being presented to each young woman as a souvenir from Phi Kappa Psi. There were many unique favors of almost every conceivable design. On Thursday evening Aladdin's lamp was not a necessity, or perhaps it was there. At eleven o'clock a supper was served in the dining room. Those receiving were Mr. Paul Weeks, Mr. Clark and Mr. Collett; Misses Jaynes, Holbrook and Hayes. Those invited were Messrs. and Mesdames Morrison, Weeks, Burnham, Ladd and Hayes; Misses Hargreaves, Holbrook, Honeywell, Post, Cole, Hayes, Macomber, Woods, Maude Macomber, Jackson, Salee, Emmons, Jaynes, Cunningham, Douglas, Tukey, Burnham, Haecker, Welch, Garten, Bradt, Laach, Gregory, Burr, Outcalt, Clara Hammond and Putnam; Messrs. Raymond, Tukey, Weeks, Sherman, Fitzgerald, Smith, Williams, Joyce, Walsh, Ricketts, Engel, Honeywell, Hildreth, Fricke, Chapin, Kormeyer, Louis Kormeyer, Paul Weeks, Deweese, Brown, Manchester, Cuscaden, Pearce, Collett, Crandall, Sedgwick, Holt, Clark, Shedd, Hayes and Haecker.

Wednesday Lee Bohemiennes spent the day in Omaha as the guests of Mrs. Beeson. She gave them an elaborate luncheon at the Omaha club, which was thoroughly enjoyed. The afternoon was passed in the Omaha shops with resting moments at the confectioners. They returned on the evening train after having had a beautiful day. Mrs. Beeson was a member of the Bohemiennes when she lived in Lincoln.

Mr. Charles Elliott left Monday for Chicago, where he has been appointed a Burlington physician. Mr. Elliott and Miss Elliott expect to leave for Chicago, shortly and make their home there with Mr. Charles Elliott.

The Athenae club gave its annual dinner at the home of Mrs. Will Green on Thursday. The club has always had the happy custom of having this dinner either with Mrs. Lamb or Mrs. Green and so the members at this yearly banquet, when the husbands are feted, have rather the feeling of being at their club home. Those present were: Messrs. and Mesdames Bailey, S. G. Dorr, John Fawell, Fling, Green, Will Green, Lamb, E. L. Holyoke, John Harley, Ladd, Manes, William Kelly, Tilton, Talbot, Mrs. Lansing, Judge and Mrs. Irvine.

Mr. C. C. Wilson, president of the Postal Clerk's Association, and Mr. Beach, secretary of the association, were at home to the members of the order and their wives on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson. The men had prepared an interesting and unusual program for the entertainment of the W. R. P. C., the wives of the men in the postal service. There were some very amusing caricatures of postal service examinations besides music and stories. Miss May Day Moore presided at the punch bowl, and ice cream, cake, chocolate, bon-bons and salted almonds were served. Mr. Wilson and Mr. Beach are the retiring officers of the association.

Major and Mrs. James W. Dawes are stationed in Quemados de M., Cuba, near Havana. The house keeping arrangements of the officers' families in Cuba have the virtue of great simplicity. Mrs. Dawes says that their cook is a Cuban woman who moved into the house with kitchen furnishings and dining room furniture and china. She cooks for Major and Mrs. Dawes herself, and her little grandson, on a small charcoal stove. The dark little Cuban boy is the interpreter of the household and very bright and handsome. Their rooms are furnished very simply but they are large and their windows are always open to a landscape forever changing color under the peculiar atmospheric effects of a semi-tropical sky. Mrs. Dawes' windows open into a rose garden full of roses. The Senora's rooms are filled every day with freshly cut Cuban roses. It is an ideal winter home. Camp Columbia is about a mile from town. General Lee and the quartermaster have their offices in town. Major Dawes has to go into Havana two or three times each month for money. The Senora generally accompanies him. The government mules
