

bowls of violets. The menu consisted of chicken croquettes, peas, Saratoga potatoes, and lettuce sandwiches; salad, salted wafers, violet ice cream, cake and coffee. The guests were: Mesdames Devore, A. A. Scott, Follmer, Bain, McKinnon, Ewing, Mayer, Pennington, Stevens, Johnson, O'Neal, Phillips, L. O. Jones, Smith, Rehlaender, Rose, and Robinson. Misses Margaret Howland, Ewing, Bahlman, Smith, Danielson, Leese, Ringer, Shute, Johnson, Stuart and White. Mrs. Axtell was assisted by Inez Crow, Agatha Totten and Evelyn Axtell. The event of the evening was the initiation of Miss Fay Ewing.

Les Bohemiennes met with Mrs. Tilton on Wednesday.

Mrs. William B. Ogden entertained in honor of Mrs. Beman Dawes on Thursday. Each guest had an animal to draw upon the blackboard while the others guessed from the illustration its name, and as the image in one's mind and the image upon the board were often two very different affairs there was much speculation and amusement over the titles of the various illustrations. Apple blossoms and lilacs filled the house full of the fragrance and beauty of spring. It is a pleasure to Mrs. Dawes' friends to have her here once again and after the game and while various plats in which Mrs. Ogden is so skilled were served, there was conversation of days not so very long gone by. The invited guests were: Mesdames Beman, Dawes, Curtice, Morrison, Lew Marshall, Will Kelley, Tilton, Griffith, George Woods, John Dorgan, Walter Hargreaves and Funke. Miss Oakley and Miss Price.

Miss Mickey entertained the Xenodochy club and their friends on Tuesday evening. A variety of games kept the minds of the Xenodochians keen and alert and the hour for departure came much too soon. One of the amusements of the evening was an auction, each one being given a certain number of beans with which he could purchase any of the raffled articles for which he chose to bid high enough. The bidders had only the exterior of the parcel to judge from as only possession revealed the contents, which were always something amusing. Those invited were the Misses Inez Crow, Clara Folz, Nora Hodgman, Agatha Totten, Edith Hodgman, Grace McKibben, Blanche McKibben, Lucile Sitler, Carrie Case, Carrie Scott, Evelyn Axtell, Florence Westcott, Edith Mickey, Eva Sherdeman and Edith Dewey. Messrs. Crail Pennington, Charlie Perrin, Emil Erisman, Charles Biggerstaff, Rollin Bonnell, Frank Johnson, Herbert McCulloch, Axel Stratton, Earl Brown, George Bromfield, Morey Hodgman, Edwin Creitz, Oscar McMasters and William Green.

Mrs. Huntington entertained a few friends on Monday evening.

Mrs. Erwin of Omaha, is visiting her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Erwin, for a few weeks.

Mrs. Klinker entertained in honor of her husband's birthday on Saturday evening at four handed euchre. The affair was a great surprise to Mr. Klinker and hence an added pleasure. The atmosphere of the house was sweet and gardenlike for there were apple blossoms, pink carnations and roses in abundance. A three course luncheon in which the pink color-idea was happily carried out, was served. Those present were: Messrs. and Mesdames Emory, Hardy, C. I. Jones, George Fox, Jewell, Clarence Coffin, Vergil Stone, Henry Burgis, Will Weidner, Bagnell, O. P. Erlenborn, H. A. Ensign, Charles Slat-
