SOCIETY

New York and Boston society columns, just now, make us feel our own limitations in the way of summering places. Their social planets have not many miles to go in order to reach Westchester, Oyster Bay, Meadow Brook, Bar Harbor and Tuxedo.

If only at Crete, Waverly or Milford there were a lake, a sandy shore, a fish or two and cool northerly breezes, then the Charles Alexanders, the Doers, the Vanderbilts, the Astors, the Ogden Mills, the Gardiners and the Ames would be hurrying off to country homes, Nebraska stationery would flourish with such names as Billmore and Fern Lodge, and the prairie would be rife with polo and golf. As long as golf is the plaint of today's theme if only there were a cool, comfortable spot, perhaps at Denton, for that still large majority who want principally cool air and rest, a place attractive, too, for those frequent lovers of sand piles, stones and wading, and if at Burlington Beach there were something to do, something to eat and shady walks where people that labor all the long day might go for the evening then the sun could shine, the corn could grow and the long heat of summer would not be the ominous foe that it seems. If only nature, Aladdin, Edson or Carnegie would deposit a mile of the Atlantic in the Lincoln suburbs even the cynical, the thoughtless and the ungrateful, would give a sigh of relief.

On Tuesday from five to eight, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Curtice gave a reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Beman Dawes. It is a pleasure to notice these receptions where the time is so arranged that both the advantages of afternoon and evening hours are attained. It is a small beginning, but beginning nevertheless it is of the time when men shall have short business hours and there will be more leisure and hence pleasure in this much-too-busy world. In the hall were great bowls of lilacs and smilax was wound around the newel post and up the balustrade. Mr. and Mrs. Curtice, Mr. and Mrs. Beman Dawes and Madame Curtice received in the drawing room. Mrs. Dawes was beautifully gowned in white lace over white silk and Mrs. Curtice wore a picturesque gown of pink and white foularde. Pink and white were the colors used in the drawing room. There were vases of sweet peas about, the first of the season's offering. There is a certain charm and personality about a pink flood of light, about pink ribbons and pink flowers, that will always be lasting. In the library were pink roses and candles. A white ice was served here, Miss Burr in a white gown presided at the refreshing bowl. She was assisted by Mrs. Morrison, Mrs. Alley, Miss Gahan and Miss Oakley. In the dining room the theme of color was mainly white. Mrs. Eames, all in white, presided at a table laden with an abundance of good things. Salad and coffee, hot rolls, pickles and radishes were served here. There were pink roses on the sideboard and on the cabinets. Mrs. Eames was assisted by Mesdames Lew Marshall, Fred Howe, George Woods, George Crancer and W. F. Kelley. Mesdames L. C. Burr, Carl Funke and Ogden assisted in the various rooms. An orchestra played continually. The atmosphere of the reception on Tuesday was particularly happy, because it gave the friends and acquaintances of Mr. and Mrs. Dawes the opportunity to meet them again, and there is a true, short line that reads, "Friendship is the wine of life."

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hall gave a dinner on Thursday for Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Moore who expect to leave Lincoln on Friday for New York, and to sail from there in a few days for Europe. The table decorations were vases of graceful bride roses and a silver candelabra with pink candles. A dinner of seven courses was served. The invited guests were: Messrs. and Mesdames R. E. Moore, G. M. Lambertson, S. H. Burnham, W. C. Wilson, Doctor and Mrs. Ladd. Many wishes there were of bon voyage for Mr. and Mrs. Moore.

The Oliver was crowded on Monday evening with a brilliant audience. The boxes on the left were occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Lambertson and Miss Watkins. The second box framed Mr. and Mrs. Curtice, Madame Curtice and Mrs. Beeman Dawes, their guest. Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Raymond and Mr. and Mrs. Ogden occupied the third box. On the right the first box was occupied by gentlemen, the second by Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald, the latter in a very picturesque red bodice and black picture hat. Colonel Ewing's and Colonel Wilson's seat, fourth from stage, left, having, unfortunately, been sold before they came in, these two genial gentlemen sat in a box up stairs.

The Art department of the Woman's club met on Wednesday with Mrs. Frank Hall. It was the last meeting of the year and therefore more of an informal social occasion. Mrs. Hayden was elected president, and Mrs. Hall

A Step In The Pure Food Science . . .

The importance of "Pure Food Products" can scarcely be overestimated, and in order to create a demand for the pure, wholesome and nutritious in food stuffs, and to urge upon the public the wisdom of selecting only that which comes nearest the ideal of perfection, an extensive "Pure Food Exhibit" will be undertaken in Lincoln May 14th to 19th.

It promises to be the most elaborate display of its kind ever given in Nebraska, and is planned with the sole object of demonstrating to Nebraska people the purest and most wholesome food which wide experience can bring together, of the best in every line which human effort and money can accomplish.

Every article displayed will represent the highest development in its line, in the science of food preparation. "The Keystone" has given a great deal of thought and study to the subject of "Good Things to Eat," and wish to urge the vital importance of "Pure Food."

We only ask that you visit this exhibit, test the best goods which science and skill produce, and note for yourself their delicacy and superior nutritious quality. We rest assured as to the result.
