Tukey, Sherman, Paul Weeks, Raymond, Louis Korsmeyer, Clark, McCreery, Sheldon, Harry Shedd, Seacrest, Crandall, Holt, Fitzgerald, Culver, Haecker, Pearse, Rainey, Hugh Edmisten, Von Mansfeld and Dr. White. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lau were the chaperones.

Mrs. A. E. Fowler gave an informal afternoon on Tuesday. There were lovely Jacques roses in various vases. Miss Young sang charmingly and Miss Person recited the "Ruggles" from the Bird's Christmas Carol in an effective manner, bringing out the true Ruggles' spirit.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Wright gave a card party to a large number of people on Monday evening in honor of their tenth anniversary. The house that night was a conservatory not only of flowers and lovely bric-a-brac, but of pretty women in charming frocks. In the drawing room were great jardinières of snow balls, fringed flower and purple iris. The oriental room, which is always soothing and refreshing had for its presiding flowers red roses, red carnations and asparagus ferns. In the library was the same flower scheme. The dining room was pretty with pink and white carnations, and roses with asparagus ferns. There were seventeen tables. Mrs. Griffith and Mrs. Curtice cut for the royal prize, Mrs. Griffith being the successful one. She was presented with a Queen Louise in a Florentine frame, Mrs. Buckstaff who took the part of a gentleman during the game bore off the masculine laurels. Her reward was a picture of the Countess Potocka, framed in black and gold. Mr. Crancer had the best lone-hand record and was awarded with a match-ceiver in the shape of crossed pipes. Mrs. Rector and Judge Irvine cut for the consolation gift, a pair of silver manicure scissors. The score cards were of clever design, being tin hearts with the dates 1890-1900 and the letters R. W. A few of Mrs. Wright's intimate friends presented her with a Rookwood vase of graceful contour. A supper of three courses and of many good things was served after the game.

Mrs. Charles M. Keefer gave a chafing dish luncheon on Tuesday in honor of Mrs. J. W. Chamberlain of Denver. Each cover was distinguished by violet and white ribbons at the end of which red and white roses were tied. On the white ribbon was engraved in red letters, "Mrs. Charles M. Keefer at home Tuesday, May 15, 1900. Complimentary to Mrs. J. W. Chamberlain." On the violet ribbon were the names of the guests: Mrs. J. W. Chamberlain, Mrs. D. B. Cropsey, Mrs. J. L. Teeters, Mrs. H. P. Eames, Mrs. D. D. Muir, Mrs. G. W. Lowrey, Mrs. O. M. Stonebraker, Mrs. H. A. Lee, Mrs. J. A. Rudd, Mrs. E. E. Bennet and Miss Gertrude Bradt of Beatrice. The table centre was a bowl of splendid red and white roses with a reflector as a background. Mrs. Keefer and Mrs. H. A. Lee presided at the chafing dishes and as a result a fine lobster Newberg was produced. The menu consisted of the Newberg, olives, pickles, lettuce sandwiches, fruit salad and wafers, ice cream in moulds, cake coffee and small cakes.

The annual banquet of Kappa Kappa Gamma will be given this evening at the home of Mrs. Emory C. Hardy.

Mrs. John B. Wright entertained on Tuesday afternoon. There were about one hundred and thirty-five invitations and about one hundred guests present. A long rain always gives a particular stimulus to be out and about and hence on Tuesday it was with special pleasure that one found one's way to Mrs. Wright's. The house was a garden of blossoms and fragrance, there being red roses and carnations and asparagus ferns in the Turkish room and in the library, snow balls, fringed flower and iris in the reception room, and pink and white roses and carnations, and asparagus fern in the dining room. A clever, musical guessing game was the afternoon's amusement. The guests were seated six at a table, and each woman was allowed a partner with whom to confer concerning the conundrums offered:

- A support for the shoulders—Brace. Twenty—Score.
- A story in an apartment house—Flat. Not artificial—Natural.
- The beginning and end of one of Shakspeare's plays—Measure, Oxygen and nitrogen combined—Air. A measure used—Foot. What bread is—Staff. Represented by hour-glass and sickle—Time.
- To observe—Note. An army officer—Major. Necessary condition for surgical instruments—Sharp.
- A promise to pay three days after due—Grace Note. Three times as much—Trebble. A quiver of the voice—Trill. To filter—Strain. A vegetable—Beet. A topic—Theme. Remedy for fatigue—Rest. Material that defiles—Pitch. Name of one of Milton's finest poems—L'Allegro.
- The table of a shop—Counter. The stone which binds an arch—Key. Four-fifths of an Athenian law giver—Syncope. What children do in winter—Slide. By chance—Meter.
- A war-like defense, and the letter most used in printing Forte—Forte. Miss Oakley and Miss Hollowbush won the first prizes, Miss Oakley receiving a Caproni head of Mozart and Miss Hollowbush a picture. Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Highland Wheeler cut for the second prize, Mrs. Mitchell being the winner. She received a Madonna picture in an open work black frame. A pair of silver embroidery scissors was the consolation gift.

Miss Cochrane left on Sunday for Schnectady, New York, where she expects to remain for the summer as the guest of Mrs. Willetts Sawyer, born Case.
