SOCIETY

On Friday of last week there came to town unawares a man well known by name, by figure and by face. Two women were at the Burlington station, the one a long-time resident of Lincoln, the other dwells in Beatrice. In the baggage room, with his back to them, there stood a man, erect, shoulders thrown back, with longish hair and rather a peculiar round bald spot. He was without a coat and without a hat. Said the one who dwells in Beatrice: "That man is Elbert Hubbard." Said the other: "Impossible!" Said the one who dwells in Beatrice: "That is Elbert Hubbard's back. When I know a man I know him." The man walked out of the station and up the platform. The two followed him at a distance, waiting until he should turn. He turned, and he was Elbert Hubbard. They watched him; they hesitated, they looked at each other. Said the two, "Why, how do you do, Mr. Hubbard." Said Mr. Hubbard, "How do you do," and he smiled that peculiar, charming smile of welcome that Lincoln learned to know not many months gone by. Said the one who dwells in Beatrice, "I live in Beatrice, I am just going down." Said Fra Elbertus, "Oh, yes; you came up to hear my lecture when I was here. There was a man from your town, too, I remember. He was a superintendent. His name was—Cutter. I am on my way to Denver. I lecture there tomorrow night." The train whistled, and they all shook hands.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. FitzGerald entertained on Friday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Lahr. The invited guests were Messrs. and Mesdames Lahr, C. R. Lee, D. M. Butler, W. C. Phillips, E. Lewis Baker, E. A. Rogers, J. A. Devore, A. W. Field, Dr. and Mrs. Winnett and Dr. and Mrs. Finney, and Mr. H. C. Young. Many were the wishes for a peaceful Atlantic during Mr. and Mrs. Lahr's passage and also later a happy trip in the old world for them.

Mr. Dietrich Lau gave a dancing party Saturday evening at his home in honor of the Omaha high school students who came to participate in or to support their fellow students in the field day exercises. The Law home and grounds are spacious and, therefore, charming and full of repose, especially in warm weather. The porch and green were gayly lighted, and settees and chairs found welcome occupants between the dancing. The guests of the evening were the Misses Pauline Meyer, Jessie Outcalt, Louise Hargreaves, and Mrs. Reese, Doctor and Mrs. Ed-

Marie Weesner, Nellie Macfarland, Mabel Bennett, Claire Funke, Margie Loomis, Ada Kirkendall, Bessie Brady, Lucy Gere, Grace Thurston, Marion Connell, Henrietta Bartlett, Jeanie Wakefield; Messrs. Amos Thomas, Alex Lau, Will Stein, Will Chiverick, Hal Swobe, Harry Giffen, Isaac Raymond, Arthur Jaynes, West, Allen Sedgwick, West, Earl Farosworth, Lloyd Killian, Albert Fawell and Fred Righter.

Professor and Mrs. Caldwell gave a dinner on Saturday evening to Reverend and Mrs. Manser, Professor and Mrs. Foesler, Regent and Mrs. Gregory, Miss Geisthardt and Mr. Geisthardt.

Mr. Charles B. Gregory left Wednesday, May 23, for New York. He sails with the Dr. Leese party on June 9th.

The T. N. N. gave a luncheon at twelve o'clock, noon, on Saturday at the Lindell hotel in honor of a few of the Omaha young ladies who came to attend the field day sports. The name cards had girl's heads cleverly done upon them in black and white. Great was the anticipation as to the outcome of the afternoon's conquest, and this feature added zest and wit to the many-course luncheon. The Misses Jessie Outcalt, Claire Funke, Pauline Meyer, Marie Weesner, Zelia Cornell, Mabel Bennett, Mabel Muir, Ruth Macfarland and Daisy Hargreaves are the members. Their Omaha guests were Misses Henrietta Bartlett, Jene Wakefield, Marion Cornell, Ada Kirkendall, Lucy Gore, Bessie Brady, Grace and Gene Thurston, and their Lincoln guests were Misses Elsie Fawell, Ruth Raymond, Leh Meyer, Louise Burnham, Alva Clark, Mabel Cox and Gladys Hargreaves.

Mrs. E. W. Nelson gives a card party this afternoon. Six handed euchre is to be the game. The invited guests are: Mesdames M. I. Aitken, Hutchins, Guenzel, Casebeer, A. A. Scott, Usher, Jewell, Hyatt, Thompson, Coffin, Rewick, H. H. Harley, Graves, Maher, Mary, Kelley, O'Connell, Steven, Hover, Stewart, Widener, Elias Baker, Rehlaender, Manahan, Sjoberg, Bignell, Munson, Cook, Bartruff, Ned Brown, Gardiner, Morning, Frank Harpham and McKeighan. Miss Leese, Miss Stevens and Miss Stonebraker.

Acting Chancellor and Mrs. Bessey were at home to the Senior class of the University on Saturday evening. They were assisted in receiving by Regent and Mrs. Morrill, Regent and Mrs. Teeters, Dean and Mrs. Sherman, Dean Jessie Outcalt, Louise Hargreaves, and Mrs. Reese, Doctor and Mrs. Ed-
