SOCIETY

The days of the reception are numbered. The luncheon and dinner, too, have passed their season of greatest charm, and soon will enter the list of memories of former years. Soon the butterfly of fashion will find her wings drooping wearily in the heat and dust of a Nebraska summer, and she will spread her silken pinions and fly away to fields of fresh conquest in cooler climes. A few spasmodic attempts at social gayety will yet be made before the final fitting. There are stunning new gowns which must be exhibited at least once in Lincoln before they are packed away for their summer journey. The milliners' "confections" which are now absorbing the time and shekels devoted lately to "Lowsey's" and "Gunter's," must also take their part in the grand dress parade. But a feeling of weariness in spite of the gorgeous toilettes, a longing for quiet and repose looks out from the eyes overshadowed by the latest "creation." There is a chord in every human breast, be it covered with calico or satin, which feels a responsive thrill at the wild bird's song. There are yet a few society devotees who in their hearts prefer the simple violet to the orchid. It is the "touch of nature that makes the whole world kin."

The Congregational church gave a reception on Tuesday evening to Mr. and Mrs. Manes, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Brown. Mr. and Mrs. Manes, Mr. and Mrs. Brown and Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Wilson received the guests. Other ministers and representatives of other churches called during the evening, as the reception was a compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Manes, their friends irrespective of artificial classifications into this or that church called. Mesdames C. C. Morse, B. F. Bailey, F. W. Gibson, Willard Kimball, Cunningham and F. M. Hall were special committee on introductions and affability. In the dining room Mrs. P. V. M. Raymond and Mrs. A. S. Raymond served ice cream, assisted by Mrs. Beman, Mrs. J. B. Horton, Mrs. A. E. Burnett and Miss Starrett. Rows of crystal candlesticks with tall white candles were on the mantel and buffet and a large number of the candlesticks stood in straight lines on the table illuminating immense bunches of roses. Mr. and Mrs. Manes are rapidly building up a united church, and the reception was a slight expression of gratitude for the work they are accomplishing.

On last Saturday, Mrs. C. I. Jones opened her new home for the P. E. O's. to entertain the University Place fraternity and the several visitors of the fraternity who are in the city. Easter lilies and ferns adorned the reception hall and parlor. Carnations and roses prevailed in the second parlor. The dining room was in yellow and white. Jonquils were used in profusion. Mr. Haydn Myer, Jr., met the guests at the door and two little maids in white, Florence Jones and Marie Axtell, ushered them to the room for wraps. Mrs. Jones and Mrs. McKinnon received the guests in the front parlor. Mrs. Myer presided at the coffee urn and was assisted in serving by Miss Shute and Miss Smith. The following guests assembled to enjoy the afternoon: Mesdames Fordyce, Lovejoy, Kirk, O'Neal, Greene, Hursey, Young, McGrew, Hager, Dunn, and Shields; Misses Hall, Shepherd, Le Hew, Alma Le Hew, Burns of University Place, Pillsbury, Haggard and Redford.

Chancellor and Mrs. Andrews gave a reception on Wednesday evening to the University faculty and some others. The rooms were filled very early in the evening with a distinguished university audience who listened to a program of music and readings. The hundreds of people connected in an official way with the university seldom meet during the school year. A reception given by the head of the institution to all the workers is a rare opportunity for passing the good word and the hearty enjoyment on this first occasion when all the faculty and their wives gathered together under Chancellor Andrews' roof, showed that the opportunity was improved. The program:

Reading, "Travelers' First Hunt," Richard Harding Davis, Miss Howell.
Violin, Legende, Wieniawski, Silence Dales.

Reading, "The Tenor," H. C. Bunner, Miss Howell.

Violin, The Butterfly; The Bee, Francois Schubert, Silence Dales.

Reading, "He and She," Edwin Arnold, Miss Howell.

Violin, Larghetto and Cadenza, from G minor sonata, Tartini, Silence Dales.

The Phi Kappa Psi fraternity gave a large dancing party on last Friday evening at the Lincoln hotel. Pink and lavender, the fraternity colors, decorated the foyer. A large goat surveyed the festivities from a group of palms, which he did not eat because he was but the shell of his former self. Supper was served in the ordinary which was full of lilies and Japanese draperies. The patrons and patronesses were: Mr. and Mrs. Weeks, Professor and Mrs. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Oberlies, and Mr. and Mrs. Hays. The guests: Misses Garten, Welch, G. Gennett, Harley, Weesner, Weeks, Johnson, Montgomery, Crandall, Jackson, Emma Outcalt, J. Post, Wiggenshorn, L. Hargreaves, Gahan, Woods, L. Tukey, Funke, Hunt, H. Jost, M. Macomber, Honeywell, C. Tukey, Davenport, Hays, Manne, G. Macomber, M. Bennett, B. Hargreaves, B.

The Lincoln golf club will open the season of 1901 on the first of May. This is the date fixed by the national golf club association, but local enthusiasts have already limbered up their muscles, and when their slower friends begin to wield the sticks they will find a few who are in practice. This year the club expects to double the present membership of one hundred. Arrangements for a new club house have been completed and a golf expert from one the Kansas City clubs has been secured who will have charge of the grounds. The club house is located now at Twenty-third
