

The Ball.

Japanese lanterns suspended from the ceiling, palms, flowers and Moorish lamps decorated the parlors and foyer of the Lincoln, where the ball was given on Wednesday evening.

The two hundred guests were received by Chancellor and Mrs. Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Lewis, and Doctor and Mrs. Streeter. Punch was served during the evening by Misses Dorrance Harwood and Louise Hargreaves. The rotunda was in the Delta Gamma colors. The pillars were wound with pink, blue and bronze drapery and the fraternity emblems hung from the ceiling. The electric globes were shaded with pink. In the ordinary a big umbrella of red flowers was suspended from the chandelier. The refreshment table beneath was adorned with red carnations and red candles.

The hostesses and guests: Chancellor and Mrs. Andrews, Doctor and Mrs. Streeter, Doctor L. A. Sherman; Messrs. and Mesdames H. F. Lewis, H. P. Lau, F. H. Woods, Ray Edmiston; Mesdames Maurice Deutch, H. On Thursday afternoon a general reception was given by the local chapters of Delta Gamma at the home of Miss Starrett, 1510 K street. The house was beautifully decorated with a profusion of long-stemmed American Beauty roses. A large bowl of white roses, the fraternity flower, occupied a place of honor on the piano. In the back parlor a most pleasing effect was secured by the use of college pennants and Delta Gamma ribbons; a large Delta Gamma anchor hung in the doorway leading into the library where the orchestra was stationed. The guests were directed to the dressing rooms by two little girls, Helen Mitchell and Helen Berger. They were then introduced by Mrs. Woods and were received by Miss Starrett, Miss Howard, Miss McClure, Miss Tukey, Miss Ross, Miss Godfrey and Miss Haggard. The porch was beautiful with palms and rugs and supplied with chairs, and shared the popularity of the rooms inside. The dining room table was covered with Battenburg, and with an immense bouquet of American Beauties and a candelabra with red candles carried out the idea of scarlet and cream. Miss Rice and Miss Dewese presided in the dining room, assisted by Mrs. Maurice Deutch and Misses Cochrane, Woods, Jackson, Norin, Weesner, Haecker, Macomber and Louise Tukey. This was the largest reception of the week, as many guests were invited who are not connected with either the fraternities or the University.

On Thursday evening an elaborate lawn party was given by Phi Delta Theta at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Raymond. The lawn was lighted by a hundred electric globes. Japanese lanterns, a large pink and blue Delta Gamma flag, and numerous rugs and pillows gave a picturesque touch to the scene. A large canvassed platform for dancing was erected on the lawn, and phonographs furnished the entertainment between dances. A big Japanese umbrella sheltered the punch table, and ices were served from a table decorated with white roses tied with green ribbons.

The guests, who were resident and visiting Delta Gammas, were received in the parlors by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond, assisted by Chancellor and Mrs. Andrews, Dean and Mrs. Bessey, Dr. and Mrs. Wolcott; Messrs. and Mesdames H. P. Lau, Ray Edmiston, F. H. Woods, Emory Hardy, Corwin, Haggard and R. M. Welch.

On Friday afternoon a lawn party was given by Kappa Alpha Theta at the chapter house, 335 North Fourteenth street. The punch tables were decorated with the fraternity colors, and the lawn was supplied with hammocks and seats. The faculty and a large number of other guests were entertained with the visiting delegates. On Friday afternoon the Delta Delta Deltas also gave a reception from four to six at the home of the Misses Bonnell, Thirteenth and Q streets.

The Banquet.

The banquet on Friday evening was the most elaborate and successful ever given by the fraternity. It was held in the big dining room which was gay with Japanese lanterns and palms. The tables were in the form of a Maltese cross, and the color scheme was green and white. Beautiful silver candelabra with green shades alternated with mounds of pearl roses and ferns, while at each plate was a wreath of smilax enclosing fancy fruit. The name cards were unique and artistic and the menu cards were especially beautiful. They were in the form of a booklet with deep blue cover decorated with a seal of pink and bronze with the Delta Gamma anchor in the centre. The menu and toasts were in the following order:

- Menu
- Macedonian Fruit
  - Frogs' Legs on Toast, Tartar Sauce
  - Olives Salted Almonds
  - Deviled Lobster
  - Filet Mignon a la Richelieu
  - Cauliflower Hollandaise
  - Sorbet en Surprise
  - Spring Chicken a la Maryland
  - Pomme de Terre Petis Pois
  - Stuffed Tomatoes a la Waldorf
  - Wafers
  - Glace Fantastique
  - Petite Fours
  - Fromage Variee Crackers
  - Bon Bons
  - Cafe Demi Tasse
  - Toasts
  - Toastmistress, Elizabeth Wing, Kappa Theta.
  - Toujours la Femme, Jeanette Ostrander, Psi.

"Colonial" Furniture.

Authentic reproductions of historic old colonial pieces, notable in beauty of lines, excellence of construction and finish—a pleasing change from the over-ornamented, chaotic style so common in every store.

We illustrate two patterns and invite your critical inspection of our roll-end mahogany beds with pieces to match. Mahogany card, parlor and work tables; Priscilla Mullan chairs, Quaker chairs, rush bottom, fancy and dining chairs, music cabinets, buffets parlor chairs.

None of the "old feeling" has been lost in reproducing this table. Further enrichment than the rare figured San Domingo mahogany would be out of place. Satin or polish finish; several sizes, $15.00 to $30.00.

An old southern home furnished the original of which this is a copy. The graceful lines of this mahogany frame, the solid color of the silk upholstery makes a severe, yet elegant, parlor furnishing; and there's a curve in the back, a shape in the seat that gives to one a satisfying restfulness so seldom found in beautiful parlor furniture.
