Clarence F. Winters, the son of Mr. J. F. Winters, died last Saturday morning at ten o'clock of typhoid fever. He had been ill for a number of weeks, but had passed the crisis of the disease and was thought to be slowly recovering. His death therefore was an unexpected shock to his friends. Clarence Winters was a member of the graduating class of the Lincoln high school and was to have entered the University in the fall. His death was particularly sad—even for so sad a thing as the death of a boy on the verge of manhood—for he possessed one of those rare natures whose mission it is to make the lives of others brighter and sweeter. He always thought to do those little kindnesses that other people forgot, and those who knew him well, look back on a hundred thoughtful services rendered so gladly and cheerfully that it seems hard that he could not have been spared to make the world a pleasanter place to live in for those who were his friends. He was buried Tuesday morning at eleven o'clock in Wyuka cemetery.
