

THE BRITISH DOCTORS

Are Doing a Noble Work at Their Office at Cor. of 11th and N Sts., Sheldon Bldg.—Numerous Cures are Being Reported Daily.

A staff of eminent physicians and surgeons from the British Medical Institute, at the urgent solicitation of a large number of patients under their care in this country, have established a permanent branch of the Institute in this city, at the office, corner of Eleventh and N streets, in the Sheldon block.

These eminent gentlemen have decided to give their services entirely free for three months (aedicines excepted) to all invalids who call upon them for treatment between now and Oct. 10th. These services will not only consist of consultation, examination and advice, but also of all minor surgical operations.

The doctors treat all forms of disease and deformities, and guarantee a cure in every case they undertake. At the first interview a thorough examination is made; and, if incurable, you are frankly and kindly told so; also advised against spending your money for useless treatment.

Male and female weakness, catarrh and catarrhal deafness, also rupture, goitre, cancer, all skin diseases and all diseases of the rectum are positively cured by their new treatment.

The chief associate surgeon of the Institute, assisted by one or more of his staff associates, is in personal charge.

Office hours from 9 a. m. till 8 p. m.

No Sunday hours.
Special Notice—If you cannot call send stamp for question blank for home treatment.

CURE.

H. WINNETT ORR.
For The Courier.

The tendency of the human body is toward health. From many of the ills that affects a man he recovers spontaneously. This is illustrated by the recovery of many daily from colds, indigestion and other minor acute and occasionally more severe ailments. When a spontaneous recovery occurs in a patient on whom have been used certain measures supposed to be useful in healing the particular malady with which he is afflicted, it is natural that the recovery should be ascribed to the potion or prayer which has been used. The fact remains, however, that the recovery was spontaneous and would have occurred if no such effort had been made. In a dim way people recognize this fact, so they occasionally rebel against medical treatment. But because they cannot entirely get away from the thought that something must be done when a person is sick, they become devotees of faith healing in some form or other. This is a mistake—it is exchanging one extreme for the other. None are more apt to resort to faith healing and totally to abjure medicine in every form than those who formerly sent for the physician upon every pretext, both when he was not needed and when he was. As is usual in such cases, when this pendulum comes to rest, it will be found not at either side, but between the two extremes; there truth lies.

There are men who have devoted their lives to acquiring a knowledge of the human body and the behavior of its parts in health and in disease. These men are physicians. They recognize certain factors at work in producing disease and know certain other factors that can be depended upon to assist nature in arresting disease processes or in promoting recovery after the disease has been checked. Only to such a man, who thoroughly understands the body, can safely be entrusted the matter of deciding how far any disease process has perverted the normal functions or to what extent the natural forces can be depended upon to secure recovery. Even then it is not strange that he sometimes makes mistakes—a man with a finite mind dealing as he is with a human body which only its Creator fully comprehends. The personal equation, as one of our great writers has said, renders "experience fallacious and judgment difficult."

The simple fact, however, that the average human life is being lengthened, the suffering and the pain that attend the beginning or the ending of a human life have been reduced, and our personal and municipal comfort have been so greatly increased, are enough to warrant all the efforts that are being put forth to convert the treatment of the sick into an exact science. Only by scientific men can this be done and only by reasonable methods can this be accomplished. Cure of disease by any system which would become established must be not merely coincident with or subsequent to the means put forth—it must be obviously the result.

That Street Car Conversation.

Fragmentary reports of a recent conversation to which a few neighbors and myself were parties do me a great injustice, seeming to rank me among sympathizers with anarchy. Nothing could be more absurd. No man alive abominates anarchy in every form more heartily than I; perhaps few have done more with arms or pen to repress anarchy. I myself have nothing to keep back, but as parts of the conversation referred to might be thought to compromise the other parties I will not detail it without permission. Suffice it to say that all urged opposition to anarchy. I as earnestly as the rest, only our methods differed.

I respectfully request you to give this statement such publicity as you can.

A Sleuth on the Trail.

Chief—Hennessy, what made you suspect that some one had recently been in that deserted house?

Detective—Well, sir, in the dust on the mantel I found the footprint of a human hand.—Town Topics.

A boarding-house trust in Ann Arbor, Michigan, is the latest labor union on record. The idea, which is a really clever one, is that all the boarding-houses shall furnish the same kind of food on the same days in the week. Fancy the atmosphere when cabbage and onions are on the bill of fare.
