It's the Steady Exercise
 That does the good to your muscles and builds up the wasted tissue. It's the spasmodic exercise that does more harm than good. One day a week in a gymnasium is a dangerous thing for anybody. Get one of our Home Training Outfits, have it where you can use it twice a day, for a few minutes, and you will be surprised at the steady gain in health, and the improvement in your general physical development. mond, soprano, Miss Jessie Lansing, contralto, Mr. George Johnson, tenor, and Mr. C. W. Kettering, baritone, assisted by Miss Anderson, reader, and Mrs. P. V. M. Raymond, accompanist. The program opened with a child's song by little Fay Hernog. A piano solo by Miss Marian Camp, a contralto solo by Miss Leta Trigg, a lullaby by Mrs. J. M. O'Neal and two soprano numbers by Mrs. Mark Woods were greatly enjoyed. The closing number, a duet, "The Angel," by Rabinstein, was sung by Mrs. C. E. Sanderson and Miss Maude Hawk. The next meeting will be held on November 18, when a program of Russian music will be presented by the second division, under the direction of Mrs. E. R. Holyoke and Miss Lucy Haywood.

The following beautiful memorial to President McKinley was prepared by the resolutions committee, Mrs. A. L. Candy of Lincoln, Mrs. J. E. Keyser of Omaha and Mrs. R. Fenton of Wymore: "It is but a few days over a month since our beloved president was stricken down by the ruthless hand of a villain, so it is fitting that this body of Nebraska women express their appreciation of William McKinley's character and their deep sorrow.

"We have lost him; he is gone;
 We know him now; all narrow jealousies
 Are silent; and we see him as he moved,
 How modest, kindly, all accomplished, wise,
 With what sublime repression of himself
 And in what limits and how tenderly;
 Not making his high place the lawless perch
 Of wing'd ambitions, nor a vantage ground
 For pleasure; but thro' all his tract of years
 Wearing the white flower of blameless life."

As a nation we mourn for a leader who handled unusually difficult questions with tactful sagacity, with a kindly firmness, and with a magnanimous courage that has set him in the hearts of his own people and of the people of the civilized world as a high-souled and able statesman. As individuals we mourn for a personal friend gone, but in our grief we turn to the priceless legacy he has left us of a well-nigh perfect Christian character—of a man though he accepted the highest place in our great land, yet glorified the common things of life, thus setting before the youth of our country the very pattern of what a man should be in his private and domestic life no less than in his public career.

His life was the embodiment of loyalty and purity. His bravery, unselfishness and heroic submission to God's will in his last hours have lifted him into the rank of those exalted ones who, having lived righteously, are divinely upheld in the hour of death.

As club women we treasure his kindly greeting of three years ago at Omaha; we glory in the man who through all his years has proved his unswerving loyalty to an invalid wife, and to her now sitting alone with sorrow Tennyson again voices our sentiments:

"May all love,
 His love unseen but felt, o'er-shadow her,
 The love of all this people comfort her,
 Till God's love sets her at his side again."

The sizzling heat is over. The summer girl will hibernate until ground hog day. But the unexpressible club woman has set her house in order, bought her winter supplies, and has now entered the sanctum sanctorum, there to revel in the delights of club work until she comes forth to wrestle with the awful problem of an Easter bonnet.

The Review and Art club of York on October fifth met with the president, Mrs. J. H. Bell. The work for the year consists of art and artists, together with the history of five of the largest cities in Europe. The program for the day was: "History of London," by Mrs. Clark, which was decidedly good; "Government and Parliament Houses," by Miss Mead, who gave full details; art, "Claude Lorraine" and "Watteau," by Miss Belle Reynolds. Both of these artists were represented by some of their pictures, and their works well handled.

The club met with Mrs. Daggy on October 19th. A paper was read on the subject: "Visit to London in the Time of Henry VIII." All the members turned to salt like Mrs. Lot because they "looked back and saw such a monster." When recovered each member congratulated herself upon being beautiful, but was truly thankful she was not a court lady during Henry's reign.

"A visit to Modern London" was the subject of a paper by Mrs. C. C. Cobb. This was doubly entertaining from the fact that Mrs. Cobb visited London only a year ago. Her descriptions were most excellent.

Art, "Nattier,"—Mrs. Vandenburg, who had charge of this subject, was unable to find much to regard to him, but the pictures she displayed were fine.

An attractive club calendar has been sent out by the Round Table of Crete. Printed on heavy white paper and tied with lavender, the club color, the book contains full outlines of sixteen interesting and profitable meetings. Agnes Strickland's Queens of England and the Golden Age of Literature are the subjects for study this year, varied by two lectures on Schiller and Goethe by Professor W. E. Jilison. Following in order the history subjects are Katharine of Valois, Margaret of Anjou, Elizabeth Wardville, Anne of Warwick, Elizabeth of York, Katharine of Aragon, Anne Boleyn, Jane Seymour, Katharine Parr, Queen Mary, Queen Elizabeth, Anne of Denmark and Henrietta Maria. The literary work consists of papers, book reviews and quotations. The officers of the Round Table are Mrs. L. J. Cooper, president, Mrs. L. S. Andrews, vice president, Mrs. J. S. Brown, secretary, and Mrs. C. W. Doane, treasurer.

The visiting officers were royally entertained by the Omaha club women last Monday. They were met at the train by a committee from the club, following which a beautiful luncheon was served by the state president, Mrs. Draper Smith. After a short business meeting the visitors went in a body to the meeting of the Omaha club, which was held in the First Congregational church. It was federation day, and reports of the Wayne convention were given, interspersed with delightful music. After the club meeting a reception was tendered the state officers, ending with a six o'clock tea in the church parlors. In the evening a banquet was given in the dining room by the directors of the club. One of the guests of honor was Mrs. Foster of Louisiana, a well-known club woman.

The regular meeting of the Fremont Woman's club last Saturday took the form of a song recital by Mrs. Thomas J. Kelley of Omaha, accompanied by Miss Porterfield of Council Bluffs. The Fremont club has arranged for a piano recital by William H. Sherwood to be given in the near future.

The Plattsmouth Woman's club discussed the lives and works of the best-known writers of the eighteenth century at its meeting last week. A report of the Wayne federation also was given by Mrs. Stoutenborough.

Mrs. Draper Smith of Omaha and Mrs. Stoutenborough of Plattsmouth are attending the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs this week.

The Auburn Woman's club held its opening meeting for the season last Thursday afternoon. After the business
