Dr. Carr, surgeon, 141 South 12th.

Died, in Denver, at the home of her son Harry, October 24th, 1901, Mrs. M. B. Reese, wife of Judge Reese of this city. Mrs. Reese has been an invalid for about a year. She was a high-minded, good woman and very dearly beloved in Lincoln where she has lived for a number of years.

In the death of Mr. A. Clark Redick Omaha's society and business circles suffer a great loss. With the exception of a few years at the Shattuck Military academy and two years in California, Mr. Redick's life was spent in Omaha, where for several years he has been engaged in the real estate business with his brother, Mr. Chatham Redick. Funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon.

City Improvement Society.

The regular meeting of the City Improvement society was held on Thursday morning. The encroachments of stands on the business streets was given serious consideration, also the unsanitary condition of the sidewalks owing to expectoration and lack of systematic cleaning. This subject will be brought to the notice to the sidewalk committee of the city council. At the corner of Fourteenth and H streets the crossing is rendered impassable by the waste water from the engine at the State Capital. Individual protests have been without effect, and the matter will now be officially presented to the board. Plans were discussed for the reception to be given on November seventh in Walsh Hall to the city officials and members of the commercial club.
