Tariff Reduction

When you buy your winter clothing you will find the price is up—
The "reduction" in the tariff is the cause.
And you'll find the prices higher on each little bite or sup—
The "reduction" in the tariff is the cause.
The physicians raise the prices when they fill you up with pill;
The plumber man adds something when he writes his heavy bill;
But you'll find your weekly wages right on a standing still—
The "reduction" in the tariff is the cause.

When you buy your winter fuel you will get a heavy bump—
The "reduction" in the tariff is the cause.
If you manage to keep even you will surely have to jump—
The "reduction" in the tariff is the cause.
Every article of wearing, every bit of food you buy
Has had its price tag hoisted to the blue dome of the sky,
And your little wage no longer can be seen with naked eye—
The "reduction" in the tariff is the cause.

Every trust and corporation has increased its juicy graft—
The "reduction" in the tariff is the cause.
Every tariff-fattened baron has leaned back and loudly laughed—
The "reduction" in the tariff is the cause.
All the tools of selfish interest are rejoicing as they go
On their way to get their favors, but there's lots of grief and woe
In the ranks of toiling millions who now very plainly know
The "reduction" in the tariff is the cause.

Labor Day Meditation

John Jones is a staunch trades unionist, and he takes a deep interest in the work of organization. Last Monday Jones marched with his fellow unionists in the Labor Day parade. And this is what happened:
He wore a hat, union made, that is increased in price by reason of the tariff, and the union hatters of the country fighting desperately to maintain a wage scale.
He wore a pair of trousers increased in price by reason of the tariff, while the union garment workers of the country are fighting desperately to maintain a wage scale and blot out "sweat shops" maintained by conscienceless employers who pay starvation wages while all the time demanding "protection for American labor."
A shirt whose price is increased by the tariff, while union shirtmakers are fighting the same battle as the union garment workers.
A pair of shoes, increased in price by the tariff, and a large share of the shoes worn in this country made in penitentiaries, the manufacturers being given a larger profit by reason of a tariff framed for the ostensible purpose of "protecting American labor."
Underclothes and hose, increased in price by the tariff, while the textile workers who made them are the poorest paid workers in the manufacturing lines, despite the fact that their employers secured a law enabling them to charge the consumer a higher price, claiming that such a law was needed to "protect the American laborer."

And after the parade John Jones engaged in an argument with a fellow worker, claiming that union men should not engage in politics and declaring that he believed in "protecting American labor."
An election day parade would help some.

His Honor's Acquaintance

At the "Ad Club" banquet in St. Joseph, Mo., a few weeks ago, there were four speakers, each one representing a state, and Mayor "Pet" Clayton, who welcomed the guests. In front of each state representative was a huge bouquet of his state's flower. In front of the Kansan was a bunch of huge sunflowers. In front of the Nebraskan was a big bunch of goldenrod. In front of the Missourian was a huge bough containing large, juicy apples, and in front of the Oklahoman was a bunch of cotton bolls. In front of Mayor Clayton was a huge bunch of catnip.

When Mayor Clayton arose to speak he referred briefly to the various state flowers and then said: "I don't know why they put that big bunch of catnip in front of me. It isn't Missouri's state flower, and it isn't St. Joseph's flower. It isn't my flower, for I don't know anything about cats, although I'll acknowledge some slight acquaintance with 'nips.'"
Perhaps you are not acquainted with his honor, the mayor of St. Joseph.
Well!
If not you have missed making the acquaintance of a very capable and jolly executive.

Arctic Note

And now they tell us Dr. Cook Has reached the cold North Pole. But that don't seem to help us look For our supply of coal.
Now if he wants to help us all In manner that's far greater, He'll travel south and quickly haul Us chunks of the Equator.

Not Interested

"Did you see by the papers that the North Pole is at last found?"
"Say, don't talk to me about North Poles!" exclaimed Jimperly. "I'm trying to locate a coal dealer who has a heart."

Brain Leaks

A man usually rips where he sews. September—please pass the pumpkin pie!
When a man can not explain he offers an excuse.
The fellow who "travels on his shape" is usually "crooked."
When one courts trouble there is no need to turn down the light.
In one minute a mistake can be made that will cost a lifetime of remorse.
Labor Day was a big day for the workers. They can make election day a bigger one.
Merely to be in time we stop the press to announce that now is the time to do your Christmas shopping.
Perhaps Mr. Aldrich insists that it is tariff reduction because we get less for our wages than we got before.
The man who is forever talking about how much work he does usually has nothing but conversation to show for it.
