

this time, but I do know that if every democrat in congress had stood by the demands of the Denver platform there would be no such discussion among us today. The discussion has brought out a new school of democrats. They tell us to put a tariff on as many articles as possible, but make it no higher on any than would invite and permit genuine competition between the home and foreign products, and thus no higher than the rate that would produce the very highest revenue from each article, but I know that the moment you get all these articles on the taxed list incidentally or intentionally protected, you set up a hunger and thirst and greed in the producer of each of them and they combine and clamor for more incidental protection until you get more and more prohibitive protection and less and less accidental revenue, and so the tariff stands today by the avowed purpose of the republicans for protection first and revenue last and least; and the greatest hindrance in the way of an income tax today is the fear that it will kill protection. I know all this. Other men, like Mr. Bailey, seem not to know it. I have seen Louisiana on account of sugar, lumber and rice turn protectionist to the core, and she would be republican today, but for the problem, I firmly believe. I have seen California in spite of her Chinese and Japanese problems, which would have made her democratic, stand by the republican party on account of the high protection for her oranges, lemons and lumber. I saw a democrat of Florida stand on the floor of congress and heard him declare, while he denounced Bryan, that he would vote for any protective feature of the Payne bill, provided it gave him all the duty he wanted on bananas and pineapples.

I saw two democrats from Missouri last year lose their seats to two republicans because Mr. Cannon went into their districts and told their people that the republicans would give them the duty they wanted on zinc if they would elect republicans to congress, and as a result the duty on zinc was doubled, and last month only twelve cars of zinc ore were shipped from Mexico into the United States, instead of 190 cars per month, as heretofore, with loss of revenue to the government and increased prices of zinc products to the people.

Hell never devised a means to breed corruption and to tempt the virtue and fidelity to principle of a people equal to protection. The republicans would keep protection alive, therefore they bring all the classes they can under its fold to give it strength and life. I would kill it, and therefore I would take all the classes I can without its pale, to destroy its strength and give it death.

"For," in the words of the greatest of all the apostles, "I mean not that other men be eased and ye burdened."

News of the Week

Governor Hughes refused to make speeches for Mr Bannard, republican candidate for mayor of New York. An Associated Press dispatch from Albany explains: "Aside from casting his vote Governor Hughes will not take an active part in the municipal campaign in Greater New York. Although he declined to comment on the situation, the governor assumes the position that as the governor of New York state is reviewing officer for all the important officials in Greater New York, and they are amenable to him under the provisions of the charter of New York the chief executive of the state should not appear in a local campaign in that city."

Frank E. Hanscombe, cashier of the Mineral Point, Wis., First National bank, committed suicide at the grave of his mother. When his mother-in-law, Mrs. John Gray, viewed the body she fell dead. The suicide was caused by despondency over the condition of the bank's affairs. Phil Allen, Jr., vice president of the bank, is under arrest, charged with embezzling $168,000 of the bank's funds. He declares that Hanscombe was entirely innocent of wrongdoing.

The American Federation of Labor in session at Washington, adopted resolutions denouncing "the murder of Francisco Ferrer," the Spanish revolutionist.

A Columbus, Ohio, dispatch carried by the Associated Press says: "The circuit court of Franklin county today held that Congressman Carl C. Anderson was entitled to remain in the office of the mayor of Fostoria, while serving as congressman and on the petition of Attorney General Denman, ousted from the mayoralty, Frank Gebert, formerly president of the council, who was made mayor when Anderson went to Washington. The court says that the common law provides that a man may accept as many offices as he can be elected to, or receive by appointment, provided his duties are not incompatible."

The Japanese bank at Sacramento and the Japanese bank at Ogden, Utah, closed their doors following the closing of the chief Japanese bank at San Francisco.

Governor Fear of Hawaii has called a special session of the Hawaii and territorial legislature for November 2. Certain proposed constitutional amendments will be considered. An Associated Press cablegram says: "The proposed changes in the constitution include amendments increasing the pay of legislators and raising the salaries of the federal officials of the territory, including the governor, justices, judges, district attorney and marshal. More important, however, are proposed amendments to the land laws, designed to encourage homesteading. The governor desires to restrict to sixty acres the area of public land that may be taken up by one person; to prevent aliens applying for homesteads; to enforce residence on the land taken up and to provide for the distribution of lots by lottery instead of by the former auction system. It is expected that the legislature will pass an act on these lines for submission to congress. Its approval by that body will be followed by a general opening of public lands on the island."

At a meeting of shippers held at Cincinnati resolutions were adopted protesting against the proposed increase in freight rates by the railroads.

Caesar Lombroso, the noted Italian criminologist, died at Turin.

An Associated Press dispatch from Washington, D. C., says: "The use of the words 'So help me God,' at the end of oaths may be prohibited in the courts of the District of Columbia if congress passes a law which is now being drafted by the commissioners of the District of Columbia. The bill under consideration is similar to one enacted by the Maryland legislature, and leaders of the bench and bar in Washington are being consulted as to the desirability of recommending its enactment by congress."

The women's board of foreign missions of the Methodist Episcopal church south, in session at Savannah, Ga., adopted resolutions denouncing the so-called "funny supplement," saying that because of their "distortion of true art and because of the perverting influence on the minds of children" they should be abolished.

The St. Louis Star says that Governor Hadley is opposed to the reelection of Senator Warner and that Governor Hadley will support Walter S. Dickey of Kansas City.

Congressman Fowler of New Jersey, refused to reply to Speaker

Cannon's speech at Elgin, Ill., saying that the speech speaks for itself and shows that for the first time Mr. Cannon realizes that the public demands explanation from him.

The Japanese-American bank of San Francisco has been closed by order of the state superintendent of banking.

Mrs. Maria Blake Ringleka, whose father, Francis Blake, fought with the continental army, died at Galesburg, Ill., age 91 years.

William I. Buchanan of Buffalo, N. Y., former American minister to the Argentine republic and Panama, died suddenly on a public street in London.

Washington dispatches say a row is on between Secretary of State Knox and Postmaster General Hitchcock as a result of the dismissal of Crane from the Chinese post.

The Massachusetts campaign was enlivened by statements made by Governor Draper, republican, who is a candidate for re-election, to the

Why Not Economize
When insuring your life by selecting a company which insures at the lowest cost to the policyholder of any company? Yes, there is a difference in life insurance companies and a discriminating applicant will choose that company which will afford him absolute safety, liberal policy conditions and low cost. It is because the UNION CENTRAL has earned the highest rate of interest on its investments, for over a quarter of a century, and has experienced a very low death and expense rate that it can insure at the lowest cost.
