A Guthrie, Okla., dispatch dated November 11, and carried by the Associated Press says: "Republicans continue to claim the election of Joseph W. McNeal as governor by from four to six thousand, while democrats assert Lee Cruce has been elected by 30,000. In the meantime democrats have begun to contest results in many counties. Although, on the face of the returns, Bird McGuire, republican, in the First congressional district, and Dick T. Morgan, republican, in the Second, were re-elected by substantial majorities, it is rumored that the state election board will issue certificates to their democratic opponents, thus sending a full democratic delegation to congress from this state, and making it necessary for McGuire and Morgan to file contests before the newly elected democratic house. It is claimed that negro votes were cast illegally in the First and Second districts, and this, it is said, will be the basis for denying certificates to the republican candidates."

An Associated Press cablegram from St. Petersburg, said: "The Novoe Vremya has received the following telegram from Tula, signed by Prince Demitry Obolonski: 'Count Leo Tolstoi left Yasnaya Polina on the morning of October 10, accompanied by a physician and neither has been heard from since. The countess is in despair. In a letter to his wife Tolstoi says he has decided to spend his remaining days in solitary retirement.' The last news concerning Count Tolstoi, the eminent novelist and social reformer, was received from St. Petersburg October 18 last. The dispatch said he had suffered several fainting spells that day and for several hours was unconscious. In the evening, however, his condition was somewhat improved. Tolstoi celebrated his eighty-second birthday last August."

Dr. Lyman C. Abbott, editor of the Outlook, says that the democratic landslide was not caused by Roosevelt but was due to general dissatisfaction as to conditions. He said Mr. Roosevelt got in too late to save the day.

The West Virginia legislature is democratic and Henry G. Davis, who was the democratic nominee for vice president in 1904, will be a candidate for senator.

Flights through the air is all the rage these days. An Associated Press dispatch from Baltimore says: "Today's flights at the aviation field differed in many respects from anything seen here hitherto. There was bomb throwing and target shooting from speeding airships, there were aerial gymnastics that thrilled and there were trips aloft, made by government officials, followed by official expressions as to the sensations experienced aloft and as to the merits of aeroplanes of different designs. Postmaster General Frank Hitchcock after a flight with Count Jacques De Lesseps, was so pleased that he asked Archibald Hoxsey for a higher flight in the Wright biplane. But Hoxsey had found the upper air too gusty to make passenger carrying altogether safe and he asked the postmaster general to wait until tomorrow. Mr. Hitchcock expressed himself as delighted with his experience in the air. After he had been brought safely to earth, General James Allen, chief of the signal corps, United States army, entered Count De Lesseps' 100-horse power Bleriot and was given the new experience of a flight. In the party from Washington with him and the postmaster general were Secretary of War Jacob Dickinson, General Witherspoon, president of the college of the army; Count Zeppeline, Thomas Nelson Page and several others, together with a number of women. The first of the flyers to take wing was James Radley at a bit after 2 o'clock, he being followed aloft almost immediately by Hubert Latham in his Antoinette. Both descended after brief flights. A little later Count De Lesseps, in his 100-horse power Bleriot, took aloft for his rifle practice Captain John P. Douw of the state ordnance corps. After a trip around the course to give the marksman his bearings, Captain Douw fired twice at a 'C' target, U. S. A., small arms practice, but the best of the shots missed the mark by four feet. Latham then tried with a revolver. Covering the target in the circumference of a circle of small diameter, from his Antoinette he twice fired two shots. Of his four shots two were hits, one scoring two and the other three points. Count De Lesseps then took up as a passenger Lieutenant Dupuy of the signal corps of New York."

Sixty-four lives were lost by an explosion in a mine at Delagua, Colo.

At St. Petersburg Baron de Ungern Sternburg, correspondent of a semi-official Austro-Hungarian news agency, was sentenced by the appeal court to four years hard labor on a charge of high treason. Baron Sternburg was arrested last June by the secret police after a search of his apartments. The police seized his papers and the baron was placed in confinement. On examination he admitted furnishing the Austrian military attache with a translation of the proposals of the ministries of war and marine to the duma, which were stamped secret. He maintained, however, that the proposals in reality were not secret.
