

A GOOD LIFE INSURANCE POLICY

One of the most attractive policies written is one issued by THE MIDWEST LIFE and designated as "Annual payment policy, maturing at age 60 or prior death." This policy meets the two great objects of insurance, which are: protecting those dependent upon one, and providing for one's old age.

The face amount of this policy is payable at death to the beneficiary, or if the insured is living on his 60th birthday, it is payable to him. The annual rate is very reasonable; for instance, at age 30 it is $27.26 per $1,000.00. This means that the insured, should he live until age 60, would make 30 annual payments of $27.26, or a total of $817.80. As the Company will then pay the insured $1,000.00, he has carried the insurance for 30 years and made an average gain of $6.07 each year on an annual investment of $27.26. If the insured should die prior to age 60, his beneficiary would receive of course the face of the policy.

In case the insured becomes totally and permanently disabled from bodily injury or disease, the policy becomes paid up for its face amount; that is, no more premiums are payable. Certain other options are offered if the policy is surrendered.

This policy, after three annual premiums have been paid, has liberal loan and surrender values; one of which, extended insurance, is automatic.

Another valuable feature is that for $3.00 per year extra the Company will pay double the face amount, if the insured shall die from accidental means within 90 days after receiving the injury.

There is no time in a man's life when money would be more acceptable than at age 60, just as his earning capacity is leaving him. It means to the man who buys a policy of this kind that he can carry protection for his family while they most require it, and in his declining years have the benefits come to him.

The Price of Truth

D. Cady Herrick, at a luncheon in Albany, said of the truth:

"The truth is rarely palatable. They who would bring overmuch truth to bear on their profession or trade are usually corrected after the manner of young Jones.

"Young Jones, a cub reporter on the Cinnaminson Scimitar, wound up an article about a town meeting with the words:

"Mr. Smith then rose and made a few feeble remarks, during which the audience dispersed."

"The editor of the Cinnaminson Scimitar snorted when he saw that sentence. He dashed his blue pencil through it fiercely. Then he wrote in its place:

"The last speaker was our eminent fellow citizen, Mr. George William Smith, who, in crisp and well-chosen sentences, reviewed the subject under discussion, giving to it that clear, well-considered and logical treatment which has made Colonel Smith one of the foremost orators of our state. The audience dispersed, after expressing warm approval of his polished and eloquent utterances."

"There!" said the editor. "That's how to do it."

"But the reporter sullenly retorted: "The difference between our versions, sir, is the difference between the true and the false."

"No," snorted the editor. "It's the difference between old Smith stopping his paper and cutting me out of 75 cents a year, or coming in here and buying 100 marked copies to send around to his friends."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Household Hints

When you spill a can of paint on a rug you can remove the paint by giving the rug to a ragman.

To rid the house of rats place a cake of ice on the floor and place a pound of cheese on the cake of ice. The rats will climb on the ice to get the cheese and will get cold feet and leave the premises forever.

Liquid glue into which some lamp-black has been stirred makes an excellent polish for piano keys.

Sprinkle the top of a cake with plaster of Paris before icing it. This will harden the icing and keep it from running off the sides.

When eggs are very high in price the economical housekeeper should poach eggs in water into which a tablespoon of chloride of lime has been stirred. This will make the eggs go much further.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Steady Worshiper

A new preacher, on his way to the service one Sabbath evening, met a young man whom he had seen on one or two occasions. "Isn't this Mr. Harkins?" asked the dominie, stopping the young man and extending his hand. "I am the new preacher, who has just come to town."

"Yes, sir," replied the young man, returning the handshake. "I am Mr. Harkins."

"I have seen you several times," continued the pastor, "but until now I have not had the pleasure of making your acquaintance. I presume that you are accustomed to divine worship every evening?"

"Oh, yes, sir," was the smiling response of the young man. "I am on my way to see her now."—Saturday Evening Post.

No Escaping

Pat was standing near the car track when he noticed an automobile coming up the street, and to be safe he stepped back a little.

The automobile went past, and just as it was passing the driver had occasion to turn off the track. When he did the automobile skidded on the
