

Pub Board approves Awgwan

The publications Board approved yesterday the reorganization of the campus publication formerly known as the Awgwan. Staff members promise it will be the first publication of its kind ever to appear on a college campus. The board further approved the appointment of George Royal as photography editor of the Cornhusker at a $15 per month salary.

Refusing to reveal the new name or any of the content of the magazine, George Frisher, editor, would only hint that photography and the pub board will see that it is kept solvent.

Yesterday's final approval came after the work this summer of Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalism society, on rejuvenation of the humor magazine. The tentative approval was given at the meeting of the board.

Sigma Delta Chi intends to keep a close check on the publication

"Sigma Delta Chi proposed the reorganization plan in an effort to bring to the campus a worthwhile publication," commented E. Wittenberg, president of the society. Students will hardly recognize the new magazine, according to the editors. Many fraternities and sororities have already indicated their support by taking large blocks of subscriptions and the

New plan for student hospitalization waits approval of Regents

By Kurt Porjes.

Plans for the closing of the campus infirmary and the treating of student patients at Lincoln General hospital have been completed and are waiting for the approval of the board of regents, according to Dean R. A. Lyman, director of student health service. The student health fee of $1 per day for treatment will not be increased, Dean Lyman explained, stating at the same time that surplus charges will be born by the present health fund. The new program will give students the use of all facilities open to regular patients at the hospital.

The whole plan has been made possible by the vast building increase in the hospital last year. A new wing for housing patients with contagious diseases was built on Lincoln General, making it possible for the management to contract for the housing of university students.

"The upkeep of a regular student infirmary is very expensive on a campus like this one," declared Dean Lyman, when he was questioned regarding the new project. "This is true because a staff has to be kept up regularly throughout the year, whether there are any students in need of its service or not. There are times when such a student infirmary is completely empty and times when it is overcrowded. The latter is to the disadvantage of the students and will be done away with thru the extensive facilities at the hospital, which has a regular paid staff and which does not experience the difficulties we do."

Surgery not included.

Lyman further explained that students needing any surgical treatment will have to pay the usual hospital costs, as surgery is not included in the program of the health service. "The University of Kansas and Kansas State, just like many other universities, probably give their students more hospitalization facilities than we are able to give on this campus," he declared, "but one has to take into account that these universities

Orchesis will hold trials Wednesday

Orchesis, university woman's dance group, will begin a three week probationary period Wednesday, Oct. 3, at Grant Memorial.

Any woman interested in this group is asked to be at Grant Memorial Wednesday at 7 p. m. Permanent members will be chosen after three weeks of practice.

AWS board sponsors activity mart

Program is scheduled for tomorrow at one in Ellen Smith hall

The Associated Women Students board in its attempt to interest women students in creative activities for leisure time, is presenting an All-Activities Mart this Saturday from 1 to 4 p. m. in Ellen Smith hall. This exhibit is open to all women students. Ann Husted, AWS chairman of the event, declared. It may be visited at any time between these hours.

All campus activities on the campus open to women, which are not strictly academic, will participate. Leaders in the various groups will be on hand to describe their displays and tell women how they can get into these activities.

YWCA under Jane Shaw, president, will display a large map showing the work of YW throughout the world. Descriptions of every staff will be given so that women may sign up. There will also be an exhibit from the art staff.

AWS directed by Jean Simmons, president, and the AWS board will present an exhibit.

Margaret Krause, president of Tassels, will be present to explain to those interested the purpose and work of this organization.

WAA, of which Tess Casady is in charge will present an opportunity for all who are interested to sign up for women's athletic clubs and groups.

Students will be invited to join church groups and participate in church activities by Esther Stuer-

Students must check names in new Directory

Student directories will be ready for distribution and sale about Nov. 1, according to Richard Allgood, editor, and Burton Thiel, business manager. Listings of names for correction by students have been made and will be posted in the lobby of the Temple theater on the city campus and in ag hall on the campus this week and next.

Listings will be posted as follows and students are asked to check their names according to the initial of their last name on the day assigned for that letter:

A, B—Thursday noon, (September 26th to Saturday noon (September 28th).

C, D—Friday morning (September 27th) to Monday night (September 30th).

E, F, G, H—Monday morning (September 30th) to Tuesday night (October 1).

I, J, K, L, M—Tuesday morning (October 1) to Wednesday night (October 2).

N, O, P, Q, R—Wednesday morning (October 2) to Thursday night (October 3).

S, T, U, V, W, X, Y, Z—Thursday morning (October 3) to Friday night (October 4).

All organization presidents who have not yet turned in their list of members to be included in the directory are asked to do so immediately. The deadline for these groups is September 28.

Compiled from registration cards made out by students in the fall, the directory is sponsored annually by the university YMCA and is financed by advertising sales and contributions.

Daily radio tryouts set for Tuesday

Harris signs contract for 7:15 society, news broadcast over KFOR

Signing a contract yesterday giving the NEBRASKAN a five minute news and society program over KFOR at 7:15 in the evening throughout the semester, Norman Harris, editor of the DAILY announced that tryouts will be held for four radio positions on Tuesday afternoon.

Candidates are to meet at the KFOR studios at 2 p. m. for auditions, in which they will be required to read material given to them. It is not necessary for any person to prepare a speech in advance, Harris explained.

Positions to be filled include two news announcerships and those of society and sports snoopers. The program will be broadcast five times weekly beginning Monday, Oct. 7.

Council fines Kappa Sigma

Kappa Sigma fraternity was fined last night for minor violations of the rushing rules when the Interfraternity Council Judiciary board met last night to consider rushing violations. The amount of the fine was not revealed.

Charges were entered against Kappa Sigs by Phi Sigma Kappa and involved men moving into the house on Monday evening.

Judiciary Board members made it clear that the fine was the result of the Interfraternity Council's action this year to enforce rushing rules to the point.

Members of the board are Col. C. J. Frankforter, Prof. E. F. Schramm, Dean W. C. Harper, Tom Horn, Chris Petersen and Jack Cole.

Council studies student labor

Committee members for the latest project planned by the Student Council—that of investigating employment conditions among university students, were made public by John Mason, Council president, Wednesday.

The project was sponsored by barb leaders who realized that the greater number of those affected are unaffiliated students. Members are Raymond Murray, chairman, Ed Wanek, Ruth Ann Sheldon and Eugene Littler.

Weather

Weather reporters predict partly cloudy conditions and warmer temperatures in eastern sections of Nebraska for today.

UN Willkie for president club meets Friday at 5

All students of any age boosting Willkie for president are invited to the first meeting of the Willkie club at 5 p. m. in room 315 of the Union.

Through its Nebraska representative, Betty McGeachin, the UN organization has been duly authorized by the college division of the Associated Willkie Clubs of America, and is now a full fledged member.

To arouse interest on the campus in politics in general and Willkie in particular is the main purpose of the club.

Chief business of the initial meeting will be election of officers and planning of a general program for the next six weeks. Bob Schleh is chairman of the committee in charge of notification for the meeting.

Awgwan staff to meet

Wanted for the reorganized Awgwan: advertising solicitors, caption and copy writers, photographers, makeup assistants, stenographers and general workers.

All students interested are asked to report today at 4 p. m. to George Frischer, editor in the old Awgwan office in the Union.

German refugee will study here

By Walter Greenberg.

"I'm one person who wasn't overwhelmed at my first sight of the New York skyline." So spoke 17 year old German refugee student, Petra Fuld, who is now completing university entrance requirements. An inquiry as to why she was not surprised upon seeing such a view led to the quite obvious answer that she had read so much about it, she anticipated all she saw.

Miss Fuld arrived from New York City Tuesday morning to set up residence as a guest of Sigma Delta Tau, after spending two years time equally divided between Newark and New York. While there she attended high school, primarily to learn the English language and customs, before deciding to enroll at Nebraska.

Born in Berlin.

Born in Berlin, and having lived there most of her life before coming here might belie the fact that she has traveled thru most European countries and several American. Among those traversed are Denmark, England, France, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Cuba, and Italy, of which she considers the last most beautiful.

In England she attended Oxford for three months where she majored in English and art. Her accent is extremely noticeable thruout her conversation not to mention the fact that she has
